BOOTS FOR BUSINESS

CRAPE RUB-BER SOLES.

It matters so much to the business man that his boots should be smart, yet a comfortable fit, for he generally has to wear them all day long without any chance of a change, and they must, above all, be pleasant and easy to walk in. Yet he will not put up with anything "sloppy"—he must have a trim, stylish boot, as good as it looks and of the right quality to stand the "rush and bustle" of everyday business life. We make just the proper footwear to meet these requirements.

PREFACE.

This is the 123rd Edition of the Asylum Press Almanack and Directory.

We take this opportunity of thanking all our advertisers and other patrons for the ready help they have rendered by their willing co-operation.

We assure the public that we have no greater aim than to serve them properly, and to the extent to which such service is utilised and appreciated, we shall feel highly rewarded. Particular care has been given for verifying all information in the Directory. No Directory, especially one published in India, can claim to be thoroughly accurate. We realise our shortcomings. We shall appreciate all suggestions for improvement and any corrections sent to us will be rectified in future issues.

To increase the usefulness, an up to date copy of the Madras Town Map is being issued along with the Directory. It is hoped to continue the publication of the Map corrected every year.

Since the Street Directory could not be issued in this edition, with all the changes incorporated, we have held it over for publication with our next issue.

The Motor list has been retained and brought up to date. Many letters of appreciations have been received by us in regard to this portion of our Directory.

The factory list has been brought up to date by the addition of nearly 500 new names.

The new Election Rules have been incorporated.

The Mofussil Directory has been greatly enlarged by the addition of good many commercial addresses especially in Bangalore, Coimbatore, Malabar, Salem, Travancore etc.,

All the general information has been corrected up to the time of our going to Press.

For convenience of reference, this year also, we have divided the book into 8 sections as follows:—

1. General.
2. All India.
3. Madras Presidency.
4. Madras City.
5. Industrial and Commercial.
6. Mofussil.
7. Residential.
8. General Index.

We have kept up the same low price of Rs. 8. per copy.

We take this opportunity of offering our thanks to all those who have helped us to bring out this edition.

As many customers expressed the desire of having the publication much earlier in the year, we propose to give our next edition, D. V. in the first quarter of 1925.

We have to specially thank our advertising customers I who in spite of the poor and unsatisfactory condition of the Commercial Market and in spite of their retrenchment policy, have been kind enough to continue their publicity through this medium.

USES OF THE PRECEDING TABLE.

1.—When Government 4 per cent. Securities sell at 76, what are the equivalent values of the 5 and 5½ per cent. loans?

In the table opposite 76 in the first column are 95, the value of 5 per cent. loan, and 104½, the value of 5½ per cent. loan—the interest in all the three cases being 5·263 or 5E·19 per cent.

2.—At what price should I purchase 4 per cents. to obtain 5½ per cent. for my money?

In the fourth column opposite 5½ or 5·5 in the column for 4 per cent., stands 72·727 or 728·11, the price required.

3.—What would I gain by selling out Rs. 10,000 5 per cent. Government loans at 104 and purchasing 5½ per cent. at 112?

In the third column opposite 104 in the 2nd, is .... 114·4
112

Gain on Rs. 100 of Capital .... 2·4

And in the fourth column opposite 112 in the 3rd, is 4·911 per cent.

" " " " 104 " 2nd, 4·808 "

Difference, or gain per cent. per annum on Capital 0·103 " or fully 1·10 per cent. being Rs. 10-5a. on every Rs. 1,000 invested.

4.—To find the equivalent values of 4 and 5½ per cent. Securities when 5 per cent. are selling at 103⅜, or Rs. 103-6a.

Opposite 103 in the 2nd column are 82·4 and 113·3 in the 1st and 3rd, and among the "proportional parts" corresponding to 375 or 6a. in the 5 per cent. column are 0·3 R in the 4 per cent. and ·413 in the 5½ per cent. column.

Hence 82·4 + ·3 = 82·7, the equivalent price of 4 per cent., and 113·3 + ·413 = Rs. 113·713, or Rupees 113, 11a. 5p., the equivalent price of 5½ per cents.

Other uses of this Table will readily occur to brokers and others.

SHIP'S TONNAGE.

Is described as "Gross" and "Register," Gross Tonnage does not include the entire space available on a ship—for from this measurement all spaces above deck, solely appropriated to the ship's machinery, deck house cabins, deck shelters, the galleys, wheel and chart houses, cable tiers, sail, carpenter's and boatswain's stores and a few minor spaces, are excluded. Register Tonnage excludes in addition to the above, crew space, Masters, Officers and Engineers accommodation, etc., and in the case of steamers, 32 per cent. of the whole is also deducted for engine rooms allowance. In steamers, the difference between gross and register tonnage is often very great, the "Oceanic," for example, has a gross tonnage of more than 17,000 tons, while her register tonnage is only a little over 7,000. A "displacement ton" is 35 c. ft.

NOTE.—France, Belgium, Italy, Greece, and Switzerland constitute the "Latin" Union, and their coins are alike in weight and fineness, occasionally differing in name. The same system has been adopted by Spain, Servia, Bulgaria, Russia, and Roumania, but they have not joined the Union. Francs and c ntimes of France, Belgium, and Switzerland are respectively designated lire and centesimi in Italy; drachmai and lepta in Greece; dinars and paras in Servia; pesetas and centimos in Spain; leys and banis in Roumania; leva and stotinkis in Bulgaria.

The Scandinavian countries, Norway, Sweden, and Denmark, all employ coins of the same weight and fineness, their names being also alike. Most of the South American States possess a standard coin, equal in weight and fineness to the silver 5-fr. piece, generally termed a "peso." In Hayti, the corresponding coin is a "gouide."

In most of the British Colonies English money is current. The currency of Ceylon, Mauritius, and the East African Protectorate is, however, based on the rupee of British India; that of the Straits Settlements is on a dollar basis. Canada and British Honduras coinage are on the basis of the United States gold dollar. A British dollar, identical in weight and fineness with the Japanese "yen," is legal tender in the Straits Settlements, Hongkong, Sarawak, British North Borneo, and Labuan.

The exchange value of the monies of many countries is determined by the rate of exchange for the day. The rate given in the exchange notes of the newspapers generally represents the number of standard coins that are equivalent to one sovereign. The Spanish rate is given in terms of pence per dollar (=2 escudos), the Russian in pence per rouble, Portuguese in pence per milreis, and the United States rate in pence per dollar.

The exchange value of the Indian rupee depends on the rate for "India Council Bills," but by an Act of 1898, the British sovereign was made legal tender and equivalent to 1½ rupees, the rupee being thus rated at 1s. 4d.

In "bimetallic" countries pure gold is generally taken as being worth 15½ times its weight of pure silver. This proportion corresponds to giving standard silver a constant value of 60⅞d. per oz.

BRITISH WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

UNIFORMITY.—An edict of King Edgar decreed that there should be but one Standard Measure, that kept at Winchester; and by the 25th section of Magna Charta, there was to be one weight for all England. Nevertheless, numerous customary weights and measures have continued in use—custom was stronger than law, especially with regard to land, corn and wool. In 1824, however, an Act was passed rendering uniformity compulsory from the 1st of January 1826, since which time, the Imperial Statute System of Weights and Measures has been in general use, although some remains of the older form still linger.

Avoirdupois Weight.

Drachm....dr. = 27⅓ grains (27·34375).
Ounce.....oz. = 16 drachms, 437·5 grains
Pound ..lb. = 16 oz., 256 dr., 7,000 grains.

Hundredweight, cwt. = 4 qr.. 112 lb.
Ton .... T. = 20 cwt., 2,240 lb.

Avoirdupois weight is used in almost all commercial transactions and common dealings, but in addition to the above, there are special weights for various articles, the chief of which are—

A Quartern Loaf..............	=	4 lb.
A Peck of Flour, 2 Gallons....	=	14 ,,
A Firkin of Butter	=	56 ,,
A Firkin of Soft Soap.........	=	64 ,,

Ounce .... oz. = 20 dwt., 480 gr.
Pound ....lb. = 12 oz., 240 dwt., 5,760 gr.

TROY is the weight used by goldsmiths and jewellers. The grains Troy, Apothecaries' and Avoirdupois are equal, and the same in England, France, the United States, Holland, and in most other countries; but the carat varies: in France it is 3·18 grains, in Holland 3·0 gr., and in the U. S. 3·2 gr. In the U. K. the jewellery ounce is divided into 151½ carats or 600 pearl grains.

The oz. Troy and Apothecaries'=1·09714 oz. avoirdupois; but the lb. Troy and lb. Apothecaries'=only 0·82286 lb. avoirdupois; while 175 lb. Troy and Apothecaries' = 144 lb. avoirdupois.

Apothecaries' Weight.

Scruple,	℈	= 20 Grains	...	= 20 grs.
Drachm,	ʒ	= 3 Scruples	...	= 60 ,,

Pound,	lb.	= 12 Ounces	...	=5,760 ,,

The avoirdupois oz. of 437½ grains, and the lb. of 7,000 grains, are the weights named in the British Pharmacopœia; drugs are purchased by avoirdupois, but compounded by Apothecaries' weight. The Apothecaries' oz. and lb. may now be considered obsolete.

Apothecaries' Fluid Measure.

		Marked.
60 Minims m. (drops)	= 1 Fluid Drachm	f ʒ
8 Drachms ...	= 1 Ounce	... f ℥

1 Drachm = 1 Tea-spoonful. 2 Drachms = 1 Dessert-spoonful. 2 Drachms = 1 Table-spoonful. 2 Ounces = 1 Wineglassful. 3 Ounces = 1 Teacupful.

Prescribing medicine by the spoon, glass or cupful, is unsafe, as all those vessels vary in size. Graduated glass measures may be purchased for a few Annas.

Hay and Straw.

Truss of Straw 36 lb. Truss of Old Hay, 56 lb. Truss of New Hay (to September 1st), 60 lb. Load, 36 Trusses—Straw, 11 cwt. 2 qr. 8 lb. Old Hay 18 cwt; New Hay, 19 cwt. qr. 4 lb.

Wool.

Clove	... cl.	=	7 lb.
Stone	... st.	=	2 Cloves 14 lb.

Pack	... pk.	=	240 lb.
Sack	... sk.	=	2 Weys, 13 qr.
Last	... la.	=	12 Sacks, 39 cwt.

Since the advent of SHODDY, some of the above weights have become nearly obsolete, although the terms are still in use with different values: thus 16 lb. = 1 st.; 28 lb. = 1 Tod; 20 lb. = 1 Score; 12 Score or 240 lb. = 1 Pack.

Worsted Yarn.

Wrap 80 yards; Hank=560 yards=7 Wraps: Counts or Numbers are the number of hanks in a lb.

Cotton Wool.

Bale variable in U K.: U. S. A. average 477 lb.; Egyptian, 719 lb.; East Indian 396 lb.; Brazilian, 220 lb.

Cotton Yarn.

Thread=1½ yards. Lea, or Skein, skn. = 120 Yards. Hank, hk. = 7 Skeins, or Leas. Spindle, spdl. = 18 Hanks.

Also same for Silk.

Counts=the number of Hanks in 1 lb. Bundle Hanks, either of 5 lb. or 10 lb. Reels of Cotton vary from 80 to 1,760 yards, but by the Act must be marked correctly. Bundles of Cotton are chiefly made up for export.

Liquid Measure.

The Gill contains 8·661 cubic inches.

The Pint contains 4 gills (20 ounces) or 34·660 inches.

Quart = 2 pints = 8 gills.

Gallon = 4 quarts = 32 gills.

Practically the only measures in use are gallons, quarts, pints, and gills, the others are merely nominal, e.g., the hogshead of 54 gallons, old measure, contains but 52 gallons, 1 quart, 1 pint, and 3·55 gills imperial measure; and of wine, six nominal quart bottles go to the gallon. Of wines imported in casks, the following are the usual measurements:—

Pipe of Port or Masden	...	=115 gallons.
„ Teneriffe ...	...	=100 „
„ Marsala ...	...	= 93 „
„ Madeira and Cape ...		= 92 „
Pipe of Sherry and Tent	...	=108 gallons.

Hogshead of Claret, 46; Port, 57; Sherry, 54; Madeira, 46 gallons.

In the United States, the old British or "Winchester" wine gallon of 231 cubic inches is in use; the names of measures are the same, but the capacity of the gill is only 7·21875 cubic inches.

Wheat and other cereals are commonly sold by weight, the bushel e being thus reckoned:—

Wheat, English. 63 lb. Foreign, 62 lb. Barley, English, 52 and 56 lb. French, 52½ lb. Mediterranean, 50 lb. Oats, English, 40 and 42 lb. Foreign, 38 and 40 lb. Rye and Maize, 60 lb. Buckwheat, 52 lb. to the bushel. Grain of all kinds is frequently sold by the stone of 14 lb. Coke, apples, potatoes, and some other goods are sold by heaped measures and the sack of three bushels; of coke, four bushels are usual.

FRUIT.—The Covent Garden bushel basket is 17¼ inches in diameter at top, 10 inches at the bottom, and is 10 inches deep. The smaller market baskets are said to vary in size according to the season and the supply.

80 Chains=320 Rods=880 Fathoms=1,760 Yards=5,280 Feet=63,360 Inches.

Although no longer sold by that measure, Calicos, &c., are sometimes said to be "Ell wide"—the English Ell being 1¼ yard, the Flemish Ell ¾ yard, and the French Ell 1½ yard.

The old Scottish Mile was 5,920 feet; ten Scots Miles being about equal to 11¼ Statute Miles. The Irish Mile is 6,720 feet; eleven Irish Miles being equal to 14 Statute Miles.

Square, Surface, or Land Measure.

The Square Foot contains 144 Sq. Inches.
Yard = 9 feet = 1,296 inches.
Rod, Pole, or Perch = 30¼ yds. = 272¼ ft.
Chain = 16 rods = 484 yds. = 4,356 ft.
Rood = 40 rods = 1,210 yds. = 10,890 ft.
Acre=4 roods = 160 rods = 4,840 yards.
Yard of Land = 30 acres = 120 roods.
Hide = 100 acres = 400 roods.
Mile = 640 acres = 2,560 roods = 6,400 chains = 102,400 rods, poles, or perches, or 3,097,600 square yards.
An Acre roughly stated has four equal sides of 69½ yards; accurate measurement gives each side 208·71 feet.
The sides of a square half-acre would be 147·581 feet, and of a square quarter-acre 104·355 feet.
The above Imperial land Measure is now employed as the standard in the United Kingdom, in Canada, Australia, and the Colonies generally, also in the United States; but occasionally some older measurements are referred to. Of these—
The Lancashire and Irish Acre, each of 160 perches, contains 7,840 sq. yards, equal to 1·619835 Statute. 1 Statute = 0·617347 Lancashire or Irish acre.
The Cheshire Acre of 160 perches, each containing 64 square yards = 10,240 square yards.
The Cunningham Acre, equal to 1·291322 Statute; or 1 Statute Acre is equal to 0·7744 Cunningham.
The Scottish Acre = 1·261183 Statute (nearly 6,104 square yards).

A Circular Acre is 235·504 feet, a Circular Rood, 117·752 feet in diameter. The Circumference of the Globe is about 24,855 miles, and the Diameter about 7,900 miles.

Electrical Measures.

For practical and commercial purposes, the chief units are the—
VOLT —Electromotive force = about 92·6% of that given by one Daniell's battery cell.
OHM.—Resistance = the resistance offered to the passage of a current of electricity by a thread of mercury 106 cm. long, and 1 mm. cross section at the temperature of melting ice.

746 watts = 1 horse-power.

In incandescent lamps of 16-candle power, (nominal) about four watts are required, per candle power to give good economical, results for domestic purposes.

One Board of Trade unit will keep a 16-candle, incandescent lamp alight for about 16 hours.

METRIC WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The Metric System is based upon the (assumed) length of the direct distance from the Equator to the North Pole. The ten millionth part of this distance, as calculated in 1795, was adopted by the French Government as the unit of length, and called a mètre. All other measurements are derived from this unit; the cube of the tenth part of the mètre is the unit of capacity, called a litre, and the weight of a litre of water, at a certain temperature is the unit of weight, called a kilogramme. The unit of land measurement is 10,000 sq. mètres, called a hectare. The above terms are now used in this country under the English names of meter, liter, kilogram, and hectare.

ROUGH COMPARISONS.

10 centimeters = 4 inches.		8 kilometers = 5 miles.
1 liter = 1¾ pints.		1 cubic meter = 220 gallons.
1 kilogram = 2¼ lbs.		1,000 kilograms = 1 ton.
1 sq. meter = 10 sq. feet.		1 hectare = 2½ acres.

The Metrical System is used in Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Norway, and some other countries, the unit of which is the Gramme=15·432 grains; the chief multiple of the Gramme is the Kilogramme=2·2046 lb.: in practical use this is found inconvenient for small purchases, and nearly all commodities are sold by the demi or half kilo. The Centner of 50 kilos=110¼ lb., very nearly represents the English cwt.; but heavy goods are sold by the Tonneau of 2204·621 lb., about 19 cwt. 77 lb., the Myriagramme being ignored.

In the United States and in Canada the cwt. is generally reckoned as 100 lb., and the ton of 20 cwt.=2,000 lbs.

In Russia the Pood of 36 lb. is the commercial weight: 62⅓ Poods=1 English ton.

TABLE FOR CONVERTING METRIC WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

For the use of this table the following explanation is necessary: The figures in heavier type represent either of the sets of two columns beside them, as the case may be, viz., with Hectares and Acres in the first set of columns, 1 Acre=0·405 Hectare, and vice versa 1 Hectare=2·471 Acres; similarly, with Kilogr. and lb. avoir. in the 5th set of columns. 100 Kilogr.=220·46 lb. avoir. and 100 lb avoir.=45·359 Kilogr., and so on:—

BRITISH INDIAN WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

The Unit of the British Indian Ponderary System is called the Tola. It weighs 180 grains English Troy Weight, as does the Rupee. From it upwards are derived the heavy weights, viz., Chittack, Seer and Maund; and by its sub-division, the small or jewellers' weights called Mashas, Ruttees and Dháns.

1 Dhán or grain	...	=	$\frac{15}{32}$ grain Troy	=	$\frac{4}{175}$ dr.	Avoir.
4 Dhans	=	1 Rutte	= $1\frac{7}{8}$,,	=	$\frac{17}{175}$	,,
8 Ruttees	=	1 Masha	= 15 ,,	=	$\frac{96}{175}$	,,
2 Mashas	=	1 Tola	= 7 dwt. 12 ,,	=	$6\frac{102}{175}$	,,
15 Tolas	=	1 Chittack	= 1 oz. 17½ dwt. Troy	=	$2\frac{2}{35}$ oz.	,,
16 Chittacks	=	1 Seer	= 2¼ lbs. Troy	=	$2\frac{2}{35}$ lbs.	,,
40 Seers	=	1 Mun	= 100 lbs. Troy	=	$82\frac{2}{7}$,,	,,

To Convert Indian Weight into Avoirdupois.

Multiply the weight in Seers by 72, and divide by 35; the result will be the weight in lbs. Avoirdupois; or multiply the weight in maunds by 36, and divide by 49 the result will be the weight in cwts. Avoirdupois.

To Convert Avoirdupois Weight into Indian Weight.

Multiply the weight in lbs. Avoirdupois by 35, and divide by 72; or multiply the weight in cwts by 49, and divide by 36; the result will be the weight; in the former, in Seers in the latter, in Maunds.

A Ton is equal to 27·222 Maunds, or 27¼ Maunds nearly.

Bazar Weight.—16 chittacks are one seer, or 2 lb. 0 oz. 13 drs.; and 40 seers, 1 maund, or 82 lbs. 2 ozs. 3 drs. 100 Bazar maunds = 00 Factory; and 1¼ Factory maunds = 1 cwt.

Factory Weight. - 16 chittacks are 1 seer, or 1 lb. 13 ozs. 14 drs.; and 40 seers, 1 maund or 74 lbs. 10 ozs. 11 drs. The Indian maund = $82\frac{2}{7}$ lb. Avoirdupois Weight.

Bengal Bazar Weight.

Sicki or Quarter Rupee make		1 Kaucha.
4 Kauchas	... ,,	1 Chittack.
4 Chittacks, or 20 Tolas	... ,,	1 Powah.
4 Powahs	... ,,	1 Seer.
5 Seers	... ,,	1 Pusseree.
Pusserees, or 40 Seers	... ,,	1 Maund.

To reduce Bazar weight into Factory weight add 1-10th.

To reduce Bazar weight into Cwts., add 1-10th, and deduct 1-3rd of that sum, the remainder will be Cwt.

To reduce Factory Maunds into Tons, divide by 30, and the quotient will be the answer.

INDIAN CLOTH MEASURE.

3 Jobs makes 1 Ungli ... say = ¾ Inch.
3 Unglis „ 1 Girah ... „ = 2¼ Inches.
8 Girahs make 1 Hath ... say = 18 Inches.
2 Haths „ 1 Guz ... „ = 1 Yard.

N.B.—The Guz varies in different localities from 24 to 36 Inches.

There appears to be no Indian measures of capacity for such Dry and Liquid goods as are sold by weight. Wherever, for the sake of convenience, measures are employed, they are intended to represent some specific weight of a Seer, Chittack, &c.

LINEAL MEASURE.

Notwithstanding that the cubit or human forearm is the basis or unit in Oriental and Western countries, there is no fixed standard established in India.

In Bengal the measure mostly used is the following:—

1 Hath (Cubit)= 18 Inches; 4 Haths= 1 Danda or= 2 Yards; 2,000 Dandas= 1 Coss.

The Coss or Bengal mile is equal to 1 mile, 1 furlong, 3 poles, 3¾ yards English.

The Indian Imperial Coss is equal to 2¼ miles nearly.

NOTE.—In the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh the average distance is about 2 miles, but it differs in almost every province in the country. In Agra and Muttra, the coss is about 1¾ miles; towards the Himalayas, the coss is a little more than a mile; in Bundlekhund, it is three times as long as in other parts and is called a Pucca coss; while in the Doab it is the Gow coss, or as far as the lowing of a cow can be heard at the dead of night.

BENGAL SQUARE OR LAND MEASURE.

There is, however, no fixed standard Beegah; almost every district has its own local measurement.

CORRESPONDENCE DEPARTMENTS, INDIA OFFICE, WHITEHALL, S.W.

The title in this instance is sufficiently informative. The departments form a clearing house, as it may be called, for the whole of the correspondence of the highest branches of the Indian Government; and the public will appreciate that division whereby correspondence which has relation to either of the indicated heads, is under the survey of a chief who is expert in that particular province of public life. In a less well-ordered arrangement, it might easily happen that letters having certain reference to military matters, might stray into the office of one whose speciality was administration of Public Works. Such confusion is avoided. The most interesting, perhaps, but naturally enough the least obtruded, department, is that called Political and Secret, political meaning, political in the Indian sense, that is dealing with the relation of India to other States.

Controller of Finance.- H. F. Howard, C.S.I., C.I.E.

SECRETARIES.

ACCOUNTANT-GENERAL'S DEPT., INDIA OFFICE, WHITEHALL, S.W.

This department may be described in a comprehensive word as the Treasury. It is the State's paying department. It is executive purely. It makes no payments, save on express authority received from other departments.

Accountant-General and Director of Funds Sidney Turner, F.I.A. Chief Accountant S. George Smith. Deputy Ch Acctt J.W. Clough.

INSPECTOR OF MILITARY EQUIPMENT AND CLOTHING.

The head of this department deals with such matters as adjustments between this office and the War Office at home. When a regiment arrives in England from India it brings with it a good deal which has been paid for by India, and the use of which may be continued in this country for a considerable time, representing an important economy to the Home Government. The chief of this office, therefore, has it incumbent upon him to see that substantial justice is brought about as between the two administrations.

Asst. Inspector of Military Equipment and Clothing.—W. J. Bowden.

INDIA AUDIT OFFICE, WHITEHALL, S.W.

This department is sometimes humorously spoken of as the "bête noire" of all other departments. Towards them it stands in the relation of the "devil's advocate" of ecclesiastical regulation and practice. Its necessary duty is to find all the fault it possibly can.

Auditor.—W. A. Sturdy. Asst. to Auditor.—E. L. Ball.

REGISTRY AND RECORD DEPARTMENT, INDIA OFFICE. WHITEHALL, S.W.

The duties of this department are manifold. It receives and distributes official correspondence (including that from India), copies and despatches the answers prepared in the various departments. It superintends the receipt and despatch of the Indian mails, the distribution and sale of official publications and maps, and the production of all parliamentary papers relating to India. It also provides books and stationery, and looks after printing and binding. And it is also responsible for the safe custody of official records, which comprise many thousands of volumes, reaching back to the foundation of he East India Company in 1600.

Registrar and Superintendent of Records.—W. Foster, C.I.E. Asst. Registrar.—H. Mitchell.

INDIA OFFICE LIBRARY, WHITEHALL S.W.

The Library (founded in 1801) serves for departmental and general reference. The former gives a fairly exclusive provision of works, descriptive, historical, political, scientific, etc., originated by European relations with India, and adjacent countries. But a place is found also for large, and in many cases unrivalled, collections of Oriental manuscripts (Sanskrit, Arabic, Persian, Tamil, Hindustani, &c.), and for the whole range of philological literature relating to their study. There is a reading room, where any member of the public may, upon obtaining a ticket, consult books and MSS.

Librarian.—Fredk. W. Thomas, M.A. (Hon.) PH.D. (Munich). Asst. Librarian.—C. A. Storey.
Sub Librarian.—J. W. Smallwood, M. A.

GOVERNMENT DIRECTOR OF INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANIES, WHITEHALL, S.W.

In either case, the sender or his messenger must affix the stamps himself, postal officials being strictly forbidden to affix them. Should an official label be used, it must be pasted to the parcel: and if the sender does not do this himself, he is recommended to see it done in his presence before he leaves the Post Office. It is advisable that the postage stamps should always be affixed to an official label. Every parcel (including service parcels) intended for transmission by post must be presented at the window, of the post office. Any parcel found in a letter-box will be treated and charged as a registered parcel.

No such article will be accepted for registration if it is so small or so covered with writing or sealing wax on the address-side, or otherwise made up in such a manner, as to render it impracticable to affix to the article the prescribed official labels of the Post Office.

Note.—The sender of a postal article is recommended to write his name and address on the cover in the lover left-hand corner, so that the postal article, in case of non-delivery, may be returned to him unopened and without delay.

FOREIGN PASSPORTS.

NEW REGULATIONS.

RULES GOVERNING THE ISSUE OF PASSPORTS AND VISAS.

British Indian passports are only issued to British subjects and to British-protected persons. Once issued they will be regarded for all ordinary purposes as constituting sufficient proof of the national status of their holders.

The primary object of a passport is to constitute official proof of the national status and identity of its holder, for purposes either of travel or of residence abroad. Full particulars of such national status should be clearly stated in the space provided for that purpose, and the description of the holder should be as full and accurate as possible.

Married women who are British subjects derive their British nationality from that of their husbands, irrespective of the nationality they possessed before marriage. In every case, therefore, full particulars of the husband's (or late husband's) nationality should be given.

In all cases where a passport is issued to a British Protected person, as distinct from a British subject, the fact that the holder is a British-protected person should be clearly and conspicuously stated, followed by particulars of the State or territory of which he is a native, e.g:—"British-protected person, native of the Indian State of Board."

All persons applying for British Indian passports are required to complete a declaration on form A., which can be obtained from all Collectors and the Secretary to Government Law Department Fort St. George.

The declaration, including the personal description, must be completed by the applicant in his or her own handwriting and signed in the spaces, provided. Provision is made for the inclusion in the declaration of the wife of the applicant and his minor children under the age of 16, if they are accompanying him or residing with him abroad, and if it is desired that they should be included in his passport. Minor children under 16 may also be included, on similar conditions, in the passport of their mother, if she holds a separate passport, or in the passport of some other responsible person officially in charge of them. All other persons must apply for separate passports, and fill in separate declarations.

In the case of persons deriving their British nationality from a husband, father, or paternal grandfather born within His Majesty's Dominions, the particulars of the place and date of birth of such husband, father, or paternal grandfather must be given in the body of the declaration, as well as those of the applicant's own place and date of birth. The latter particulars only, however, will appear on the passport itself.

Wives (including divorced wives) and widows of British subjects must in all cases give their own maiden surname, and, if twice married, the surname of their former husband also.

Where application is made for a joint passport to including husband and wife, the body of the application must be completed and signed by the husband, who must state that he is accompanied by by his wife, as indicated in the margin of the form. The wife must complete and sign her personal description, giving her maiden surname She must also give the place and date of her own birth but need not repeat the particulars of the date and place of her husband's birth, since these already appear on the form.

In the case of minor children under the age of 16 accompanying their parents or guardians, the names ages and sexes should be given in the space provided at the bottom of the margin of the form. It must however, be clearly understood that the fact of a minor child having been included in British Indian passport cannot in itself be claimed as evidence that the child is a British subject in contemplation of British law.

For children under the age of 16 who require separate passports a declaration is required from their parent or guardian, on form B As the separate passport so issued will constitute permanent evidence of the child's British nationality, no less care should be taken in verifying the British nationality of the child concerned than in verifying that of an adult.

In the case of naturalised British subjects, or of persons deriving their British nationality from the naturalization of their husband or father, full particulars of the certificate of naturalization should be given in the body of the form, i. e, the place and date of its issue, and its serial number. In the case of persons who were themselves naturalised as British subjects, the production of the certificate itself should always be insisted on, and should the applicant be unable to produce it the case should be referred to the Government of India with a full statement of the circumstances which render the production of the certificate impossible. In the case of persons deriving their British nationality from the naturalization of their husband, father or mother, the production of the certificate, or, failing that, of an official copy of it, should be insisted on as far as possible; but if the issuing officer is satisfied as to the bona fides of the applicant and considers that special circumstances make the production of the certificate or of an official copy of it genuinely impossible, he may, in his discretion, accept in lieu of it a statutory declaration from the applicant deposing to the necessary facts.

The subsidiary declaration or recommendation shown below the declaration to be made by the applicant must be completed and signed by a Political officer, Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, Police officer not below the rank of Superintendent, or Notary Public resident in India. If there should be no such person in a position to make the subsidiary declaration at the place where the issuing officer resides, or if the issuing officer is satisfied from his own knowledge that the applicant is unquestionably a fit and proper person to be furnished with a passport, he may, in the exercise of his discretion, accept the recommendation of some other responsible British subject, or dispense with it altogether, noting on the form his reason for so doing. Should any of the statements contained in the declaration prove to be false, more particularly in regard to the nationality of the applicant, the consequences to both the applicant and the person recommending him may be serious.

The recommendation is intended to serve as a verification of the facts stated by the applicant, and of his identity. The particulars of any additional documents produced, such as birth or marriage certificates, should be recorded in detail.

To the completed form of application must be attached duplicate unmounted photographs (size approximately two and three-quarters by two inches) of the applicant, and, if she is included in the application, of his wife. One copy of each photograph should be certified on the back by the person who recommends the application in the following terms:—

"I certify this to be a correct photograph of

"(Signed)"

"(Place and date)"

The fee for the issue of a passport is Rs. 3

A passport is valid for two years from the date of issue, and is renewable for four further periods of two years. unless all available space on it is covered. in which case a new passport must be obtained. When there is no further space available for endorsement or visas a new passport should be issued British subjects and British-protected persons applying for the renewal of their passports should be required to complete the form of application (Form "E"). The fee for the renewal of a passport is Rs. 1—8—0 for each period of two years for which the passport is renewed.

VISAS FOR ALIENS.

British visas for aliens are of two types :—

(a) The transit visa, good for one or more direct journeys through British territory undertaken for the sole purpose of reaching the territory of another State.

(b) The non-transit visa, good for any number of journeys to British territory for any legitimate purpose during the period of its validity.

Both visas are valid for one year unless their validity is specially limited to a shorter period, except that in the case of the transit visa, the period of its validity cannot exceed that of the validity of the visa of the country of ultimate destination.

SECTION III.

MADRAS PRESIDENCY.

The territory included within the Presidency of Fort St. George, or the Madras Presidency, is the southernmost of the Indian provinces. The coast line extends on the east of the peninsula from Orissa in Bengal to Cape Comorin. On the west the narrow strip of country formed by the Native States of Travancore and Cochin gives the coast line from Cape Comorin as far as the town of Cochin. After that Madras territory again forms the coast line until the Bombay Presidency is reached at the northern extremity of the South Canara district. In the centre of the peninsula thus enclosed, are the Nagpore country and Berar, the territories of the Nizam, known generally as the Deccan, and the province of Mysore; but all the country south and east of Mysore belongs to the Madras Presidency.

The Presidency occupies an area of 142,260 square miles; excluding the area occupied by five Indian States.

The Presidency has a coast line of about 1,700 miles, and consequently there is a large area of country but little elevated above the level of the sea. Mountain ranges run northward from Cape Comorin along the Western Coast, attaining an elevation in some parts of from 4,000 to nearly 9,000 feet. Ranges of hills follow also the general line of the East Coast; but these, as a rule, are of lower elevation than the Western Ghauts. The Anaimudi mountain in the Anamalai range is now known to be the highest in Southern India, its summit being 8837 feet above the level of the sea. The drainage of the peninsula is for the most part from west to east into the Bay of Bengal, the area of country drained by rivers running westward being only the narrow strip of territory between the Western Ghauts and the sea. As a rule the country slopes gradually from the eastern base of the western mountain chain down to the Coromandel Coast, while the fall is sudden and precipitous on the western side of the mountains. The centre of the peninsula consists generally of undulating tablelands from 1,000 to 3,000 feet above the level of the sea.

The peculiar physical geography of the peninsula of India, with a huge mountain chain running from north to south along its western boundary, is of importance in regard to climate and the productions of the various districts. These hills have the effect of arresting the lower strata of rain clouds brought up from the Indian Ocean by the periodical winds of the south-west monsoon, and of causing excessive rain precipitation on the narrow strip of coast line on the western side of the peninsula. Where the mountain range is of great height, as between Malabar and Coimbatore, the rain clouds are almost entirely diverted from the districts immediately below the mountains on the eastern side, and while the annual rainfall on the western side may be 150 inches, not more than 20 inches will be registered on the eastern side, immediately within the influence of the mountain ranges. Where the mountain chain is of lower elevation, the rain clouds pass over the hills, and rain is precipitated in uncertain and varying amount over the peninsula to the east of the Western Ghauts; but, except in the northern districts, where the rainy season approximates to that of Bengal, the heaviest rainfall of the southern portion of the eastern division of the peninsula occurs during the period of the north-east monsoon. During the continuance of this monsoon, the western ranges of mountains have a similar effect in arresting the rain clouds, so that at the season of the year when the Carnatic is deluged by heavy rain, the Western Coast districts enjoy fine clear weather.

To the physical barrier of the Western Ghauts must be attributed, not only the vast differences of climate, but also those in the nature of the productions, in the eastern and western divisions of the peninsula. In the former the uncertainty and capricious character of the rainfall has taught the cultivators of the soil the necessity of making provision for the storage of water for irrigation purposes, and the existence of innumerable tanks or reservoirs, scattered all over the country, testify to the fact that, from periods of the remotest antiquity, the inhabitants of the tracts of country, which receive an irregular rainfall have exercised great ingenuity and readiness of resource in the construction of public works for the artificial irrigation of the soil. On the western side of the mountains, however, the necessity for such works has never arisen. There the periodical rains fall with great regularity as to time and quantity, and the earth yields her fruits so abundantly that, although in certain exceptional years there may be partial failures of crops, absolute famine, as a result of bad seasons, is unknown. Only three of the 26 districts of which the Madras Presidency is composed lie within the influence of the never-failing rains of the south-west monsoon. In there maining 28 districts nature demands the assistance of art in the collection, storage, and distribution of the condensed moisture of the heavens. In some of these 28 districts, however, as in the northern coast area, the periodic rains fall more regularly than in others, while in several of them the rivers running eastward, swelled by the south-west monsoon rains, are utilized in the fertilisation of districts in which the natural moisture is defective.

The chief staples of the Presidency are rice, cholum (a kind of maise), cumboo (a kind of millet), ragi, and varagu amongst food-grains; gingelly amongst oil-seeds; and chillies, tobacco, sugar-cane, plantains, and betel leaf amongst garden crops. Cotton, as a special crop, is cultivated to an extent almost equalling that of ragi. The trees most grown for their fruits are cocoanuts, areca-nut, jack, tamarind, and mango. Rice, as might be expected, is produced in largest quantities in the alluvial and highly-irrigated districts of Tanjore, Godavari, Kistna and Guntur on the East Coast, and in Malabar and Canara on the West Coast, where the rainfall is so abundant as to render irrigation by artificial means almost unnecessary. Cholum is most abundant in the tableland districts of Bellary and Kurnool, while cumboo and ragi are most extensively grown in the other inland, but less elevated, districts, such as Salem and Coimbatore. Cocoanut palms flourish most luxuriantly on the banks of the estuaries and backwaters or salt-water lagoons of the western districts of Malabar and Canara and areca-nut palms in the valleys intersecting the lower slopes of the Western Ghauts.

Within the Madras Presidency there are six well-defined linguistic boundaries. In the northernmost district of Ganjam is included a portion of the Ooriya-speaking population. The Telugu language is commonly spoken by the people of the Northern Circars, and in a portion of the Nizam's country, Kurnool, Cuddapah, part of North Arcot, Nellore and some parts of Bellary. Tamil is the common language of the districts from a few miles north of Madras to the extreme south of the eastern division of the peninsula. Malayalam is the language of the Native States of Travancore, Cochin, and the Malabar district. Tulu is spoken in a limited portion of the South Canara district; and Canarese in certain portions of the Bellary, Coimbatore, Salem, and South Canara districts. Besides these six Dravidian languages, the hill tribes of certain districts have dialects of their own, also of a Dravidian type. From time to time colonies of Telugu and Canarese-speaking people have found their way down to the southern or Tamil country. In some cases they have been invited to settle as cultivators in localities where waste lands were available. In others they followed probably in the train of invading armies. In the same way people from the Mahratta country have settled in the south, and in all the large towns there are colonies of silk-weavers from Gujerat, who still speak a language of their own amongst themselves. Along the border lines of the prevailing languages two or more languages are indifferently spoken by the people. There is no instance of the Tamil people pushing their colonies up towards the north. The migrations appear to have been always from north to south. In the large military cantonments of Secunderabad and Bangalore there are Tamil-speaking populations, but these people have settled as campfollowers.

The earliest inhabitants of Southern India of whom any traces now remain were the prehistoric builders of the cairns, barrows, kistvaens, and dolmens found in many districts; the makers of the rude stone weapons discovered in considerable quantities on the tops of the rocky hills of the Deccan; and the authors of the more finished utensils and implements now in course of excavation at the wonderful burial-grounds which have recently been discovered in Adichanallur and other places in Tinnevelly. Except that they may be declared to have passed from a Palæolithic, through a Neolithic, to an Iron age, little is known or can be conjectured regarding these ancient peoples. Presumably they were of the stock named Dravidian, which is distinguished from more northern ethnic families by its comparatively low stature, its dark skin, its high nasal index, and its use of the languages, so prominent in the Presidency, known as the Dravidian family.

The great gulf which yawns between them and the earliest historical data is vaguely bridged by legends and traditions, such as the story of Rama's expedition through the Deccan and across Adam's Bridge to Ceylon in quest of his wife Sita (whom Ravana, the ten-headed king of that island, had carried off), or the many local puranas which remain in the keeping of the temple priests. Some of these legends have been held to refer to the great immigration of conquerors and settlers from Northern India which undoubtedly took place at an early period; but they are scarcely serious history, and not until the Muhammadans appear upon the scene is the literature of the country of any real value to the analyst.

The gap is filled to some extent by the many inscriptions on stone which record gifts to temples, by coins and by grants of by-gone dynasties engraved on copper. The transcription and examination of these is now proceeding under expert supervision and in a systematic fashion, but the work has not yet proceeded far enough to enable any final account to be written of the early fortunes of the South of India.

The earliest historical evidence is that furnished by the edicts of the Buddhist Emperor Asoka which have been discovered at Jaugada in Ganjam and at a village in Mysore close to the border of Bellary. These perhaps go to show that about 250 B. C. at least the northern half of the Presidency formed part of the Mauryan dominions.

The south of it was divided between the Pandyas of Madura, who governed the extreme south; the Cholas, who held the country north and east of them; and the Cheras (Keralas), who ruled the West Coast. At some period subsequent to Asoka, the dynasty of the Pallavas of Conjeeveram rose into prominence and extended its sway along the east coast as far north as Orissa.

In the north, Mauryans were succeeded by the Andhras. They were Buddhists, and by them were erected the splendid marble stupa at Amaravati and the other Buddhist buildings of which the ruins occur in Kistna and Guntur Districts. Their curious leaden coins are still found in some numbers in those parts. About the fifth century after Christ the Chalukyas, who were immigrants from more northern parts, began to grow in importance in the Western Deccan. In the seventh century they divided into two branches, a Western and an Eastern. The latter conquered the Pallava kings of the Vengi country—the tract between the Kistna and Godavari rivers and south of Kalinga and settled in that locality, while the former remained in its original home.

Alongside it, in the south-west of the Deccan and the north of Mysore, the Kadambas, whose capital was at Bhavanasi in North Canara, now rose to power. They defeated the Pallavas of Conjeeveram and continually harassed the Western Chalukyas.

The latter were also vigorously opposed by the Rastrakutas of Malkhed in the present Nizam's Dominions, who eventually overthrew them and were supreme in the Western Deccan from about A. D. 750 to 950.

At the end of this period the Western Chalukyas once more rose to prominence and maintained their position until A. D. 1189, when they were finally overthrown by two of their own feudatories, the Yadavas of Deogiri and the Hoysalas of Dorasamudra, the modern Helebid in Mysore.

Meanwhile, in the south and the east, the Cholas of Tanjore were rapidly extending their boundaries. By 999 they acquired by conquest the whole of the coast possessions of the Eastern Chalukyas. They had already subverted both the Pallavas and the Pandyas, annexing the dominions of the former and controlling the destinies of the latter. These events form the first great landmark in the history of Southern India. But the Chola expansion westwards was checked by the Hoysalas, and towards the end of the twelfth century their territory in the north was taken from them by the Ganapathis of Warrangal (Orangal).

Thus at the end of the thirteenth century the three greatest dynasties of Southern India were the Hoysalas, the Cholas, and the Pandyas. At the beginning of the 14th century, however, a new power—the Mussulmans of Delhi—appeared suddenly upon the scene. In 1303 the ruling king of the Khilji dynasty of Delhi sent his first expedition into the Deccan; and seven years later, a date which makes the second landmark in the history of Southern India, the armies of his general, Malik Kafur, swept like a torrent down the peninsula. The Yadavas, Hoysalas, Ganapathis, Cholas, and Pandyas were in turn defeated and suppressed. Anarchy followed over the whole south—Mussulman Governors, representatives of the old ruling families, and local chiefs struggling for supremacy, until out of the confusion rose the kingdom of Vijayanagar, which from its capital at Hampi in the Bellary District for the next two centuries and a half checked the southward expansion of Muhammadan power.

The rise of this dynasty was dramatically rapid. The several Hindu chieftains everywhere admitted its sovereignty, the more willingly in that the only alternative was a despotism of Mussulmans; and from chiefs its rulers quickly grew into kings, and from kings into emperor. Within a century and a half from the foundation of the capital at Vijayanagar they governed the whole of the peninsula from the Kistna to Cape Comorin. The empire reached the height of its power under Krishna Deva (1509-1530), the greatest of monarchs, contemporary with Henry VIII of England.

The chief opponents of Vijayanagar had been the Sultans of the Bhamini dynasty, founded in 1347 by a rebellious subordinate of Delhi, whose capital was at Gulbarga in what is now the Nizam's Dominions. This line crumbled to pieces at the end of the fifteenth century and was followed by five separate Mussulman kingdoms. For many years the mutual jealousies and animosities of these rendered it easy for the Vijayanagar kings to play off one of them against the other; but at length they combined, and in 1565 at the great battle of Talikota, the third historical landmark, they utterly defeated the Hindu forces and followed up their victory by razing the city of Vijayanagar to the ground and forcing its king to flee. The empire never recovered from the blow. One by one its local governors threw off their allegiance, and established themselves as independent rulers, and Southern India passed through a second period of anarchy, during which all local powers fell in many places into the hands of small chieftains called Naiks or Poligars, who usually harassed their subjects mercilessly.

The only governors of the fallen empire who established themselves in any permanency were the Naiks of Madura, and the suzerainty of the rest of the country fell gradually into the hands of the Sultans of Bijapur and Golconda. The former marched upon the country directly south of the Tungabhadra river and the latter took a line further to the eastward. By the middle of the seventeenth century the Bijapur Sultans had possessed themselves of most of the Carnatic which lay above the Ghats and of much territory below.

It was under this dynasty that the Marathas first came into prominence. Serving first as military vassals, they eventually, in 1646, revolted openly against them and under the famous Sivaji established their independence.

In 1686 Aurangzeb, the Mughal emperor of Delhi, marched south to reduce Bijapur and Golconda, and to crush the growing power of the Marathas. He took Bijapur in that year and Golconda in the next, and the territories which had been won by these two kingdoms from the Hindus thus became a portion of the Mughal empire. But with the Marathas he was less successful. He seized Sivaji's son, Sambhaji, and put him to death in 1689; but the power of the race increased rather than declined, and they levied tribute throughout the Deccan and in other parts of the South as well, and do not disappear from Madras history until the beginning of the nineteenth century.

In 1724 Asaf Jah, the viceroy whom the Mughal emperor had appointed to govern his conquests in the South and who bore the title of Nizam-ul-mulk, threw off all real allegiance to his suzerain and made himself virtually independent. He and his successors are known in history as the Nizams or Subahdars of the Deccan; and their chief subordinate in the South was the Nawab of the Carnatic, otherwise called the Nawab of Arcot.

Meanwhile the Hindu kingdom of Mysore, which had arisen from small beginnings on the ruins of the Vijianagar empire, had become more and more powerful, owing largely to the exploits of a soldier of fortune in its army named Haidar Ali. By methods which were none too scrupulous, he rapidly gained supreme authority in the kingdom, and in 1761 he usurped its throne and began with more energy than ever to extend its possessions.

In the middle of the eighteenth century, therefore, the native powers in the South which had to be reckoned with were the Mussulmans under the Nizam, Mysore under Haidar Ali, and the Marathas. Meanwhile, however, various European powers had begun to establish a footing within its limits.

The Portuguese were the first nation to form a settlement there. By the beginning of the sixteenth century they had occupied Calicut and Goa on the West Coast. Vasco de Gama, the pioneer of maritime adventure, had visited that part of the country as early as 1498. For a century they prospered; but they were feebly supported at home after the union of Portugal with Spain, and eventually fell before the progress of the Dutch.

From the beginning of the seventeenth century the Dutch, who had long been powerful in the Eastern Archipelago, settled at Pulicat, Sadras, and other places along the East and West Coasts. They rapidly ousted the Portuguese; but their ideas were commercial rather than imperial, the remoteness of their headquarters at Batavia hampered them, and they soon dropped out of the race.

Another European nation attracted by the wealth of the East was the French. Their original settlement had been in Madagascar. This they abandoned in 1672 in favour of Mauritius and Bourbon. Later they came on to India; and in 1674 Francois Martin founded and fortified the town of Pondicherry, which has since been the French headquarters in the peninsula. In 1742 the famous Dupleix succeeded to the governorship of the place, and rendered it the one European settlement in the South which was capable of offering any real resistance to the English East India Company.

The earliest settlements of the English within the Presidency were at Nizampatam and Masulipatam, at which places Captain Hippon of the ship Globe landed in 1611 and founded factories. Five years later, settlements were planted on the West Coast at Cranganur and Calicut by the permission of the Zamorin. In 1619 another settlement was effected at Pulicat, but the jealousies of the Dutch compelled its abandonment. In 1625, two years after the massacre of the English by the Dutch at Amboyna, the Company's agents at Bantam in Java despatched a vessel to Armagon in the present Nellore District and set up a small trading establishment there.

In 1639, owing partly to the annoyances caused to the Company's officers at Masulipatam by the subordinates of the Sultan of Golconda, within whose territories that place lay, and partly to the desire to possess a factory nearer to the real centres of the weaving and dyeing industries of the country, Francis Day, the chief official of Armagon, sought for and obtained through a subordinate of the last representative of the old Vijayanagar dynasty, who was then living at Chandragiri in North Arcot, the grant of the land on which Fort St. George now stands. A small fort was at once erected, and two years later the place became the Company's headquarters on the Coromandel Coast. In 1653 Fort St. George was raised to the rank of a Presidency, independent of Bantam, and in 1658 the factories in Bengal were placed under its orders. In 1690 the Company purchased from the Mahratas the land on which Fort St. David, near Cuddalore, now stands; and at the end of the century there were also English factories within the present limits of the Madras Presidency at Porto Novo, Madapollam, Vizagapatam, Anjengo, Tellicherry and Calicut.

Up to 1740 the Company's agents had managed to keep themselves clear of the wars between the various native governments which were going on around them, and free from serious trouble with the other Europeans who had stations in the South. But in 1741 the War of the Austrian Succession lit the first flame of a conflict between them and the French, which lasted until the capture of Pondicherry in 1761, followed by the Peace of Paris in 1763.

The first notable event in this contest was the capture of Madras by La Bourdonnais in 1746. Under the orders of Dupleix, who was then in command of the French possessions, the Governor and the chief merchants were taken prisoners to Pondicherry. Fort St. David became for the time the Company's headquarters in the South. Madras was, however, restored to the English under the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle in 1749, and the Company set themselves vigorously to work to render it more defensible than it had been at the time of the French attack.

Peace being declared between the two nations, the forces which each of them had collected in the South engaged on opposite sides in the struggles between the native powers. Each espoused the cause of a different claimant for the Nawabship of the Carnatic, and each supported its own candidate for the office of Nizam of the Deccan. The stirring details of the severe conflicts which ensued fill many pages in the histories of the period, and concern themselves with the exploits of many Englishmen—Clive and Eyre Coote among the number—whose names will ever be famous.

In 1757 news reached India that war had again broken out in Europe between England and France and the forces of the two nations in the South were once more at each other's throats. The advantage at first lay with the French. They captured successively the English Forts of Vizagapatam, Fort St. David and Devicottai (which last had been granted to the Company by the Mahratas of Tanjore) and in 1758 they besieged Madras. Here, however, they were unsuccessful and eventually withdrew and meanwhile Col. Ford, who had been despatched by Clive from Bengal to the Northern Circars, had signally defeated them at Condore and captured Masulipatam. This victory resulted in the cession to the Company of a considerable tract round about the latter town which led eventually, after many vicissitudes, to the whole of the Northern Circars being granted to the British by the Mughal emperor in 1765. Further south the struggle culminated in the battle of Wandiwash, in which Eyre Coote utterly routed the French under Lally. Gingee, Arcot, and other minor French settlements fell in quick succession; and in May, 1760, the English were in a position to attack Pondicherry itself. Lally called in the help of Haidar Ali of Mysore, but events in his own territory prevented the latter from taking any important part in the contest. Pondicherry surrendered in January, 1761. With the other French possessions, it was restored by the Peace of Paris in 1763; but the power of the French in Southern India was never again formidable, and it was thus in the Madras Presidency that the question was decided which of the European nations should be supreme in India.

We have now reached the middle of the 18th century, when, as has been said, the native powers which had to be reckoned with were the Mussulmans under the Nizam of the Deccan and the Nawab of the Carnatic, Mysore under Haidar Ali, and the Mahratas. The only European force of any consequence was that of the English, and between these four the struggle for the possession of the peninsula now lay. The Nizam and the Mahrata invited the English to assist them in clipping the wings of Haidar who was encroaching upon their territories. Haidar however, bought off both Mussulmans and Mahratas, and then made a descent upon the English possessions in the Carnatic. Fighting followed on both coasts of the Peninsula; but the operations were indecisive and peace was eventually concluded in 1769 by a treaty based on mutual restitution of conquests.

In 1780 broke out the next war with Haidar, who was again befriended by both the Mussulmans and the Mahratas. He descended upon the plains of the Carnatic in July of that year, burning crops and devastating villages, so that a cordon of blackened desert was formed all round the town of Madras, from Pulicat on the north to Pondicherry on the south and extending 50 miles inland.

Warren Hastings, then Governor-General of Bengal, despatched Sir Eyre Coote to Madras with reinforcements. His ability soon caused the tide of fortune to return; but age had sapped his old energy and it was not until after three years of severe fighting in every part of the peninsula that peace was at length made in 1784. As before, the basis of the treaty was a mutual restoration of conquests. Haidar Ali had died during the operations in 1782, and was succeeded by his son, Tippu Sultan, a man in every way his inferior.

Six years later war once more ensued with Mysore, Tippu having provoked hostilities by raiding the native state of Travancore, which was in alliance with the British. Lord Cornwallis, the Governor General, commanded the forces in the field in person, and this time the British were assisted by the Nizam and the Mahratas. After two years' fighting, Seringapatam, the Mysore capital, was besieged; and thereupon Tippu, in 1792, agreed to cede to the allies one half of his territories, and to pay an indemnity of three crores and fifty lakhs of rupees. The British share of the territory thus ceded included the country round Dindigul and the districts of Salem and Malabar.

Tippu then began to intrigue to draw to his own side the allies of the British, and even sent an embassy to Mauritius to invoke the aid of the French. Lord Mornington, now Governor-General, realised the danger to British supremacy in India which such action involved, and came south to deal with the situation. The Nizam and the Marathas again joined the British. Tippu, after a feeble resistance in the field, retired to Seringapatam. The fortress was stormed on May 4th, 1799, and Tippu's body was found among the slain. A representative of the Hindu dynasty, whose rights had been usurped by Haidar in 1761, was placed upon the throne of Mysore proper, and the rest of Tippu's territories were divided between the allies. The share of the British included Canara, Coimbatore, and Wynaad.

In the same year, 1799, the Mahrata Raja of the principality at Tanjore, in return for aid received in gaining the throne, executed a treaty resigning the administration of his kingdom to the Company in consideration of an annual payment. In 1800 the Nizam ceded to the Company, in return for a subsidiary force to be established in his dominions, all the territories he had acquired from Mysore at the partitions of 1792 and 1799. These tracts included the present districts of Bellary, Anantapur, Cuddapah, and part of Kurnool, which are still known as the "Ceded Districts." When Seringapatam fell in 1799 a treasonable correspondence had been discovered between Tippu and the Nawab of the Carnatic, who was nominally the ally of the Company. In consequence, after many negotiations, a treaty was concluded with the Nawab in 1801, under which he resigned the government of his country to the Company, but retained the titular dignity and received a considerable stipend. The existing representative of the family bears the title of Prince of Arcot and has the position of the first native nobleman of Madras.

The Company had thus obtained possession of the whole of the present Madras Presidency from Cape Comorin to the Northern Circars, except a part of the Kurnool District, the Danish station of Tranquebar, the existing French settlements at Pondicherry and other places, and the territories of the five native states still in subordination to the Madras Government, the history of which will be found in the separate articles regarding them.

In 1839 internal mismanagement and treasonable intrigue on the part of the Nawab of Kurnool led to the annexation of his country. Tranquebar was purchased from the Danes in 1845. In 1862 the district of North Canara was transferred to Bombay. Since then no alterations of importance in the limits of the Presidency have occurred.

The territories thus rapidly acquired at the end of the 18th and beginning of the 19th century were in most cases reduced to order with little trouble. The poligars in the Ceded Districts had to be suppressed by an armed force, and the turbulence of those in the extreme south necessitated more than one regular campaign. In the Northern Circars the hill chiefs gave trouble as late as 1836. The last occasion on which the employment of regular troops was necessary was the rebellion in the Rampa hill tracts of the Godavari Agency in 1879.

After the palæolithic and neolithic implements which have been discovered in scattered sites, the oldest objects of archæological interest in the Presidency are the pre-historic barrows, cairns, kistvaens, and dolmens found in almost all districts, the first three of which frequently contain pottery, ashes, arms, implements, personal ornaments, etc. The chief remains of historic times consist (beside coins) of inscriptions, temples, and forts. During the last twenty years much has been done to survey describe, and preserve these links with the past. In 1882 the first list of antiquities in the Presidency was published and about the same time Archæological Survey in charge of a specialist was set on foot, while a few years later a Government Epigraphist was appointed These two officers make annual reports of the results of their works and also publish the more important of their discoveries in the Imperial Series of Reports of the Archaeological Survey of India and in South Indian Inscriptions the Epigraphia Indica and elsewhere. The Epigraphist is systematically translating and publishing the countless inscriptions on the thousands of temples in the Presidency, and his work is doing much to eliminate the existing darkness of its early history. The Archæological Survey embraces both pre-historic and historic remains. Such pre-historic antiquities as the Madras Museum contains including the well-known collection made in the Nilgiris by Mr. Breeks, have been catalogued and described by Mr. Bruce Foote and lately some extensive burial places had been discovered at Adichanallur in Tinnevelly, the extraordinary variety and richness of the finds made in which are referred to in the notice of that place.

The Madras Presidency, according to existing boundary divisions, is made up of 26 districts, namely,—Northern, including Ganjam, Vizagapatam, Godavari, Kistna and Guntur; East Central, including Nellore, Madras, Chingleput, Chittoor, North Arcot and South Arcot; Ceded Districts, including Kurnool, Bellary, Cuddapah and Anantapur; West Central, including Salem, Coimbatore and Nilgiris; Southern, including Tanjore, Trichinopoly, Madura, Ramnad and Tinnevelly; West Coast, including South Canara, Malabar and Anjengo.

The first four districts and the fifth which was recently carved out of the 3rd and 4th with a small portion of Nellore are known as the "Northern Circars." Prior to 1859 and 1860 these Circars consisted of five districts, but in that year the three districts of Rajahmundry, Masulipatam and Guntur were divided to form the Godavari and Kistna Districts, with effect from 1st October 1904; the latter have been again split up into three districts, known as Godavari, Kistna and Guntur. To the first have been added the Nagar, Albakatcherla Taluks of the Sironcha Tahsil of the Chandu District in the Central Provinces and to the last, the Ongole Taluk which belonged to the Nellore District. The northern districts were formerly under the Nizam's Government, and in that time the divisions were as follows: Guntur, Condapilly, Ellore, Rajahmundry and Chicacole. They came finally into British possession in the year 1823, by the payment to the Nizam's Government of Rs. 11,66,666 in lieu of an annual tribute. When these districts fell into the hands of the East India Company they consisted chiefly of large estates, held by renters or zemindars, of lands called "Havelly," which were the old demesnes, or private estates, of former rulers; and of tracts near the principal towns which had been resumed by the Muhammadan Governors of the districts, and appropriated for the support of their numerous bands of soldiers and public establishments. For some years prior to 1855-56 these Northern Circars were under the charge of a separate Commissioner, but each district had then also its own revenue and judicial establishments. The appointment of Commissioner of the Northern Circars was abolished in June 1856.

The part of the Presidency, usually known as the Carnatic, appears to have been originally formed of three divisions, namely, Northern, extending from the river Pennar to the river Gundegama, and consisting of a portion of the Nellore District; Central, extending from the Coleroon to the Pennar river, and containing a portion of Trichinopoly, Chingleput, North Arcot, South Arcot, Madras and Vellore districts; and Southern, consisting of a portion of the Trichinopoly and the whole of Tanjore, Tinnevelly and Madura districts. These districts came into the possession of the British between the years 1799 and 1801.

In the year 1859-60 the two districts of Madras Town and Chingleput were amalgamated into a single district, the collection of Sea Customs revenue being separately provided for. In the year 1870 the Chingleput district was again divided as before, leaving the administration of the Madras Town district in the hands of the Sea Customs Collector. The Chingleput District was obtained from the Nawab of Arcot in 1763 in return for services rendered to him and his father by the Company. The grant was confirmed by the Great Moghul in 1765, and for a long time the district was known as the "Jaghire" of the East India Company. The site of the Town of Madras was obtained in the year 1640, by a grant from the descendants of the Vijianagar rulers, subsequently confirmed by the Moghul Government.

The districts of Bellary and Cuddapah were ceded to the English by the Nizam in the year 1800 for the maintenance, in perpetuity, of a body of troops known as the Hyderabad Subsidiary Force, and as payment for troops furnished during the Mysore wars. The territories so made over are still known as the Ceded Districts.

In 1800 the rights of sovereignty exercised by the Nizam over the Kurnool country as Soubadar of the Deccan became vested in the East India Company. The Nizam, in the treaty of partition, gave over to the British all his possessions south of the Tungabhadra and Kistna rivers below their junction. At this time the ruler of the Kurnool country paid a yearly tribute of one lakh of rupees to the Nizam. In 1839 the Kurnool district, through the rebellion of the then ruler of the country, was placed under British administration.

The districts of Salem and Coimbatore came into British possession, the former in 1792 by the treaty of Seringapatam, and the latter in 1799 after the final defeat of Tippu and the partition of his territory between the British, the Nizam, and the legitimate successor to the Mysore Government—the Maharajah of Mysore.

The Nilgiri Hills, formerly a taluk of the Coimbatore District, was constituted a separate district under Act I of 1868.

The two districts of Malabar and Canara, on the western side of the Ghats, fell into the possession of the British in 1792 and 1799, respectively. Canara was in 1859 divided into North and South Canara for administrative purposes, and in 1860 North Canara was transferred, for convenience of administration, from the Madras to the Bombay Presidency. The taluk of Coondapoor, which formerly belonged to North Canara, is now attached to South Canara.

THE CATHOLIC SYRIAN CHURCH IN MALABAR.

A SHORT SKETCH OF ITS HISTORY.

Both history and tradition testify that St. Thomas the Apostle came to India and made a good many conversions, especially from among the Nampoothiri Brahman families on the Malabar Coast, where he founded seven churches at Kodungallur (Cranganore), Parur Kottakav), Kokamangalam, Palur, Chayal, Neranum, and Collam (Quilon) and consecrated bishops and priests from among them. These Christians of St. Thomas increased and flourished for some time until persecution arose and almost destroyed the community, leaving it bereft of pastors. The Catholics (Primate of the East being informed of this deplorable state of things in Malabar, supplied this Church with bishops and priests from Mesopotamia and Persia.

The series of these bishops continued till about the year 1596. On the death of Mar Abraham, the last of this series, Archdeacon George, a native Syrian priest, was appointed administrator of the diocese, who made public profession of the Catholic Faith at Vaipeen in the presence of the Portuguese Governor, officials, clergy and people. Basing himself chiefly on the report of some Portuguese priests against the Archdeacon Archbishop Menezes of Goa came to Malabar and convoked a synod at Diamper in 1599 to purge the Syrians of some supposed errors that had crept into their belief and liturgy. On his return to Goa, he appointed, with the sanction of the Holy See, Francis, Roz, S.J., a Latin priest, as the Archbishop of the Syrians. The Syrians being always eager to get a bishop of their own and finding their efforts unsuccessful rebelled against Francis Garcia, S.J., their third Latin Archbishop in 1653, and selected Archdeacon Thomas, a native Syrian priest, for their bishop, on whom 12 priests sacrilegiously imposed hands.

The Holy See coming to know of this revolt sent to Malabar Joseph Sebastiani, a discalced Carmelite as Commissary Apostolic, with three companions to win back these Christians to the true fold. As most of the Christians were eager to come back, the Carmelites with the valuable assistance of Alexander de Campo (alias Parampil Chandy) a native Syrian priest, easily reconciled 40 churches to Rome in 1657, with the condition of obtaining them a bishop other than Abp. Garcia. Forty-four other churches followed them.

The remaining 32 churches were governed by Archdeacon Thomas who was afterwards consecrated by a Jacobite bishop Gregory in 1665. The descendants of these are the present Jacobite Syrians of Malabar. They are now divided into proper Jacobite Syrians who acknowledge the Jacobite Patriarch of Antioch as their head, and Reformed Syrians the former numbering 225,190 and the latter 75,848. With the coming to Malabar in 1909 of the Patriarch of the proper Jacobite Syrians, there has occurred a split among them, some forming Dionysius' party and the others the Patriarch's party. On the return of this Patriarch, the former got down in 1912 another Jacobite Patriarch styled "the senior Patriarch," who conferred some powers on the bishops of this party. But the confusion among them has been aggravated as this Patriarch has, on his return to Jerusalem, joined the Catholic Church.

On the Dutch taking possession of Cochin, all Europeans excepting the Dutch had to quit Malabar. The Commissary Apostolic vested with the power of consecrating one or two bishops from among the natives chose Alexander de Campo, a native Syrian priest, and consecrated him in 1663, first Vicar Apostolic of Malabar under the S. C. of Propaganda. In his old age, Bishop Alexander de Campo requested Rome to give him a coadjutor in the person of his nephew. But the four Carmelites passed him over and selected a Eurasian priest of the Latin rite, by name Raphael Figueredo Salgado, to be co-adjutor to the Syrian Bishop. Bishop Alexander refused to consecrate him. He was therefore taken by the Carmelites to Calicut who got him consecrated there by Bishop Thomas de Castro in 1677. This co adjut r ac'ed independently of Bishop Alexander and quarrelled with the Vicar-General of the latter. Whereupon he was deposed by the Popein 1694.

After the death of Alexander de Campo, one of the Carmelites succeeded him. The Portuguese Bishops of Cranganore also were governing a part of the Syrians.

This state of things lasted till 1859 when a deputation of the Syrian Catholics was sent to Joseph A du, the Catholic Patriarch of Bagdad to get a Syrian Bishop. Accordingly in 1861, Mar Rokos, a Syro-Chaldean Bishop was sent by the Patriarch to Malabar. After a very short stay he was recalled.

Again the Syrian Catholics sent petitions to Bagdad. In 1874, Bishop Elias Mellus was sent to Malabar and some Syrian churches joined him. Though he left Malabar after some years, the remnant of his schism is still lingering in Trichur and forms at present a community of 13,780, under the name of "Chaldean Syrians." This sect is divided into Mar Augusti e's party and Mar Aimeleon's or the Nestorian party.

The Syrians eager as ever to have Syrian bishops, petitioned Rome, explaining the deplorable state of their Church. The Holy See sent Archbishop Leo Meurin, S.J., of Bombay as Visitor Apostolic to Malabar in 1876 to know and report the real condition of the Syrians. He stayed in Malabar for 16 months, invoked two meetings of all the Catholic Syrian Priests, one at Mannanam and the other at Ollur, visited several churches, thoroughly investigated the cause of all their grievances and reported it to Rome. Understanding from his report, the need of giving a separate Bishop for the Syrians, the Holy See appointed in 1877, Mgr. Marcellino as co-adjutor Bishop of Verapoly to have the separate charge of the Syrian Catholics.

The Syrians not satisfied with this, repeated their petitions to Rome. On the recommendation of Mgr. Agliardi, the Delegate Apostolic the Syrian churches were withdrawn in 1887 from the jurisdiction of Verapoly and Bishops Medlycott and Lavigne S.J., were appointed by Pope Leo XIII to govern them as Vicars Apostolic of Trichur and Kottayam.

This arrangement lasted until 1896 when the oft-repeated request of the Syrians to have bishops of their own rite and race was at last granted by the same Pope. The two European Vicars Apostolic were withdrawn and three native Syrian priests—Fathers John Menachery Aloysius Pareparambil and Mathew Makil—were consecrated at Kandy by the Papal Delegate on October 25, 1896 as Vicars Apostolic of Trichur, Ernakulam and Changanacherry respectively depending directly on the Holy See As Bishop Makil who was appointed for the Vicariate Apostolic of Changanachery was a Suddhist while by far the greater part of Catholics under him were Nordhists, this arrangement was found unsatisfactory and even harmful. This was represented to the Holy See, And at the recommendation of the three Vicars Apostolic the Nordhists were separated from the Suddhists in 1911 by Pope Pius X, and Bishop M. Makil had been appointed to govern the latter as Vicar Apostolic of Kottayam, and the Nordhists of the Vicariate of Changanachery were given another Native Syrian Bishop in the person of Mgr. Thomas Kurialachery. Thus the Catholic Nordhists now form the Vicariates Apostolic of Trichur Ernakulam and Changanachery, and the Suddhists the Vicariate Apostolic of Kottayam, all depending as before directly on the Holy See. Moreover at the request of the Vicar Apostolic of Ernakulam he was given in 1911 a Co-adjutor Bishop with the right of succession in the person of Mgr. Augustine Kandathil. Both Mgr. Kurialachery and Mgr. Kandathil were consecrated at Kandy on the 3rd of December 1911 by His Excellency Mgr Zaleski, the Delegate apostolic of the East Indies.

The Syrian Catholics number 413,142 souls (of whom 383,612 are Nordhists and 29,530 are Suddhists), with 371 churches (excluding chapels), and 418 secular and 72 regular priests.

No candidate or agent shall be allowed to see the serial number on the back of any ballot paper.

(d) The Returning Officer shall, as far as practicable, proceed continuously with the counting of the votes; and shall, during any necessary intervals during which the counting has to be suspended, place the ballot papers, packets and other documents relating to the election under his own seal and the seals of such candidates, or agents as may desire to affix them and shall cause adequate precautions to be taken for their custody.

(c) it is void for uncertainty,

(d) it bears any mark by which the elector can be identified, and

(e) the Returning Officer is not satisfied that the declaration paper is the one sent out by him to the elector, or if the declaration or attestation is not in order:

Provided that in a case where more than one vote can be given on the same ballot paper, if one of the marks is so placed as to render it doubtful to which candidate it was intended to apply, the vote concerned but not the whole ballot paper shall be invalid on that account.

(2) Except on the abovementioned grounds a ballot paper shall not be rejected.

(3) The decision of the Returning Officer as to the validity of a ballot paper shall be final, subject only to reversal on an election petition.

(b) may in addition place on his ballot paper the figure 2 or the figures 2 and 3 and so on opposite the names of other candidates in the order of his preference.

35. The elector shall then enclose the ballot paper in the envelope and stick it up and enclose the envelope and the declaration paper in the cover and send the cover by registered post to the Returning Officer so as to reach him not later than the day and the latest hour fixed for the poll. The covers received after such day and hour shall be rejected;

Provided that, at his option, the elector may deposit the cover in a ballot box which shall be provided at the office of the Returning Officer on the day and during the hours fixed for the poll.

36. (1) If an elector is incapacitated from blindness or other physical cause, from voting in the manner prescribed above, it shall be competent for him to record his vote by the hand of any of the officers or other persons mentioned hereunder; and such officer or other person shall, on the declaration paper, certify the incapacity and attest the fact of his having been requested by the elector to mark the ballot paper for him, and of its having been so marked by him in the presence of the elector.

In every case when new papers are issued, a mark shall be placed against the number of the elector's name in the roll to denote that new papers have been issued in place of those not received, spoilt or lost.

38. No election shall be invalidated by reason that an elector has not received his ballot paper provided that a ballot paper has been issued to him in accordance with these regulations.

39. The Returning Officer shall, as soon as may be practicable after the close of the poll, appoint a date which shall be not later than ten days from the date of the poll, and the time and place for the counting of votes and shall give notice in writing thereof to all candidates and election agents.

40. (1) No person shall be allowed to be present at the counting of votes except the Returning Officer and such persons as he may appoint to assist him in counting the votes, and such other persons as have a right to be present under sub-rule (3) of rule 14.

The Returning Officer shall then examine whether the declaration paper is the one sent out by him and whether the declaration and attestation are prima facie regular. If he is not satisfied that a declaration paper is the one sent out by him to the elector concerned or if the declaration or attestation is not in order, he shall endorse the word "rejected" on the back of the declaration paper and keep it with the connected envelope in a separate bundle. He shall file the other declaration papers and the envelopes containing the corresponding ballot papers in a separate heap. These envelopes shall then be opened the papers enclosed therein taken out and counted, and the number thereof recorded by the Returning Officer in a statement.

(b) The Returning Officer shall then mix together all the ballot papers so counted and totalled up and distribute them in convenient bundles to the persons appointed to assist in counting the votes.

(c) When the ballot papers have been so distributed, but not before, the Returning Officer shall allow the candidates and their agents, reasonable opportunity to inspect, without handling, the ballot papers and shall on every ballot paper which is wholly or partially rejected endorse the word "rejected." If any candidate or agent present questions the correctness of the rejection, he shall also record on the ballot paper the grounds for the rejection. No candidate or agent shall be allowed to see the serial number on the back of any ballot paper.

(d) The Returning Officer shall, as far as practicable, proceed continuously with the counting of the votes; and shall, during any necessary intervals during which the counting has to be suspended, place the ballot papers, packets and other documents relating to the election under his own seal and the seals of such candidates or agents as may desire to affix them, and shall cause adequate precautions to be taken for their custody.

42. (1) A ballot paper shall be rejected if
(a) the figure 1 is not marked thereon;
(b) the figure 1 is set oppposite the name of more than one candidate;
(c) the figure 1 and some other figure is set opposite the name of the same candidate;
(d) the paper is void for uncertainty;
(e) it bears any mark by which the elector can be identified;
(f) the Returning Officer is not satisfied that the declaration paper is the one sent out by him to the elector or when the declaration or attestation is not in order.
(2) Except on the abovementioned grounds a ballot paper shall not be rejected.
(3) The decision of the Returning Officer as to the validity of a ballot paper shall be final subject only to reversal on an election petition.

43. The manner of counting shall be as follows:—

The Returning Officer shall arrange the ballot papers (other than invalid papers) in parcels according to the first preferences recorded for each candidate He shall also ascertain the total number of valid papers.

44 The Returning Officer shall then count the number of papers in each parcel, and credit each candidate with one vote in respect of each valid paper on which a first preference has been recorded for him.

45 The Returning Officer shall then divide the total number of valid papers by a number exceeding by one the number of vacancies to be filled, and the result increased by one, disregarding any fractional remainder, shall be the number of votes sufficient to secure the return of a candidate (hereinafter called the ' quota").

46. If at any time the number of votes credited to a candidate is equal to or greater than the quota, that candidate shall be elected,

47. (1) If the number of votes credited to an elected candidate is greater than the quota, the surplus shall be transferred in accordance with the provisions of this regulation to the continuing candidates indicated on the ballot papers in the parcel of the elected candidate as being next in order of the electors' preference.

(2) (a) If the votes credited to an elected candidate consist of original votes only, the Returning Officer shall examine all the papers in the parcel of the elected candidate whose surplus is to be transferred and shall arrange the transferable papers in sub parcels according to the next preferences recorded thereon.

(b) If the votes credited to an elected candidate consist of original and transferred votes or of transferred votes only, the Returning Officer shall examine the papers contained in the sub-parcel last received by the elected candidate and shall arrange the transferable papers therein in further sub-parcels according to the next preferences recorded thereon

(c) In either case the Returning Officer shall make a separate sub-parcel of the non-transferable papers and shall ascertain the number of papers in each sub-parcel of transferable papers and in the sub-parcel of non-transferable papers.

(3) If the total number of papers in the sub-parcels of transferable papers is equal to or less than the surplus, the Returning Officer shall transfer each sub-parcel of transferable papers to the continuing candidate indicated thereon as the electors' next preference.

(4) (a) If the total number of transferable papers is greater than the surplus the Returning Officer shall transfer from each sub-parcel the number of papers which bears the same proportion to the number of papers in the sub-parcel as the surplus bears to the total number of transferable papers.

(b) The number of papers to be transferred from each sub-parcel shall be ascertained by multiplying the number of papers in the sub-parcel by the surplus and dividing the result by the total number of transferable papers. A note shall be made of the fractional parts, if any, of each number so ascertained.

(c) If, owing to the existence of such fractional parts, the number of papers to be transferred is less than the surplus, so many of these fractional parts taken in the order of their magnitude, beginning with the largest, as are necessary to make the total number of papers to be transferred equal to the surplus, shall be reckoned as of the value of unity and the remaining fractional parts shall be ignored. If two or more fractional parts are of equal magnitude, that fractional part shall be deemed to be the larger which arises from the larger sub-parcel and if the sub parcels in question are equal in size, preference shall be given to the candidate who obtained the larger number of original votes.

(d) The particular papers to be transferred from each sub-parcel shall be those last filed in the sub-parcel.

(e) Each paper transferred shall be marked in such a manner, as to indicate the candidate for and to whom the transfer is made

(5) (a) If more than one candidate has a surplus, the largest surplus shall be first dealt with.

(b) If two or more candidates have each the same surplus, regard shall be had to the number of original votes obtained by each candidate, and the surplus of the candidate credited with the largest number of original votes shall be first dealt with and, if the numbers of the original votes are equal, the Returning Officer shall decide which surplus he will first deal with.

(c) The Returning Officer need not transfer the surplus of an elected candidate when that surplus together with any other surplus not transferred is less than the difference between the total of the votes credited to the two continuing candidates lowest on the roll.

48. (1) If at any time no candidate has a surplus or when under the preceding regulation any existing surplus need not be transferred) and one or more vacancies remain unfilled, the Returning Officer shall exclude from the poll the candidate credited with lowest number of votes and shall examine all the papers of that candidate, and shall arrange the transferable papers in sub-parcels according to the next preferences recorded thereon for continuing candidates, and shall transfer each sub-parcel to the candidate for whom that preference is recorded.

The Returning Officer shall make a separate sub-parcel of the non-transferable papers.

(2) If the total of the votes of the two or more candidates lowest on the poll, together with any surplus votes not transferred, is less than the votes credited to the next highest candidate, the Returning Officer may in one operation exclude those candidates from the poll and transfer their votes in accordance with the preceding regulation.

(3) If, when a candidate has to be excluded under this regulation, two or more candidates have each the same number of votes and are lowest on the poll, regard shall be had to the number of original votes credited to each of those candidates and the candidate with fewest original votes shall be excluded and, where the numbers of the original votes are equal, regard shall be had to the total number of votes credited to those candidates at the first transfer at which they had an unequal number of votes, and the candidate with the lowest number of votes at that transfer shall be excluded, and, where the numbers of votes credited to those candidates were equal at all transfers, the Returning Officer shall decide by casting lots which shall be excluded.

49. (1) Whenever any transfer is made under any of the preceding regulations, each sub-parcel of papers transferred shall be added to the parcel, if any, of papers of the candidate to whom the transfer is made, and that candidate shall be credited with one vote in respect of each paper transferred. Such papers as are not transferred shall be set aside as finally dealt with and the votes given thereon shall thenceforth not be taken into account.

(2) If after any transfer a candidate has a surplus, that surplus shall be dealt with in accordance with and subject to the provisions contained in Regulation 47 before any other candidate is excluded.

50. (1) When the number of continuing candidates is reduced to the number of vacancies remaining unfilled the continuing candidates shall be elected.

(2) When only one vacancy remains unfilled, and the votes of some one continuing candidate exceed the total of all the votes of the other continuing candidates together with any surplus not transferred, that candidate shall be elected.

(3) When the last vacancies can be filled under this regulation, no further transfer of votes need be made.

51. The Returning Officer shall then declare the names of the candidates who have been duly elected and shall prepare a return in form IX.

52. Any candidate or his agent may at any time during the counting of the votes, either before the commencement or after the completion of any transfer of votes (whether surplus or otherwise), request the Returning Officer to re-examine and recount the papers of all or any candidates (not being papers set aside at any previous transfer as finally dealt with) and the Returning Officer shall forthwith re-examine and recount the same accordingly. The Returning Officer may also at his discretion recount votes either once or more often in any case in which he is not satisfied as to the accuracy of any previous count: Provided that nothing herein shall make it obligatory on the Returning Officer to recount the same votes more than once.

53. (a) After the declaration of the result of the voting, the Returning Officer shall seal up in separate packets—

(1) the counted ballot papers;

(2) the rejected declaration papers and connected envelopes;

(3) the ballot papers declared invalid;

(4) the file of declaration papers; and

(5) the marked copy of the electoral roll.

(b) He shall also prepare and certify a return in Form VI and permit any candidate or his agent to take a copy of this return or of the return in Form IX.

54. The Returning Officer shall, after declaring the result, forward a copy of the return in Forms VII and IX to the Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

Miscellaneous.

55. All the packets relating to the elections shall, subject to the control of the Local Government, remain in the custody of the Returning Officer.

56. The packets of ballot papers whether counted or rejected and of the declaration papers shall not be opened and their contents shall not be inspected or produced except under the order of a competent Court or of Commissioners appointed to hold an inquiry in respect of an election, but all other documents relating to the election shall be open to inspection subject to such conditions as the Local Government may impose and to the payment of a fee of Rs. 5.

57. The packets aforesaid shall be retained for a period of one year and shall thereafter be destroyed subject to any direction to the contrary made by the Local Government, or by a competent court or by Commissioners appointed to hold an inquiry in respect or an election.

APPENDIX

Example of an Election conducted on the system of the single transferable vote.

Let it be assumed that there are five members to be elected, and that there are ten candidates A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I and K.

The ballot papers are examined, and the valid papers are arranged in separate parcels under the names of the candidates marked with the figure 1.

FIRST COUNT

Each separate parcel is counted, and each candidate is credited with one vote in respect of each paper on which a first preference has been recorded for him.

The result of the count may be supposed to be as follows:—

	Votes.		Votes.		Votes.		Votes.
A	2,009	D ...	746	G ...	172	K	93
B	952	E ...	498	H ...	132
C	939	F ...	341	I ...	118	Total ...	6,000

THE QUOTA

It is found that the total of all the valid votes is 6,000. This total is divided by six (i.e., the number which exceeds by one the number of vacancies to be filled) and 1,001 (i.e., the quotient 1,000 increased by one is the 'quota' or the number of votes sufficient to elect member.

A's votes exceed the quota, and he is declared elected.

First transfer

A has 1,008 surplus votes (i.e., A's total 2,009, less the quota 1,001), and it is necessary to transfer this surplus [Regulation 47 (1)].

All A's 2,009 papers are examined and arranged in separate sub-parcels, according to the second preference indicated thereon [Regulation 47 (2) (a)].

A separate sub-parcel is also formed of those papers on which no further available preference, i.e., no further preference for an continuing candidate, is shown, and which are therefore not transferable [Regulation 47 (2) (c)].

The result is found to be as follows:

A next available preference is shown—

„ for D on	257	papers.
„ for E on	11	„

„ for G on	1,708	„
Total or transferable papers ...	2,004	papers.
Total of non-transferable papers ...	5
Total of A's papers ...	2,009

Since the total number of transferable papers (2,004) exceeds the surplus (1,008), only a portion of each sub-parcel can be transferred, and the number of papers to be transferred from each sub-parcel must bear the same proportion to the total number of papers in the sub-parcel as that which the surplus bears to the total number of transferable papers.

In other words, the number of papers to be transferred from each sub-parcel is ascertained by multiplying the number of papers in the sub-parcel by 1,008 (the surplus), and dividing the result by 2,004 (the total number of transferable papers).

The process is as follows:—

D's sub-parcel contains 257 papers, and his share of the surplus is therefore :—

$$257 \times \frac{1,008}{2,004} \text{ or } 129\frac{540}{2,004}$$

E's sub-parcel contains 11 papers and his share of the surplus is therefore :—

$$11 \times \frac{1,008}{2,004} \text{ or } 5\frac{1,068}{2,004}$$

F's sub-parcel contains 28 papers, and his share of the surplus is therefore :—

$$28 \times \frac{1,008}{2,004} \text{ or } 14\frac{168}{2,004}$$

G's sub-parcel contains 1,708 papers and his share of the surplus is therefore :—

$$1,708 \times \frac{1,008}{2,004} \text{ or } 859\frac{228}{2,004}$$

Total ... 1,008

The numbers of papers to be transferred as determined by the preceding process contain fractions, and, since only whole papers can be transferred, so many of the largest of these fractions, taken in order of their magnitude, as will make the total number of papers to be transferred equal to the surplus are reckoned as of the value of unity.

Thus, as the whole numbers determined above amount to only 1,007, viz., (129 + 5 + 14 + 859) or one short of the surplus 1,008, the largest fraction $\frac{1,068}{2,004}$ is reckoned as unity, and the numbers of papers to be transferred are as follows:—

To D	...	129 papers.	To F	... ...	14 papers.
To E	...	6 „	To G	... ...	859 „
			Total being A's surplus	...	1,008 „

The particular papers to be transferred to D, E, F and G are those last filed in their respective sub-parcels, and, therefore, at the top of the sub parcels. The papers to be transferred are to be marked so as to indicate the candidates from and to whom the transfer is made.

These papers are added in separate sub-parcels of D, E, F and G.

The totals of the votes credited to these candidates then become :—

		Votes.			Votes.
D	...	746 + 129 = 875	F	...	841 + 14 = 855
E	...	493 + 9 = 499	G	...	157 + 859 = 1,016

The remainders of the papers in the sub parcels (i.e., those papers not transferred), together with the papers on which no further available preferences were marked, are collected together and formed into one parcel, representing A's quota of votes (1,001), and these papers are set aside as finally dealt with. The parcel is made up as follows:—

The remainder of D's sub-parcel, 257 less 129 =	... ...	128
The remainder of E's sub parcel, 11 less 6 =	... ...	5
The remainder of F's sub-parcel, 28 less 14 =	... ...	14
The remainder of G's sub parcel, 1,708 less 859 =	... ...	849
Non-transferable papers	... ...	5
Total, being A's quota	...	1,001

The operations involved in this transfer are summarised in the following table:—

TRANSFER OF A'S SURPLUS.

Surplus	... ...	1,008
Number of transferable papers	... ...	2,004
Proportion to be transferred	$\frac{\text{Surplus}}{\text{No. of transferable papers.}}$	$\left\{\frac{1,008}{2,004}\right.$

B	...	...	...
C	...	...	...
D	257	129	128
E	11	6	5

Total number of transferable papers	2,004	1,008	996
Number of non-transferable papers	5	...	5
Total ...	2,009	1,008	1,001

The state of the poll on the conclusion of the transfer is as follows:—

		Votes.			Votes.			Votes.			Votes.
A	...	1,001 elected.	C	...	989	F	... ...	855	K	...	93
G	...	1,016 „	D	...	875	H	... ...	152
B	...	951 „	E	...	499	I	... ...	118			6,009

G now has 1,016 votes, a number which is more than the quota. He is accordingly declared elected.

Second Transfer.

G's surplus (1,016 less 1,001, or 15) would have to be transferred were it not for the provision of Regulation 47 (5) (c). Under the latter rule, the Returning Officer need not transfer a surplus which is less than the difference between the two lowest candidates on the poll, and where, therefore, the transfer could not alter the relative position of these two candidates, even if the whole surplus were transferred to the lowest candidate. In this case the difference between I and K, the two lowest candidates, is 25 (118 less 93), and therefore G's surplus need not be transferred.

The Returning Officer proceeds to distribute the papers of the candidate with the smallest total of votes.

K's parcel of 93 papers is therefore, examined. It is found to contain 89 papers on which F is the next preference, and 4 on which C is the next preference.

Therefore 89 papers are transferred to F and 4 to C.

The poll now stands as follows:—

		Votes.			Votes.			Votes.
A	...	1,001 elected.	C	... ...	943	F	.. ...	444
G	...	1,016 „	D	... ...	875	H	... ...	152
B	...	952	E	... ...	499	I	... ...	118
							Total ...	6,000

Third Transfer.

The poll shows that as a result of the second transfer no further candidate obtained the quota which would entitle him to election, and the next operation has to be determined upon.

The difference between I and H (152 less 118, i.e., 34) exceeds G's surplus (15), which the therefore, is still allowed to remain untransferred [Regulation 47 (5) (c)].

Candidate I is lowest on the poll and his papers have to be distributed in the same manner as K's [Rule 48 (1)]. But as the combined totals of H and I together with G's surplus (15 + 118+ 15 = 285) are less than 444, the total of F, the next highest candidate, the Returning Officer avails himself of Regulation 48, (2), and distributes the papers of both H and I in one operation.

The papers 152 + 118, or 270 in all) in the parcels of H and I are examined in one operation, and it is found that—

	Papers.
B is marked next preference on	119
D is marked next preference on	107
Non transferable papers	44
Total ...	270

It should be stated that on some papers some or one of the candidates A, G, I, H and K may have been marked as next in order of preference on the papers examined, but, as all these candidates are already either elected or excluded, any papers so marked pass to those of the other candidates for whom the next available preferences have been recorded.

The operation is completed by the transfer of 119 papers to B, and 107 to D, whilst the 44 non transferable papers are set aside as finally dealt with [Regulation 49 (1)].

The poll now stands as follows:—

		Votes.			Votes.		Votes.
A	... ...	1,001 elected.	D	... ...	982	F	444
G	... ...	1,016 „	C	... ...	943	Non-transferable papers...	44
B	... ...	1,071	E	... ...	499
						Total ...	6,000

B has now 1,071 votes, a number which exceeds the quota is accordingly declared elected.

Fourth Transfer.

B's surplus (70) exceeds the difference (55) between E and F, the two candidates lowest on the poll, and it is, therefore, necessary to distribute it.

For this purpose, only sub parcel of papers last transferred, containing 119 papers is taken into account.

These are examined and arranged in sub-parcels (in the same manner as A's papers were examined and arranged) with the following result:—

No further preference is shown on 85 papers.

The total number of transferable papers (84) is thus greater than the surplus (70), and the proportion to be transferred is 70/84. But there is only one candidate, E, entitled to participate in the transfer. E accordingly receives the whole of the surplus, and the 70 papers last filed in E's sub-parcel are therefore transferred to him, after being marked so as to indicate their transfer from B to E [Regulation 47 (4) (c)].

The remainder of the papers in E's sub-parcel together with the non-transferable papers, are placed with B's original parcel. The whole constitues B's quota, and these papers are set aside as finally dealt with [Regulation 49 (1)].

B's quota is made up as follows:—

Original parcel	952
Remainder of E's sub parcel	14
Non-transferable papers	35
Total ...	1,001

The poll now stands as follows:—

	Votes.			Votes.		Votes.
A ...	1,001 elected.	D		982	F ...	441
G ...	1,016 "	C		943	Non-transferable papers ...	44
B ...	1,001 "	E		569	Total ...	6,000

Fifth Transfer.

No canditate is elected as the result of the transfer, and the next operation has to be determined upon.

G's surplus is still not distributable, being smaller than the difference between the totals of E and F the two lowest candidates [Regulation 47 (5)(e)].

F is lowest and his papers have to be distributed.

On examination it is found that F's 441 papers, 353 show a next preference for C, and the remainder, 91 contain no further preference.

The operation is completed by the transfer of 353 papers to C, whilst the 91 non-transferable papers are set aside as finally dealt with [Regulation 49 (1)].

The Poll now stands as follows:—

	Votes.		Votes.		Votes.
A ...	1,001 elected.	C	1,296	Non-transferable papers ...	135
G ...	1,016 "	D	982	Total ...	6,000
B ...	1,001 "	E	569

16. Subject to the provisions of regulation 29 infra no elector shall be admitted to vote outside the polling area under which his name appears on the electoral roll.

17. (1) The presiding officer shall close the polling station at the hour appointed for closing under regulations 12 and 13, so as to prevent the admission thereto of any elector after that hour.

(2) No ballot paper shall be issued after that hour but any elector who has received his ballot paper before that hour shall be allowed a reasonable opportunity to record his vote.

18. Each polling station shall be furnished with such number of compartments in which electors can record their votes screened from observation, as the Returning Officer thinks necessary. As far as possible, separate compartments and separate entrances and exits shall be provided for women electors.

19. The Returning Officer shall provide at each polling station materials sufficient for the purpose of enabling electors to mark the ballot papers, as many ballot boxes as may be necessary, and copies of the electoral roll or of such part thereof as contains the names of the electors entitled to vote at such station.

20. (1) Every ballot box shall be so constructed that the ballot papers can be introduced therein but cannot be withdrawn therefrom, without the box being unlocked. The presiding officer at any polling station, immediately before the commencement of the poll, shall show the ballot box empty to such persons as may be present in such station, so that they may see that it is empty, and shall then lock it up, and place his seal upon it in such manner as to prevent its being opened without breaking such seal, and shall place it in his view for the receipt of ballot papers and keep it so locked and sealed.

(2) Before the polling station is open for the recording of votes, the presiding officer shall read to such persons as may be present the provisions of section 14 of the Election Offences and Inquiries Act, 1920, and hall explain the substance thereof in the vernacular of the district.

21. (1) Every ballot paper shall be in Form III and shall have the names of the candidates as they appear in the nomination papers arranged in alphabetical order. If there are two candidates whose names are the same, they shall be distinguished by the addition of their occupation or in some other way. Ballot papers shall be printed in such language or languages as the Local Government may by an order direct.

(2) The ballot papers printed in each language shall be serially numbered, the serial number being printed on the face of the counterfoil and on the back of the ballot paper.

22. Immediately before a ballot paper is delivered to an elector, the number, name and description of the elector as stated in the electoral roll shall be called out, and the number and name of the elector shall be entered on the counterfoil. The presiding officer shall then initial the ballot paper on its back and deliver it to the elector, and a mark shall be placed on a copy of the electoral roll against the number of the elector, to denote that he has received a ballot paper, but without showing the particular ballot paper which he has received. On the counterfoil shall be entered the name of the constituency and the name or distinctive number of the polling station.

23. The elector, on receiving the ballot paper, shall forthwith proceed into one of the compartments in the polling station, and there mark his paper, and fold it up so as to conceal his vote and after showing to the presiding officer his (i.e., the presiding officer's) initials thereon shall put his ballot paper so folded up into the ballot box. Every elector shall vote without undue delay and shall quit the polling station as soon as he has put his ballot paper into the ballot box.

24. (1) If the elector is unable to read the ballot paper or to mark it and applies for assistance in doing so, the presiding officer shall read it for him and if so required mark the ballot paper according to the directions of the elector and give it to him to be put into the ballot box.

(2) In the case of every elector whose ballot paper is marked in this manner by the presiding officer a note shall be made on the corresponding counterfoil of Form III by the presiding officer of the reason why it was so marked.

25. (1) When a person presents himself to vote and at any time before a ballot paper is supplied to him the presiding officer or polling officer may, of his own accord, and shall if so required by a candidate or polling agent, put to such person any or all of the following questions:—

(i) Are you the person enrolled as follows (reading the whole entry from the roll)?

(ii) Have you already voted at the present election in this constituency?

and at a general election

(iii) Have you already voted at this general election for the Legislative Council in any other general constituency?

and the person shall not be supplied with a ballot paper unless he answers the question or questions put to him and unless his answer to the first question is in the affirmative, the second question in the negative, and at a general election the third question also in the negative.

(2) Except as mentioned herein, every person whose name is found on the electoral roll shall be entitled to be supplied with a ballot paper.

26. If a person representing himself to be a particular elector named on the electoral roll applies for a ballot paper after another person has voted as such elector, the applicant shall, after duly answering such questions as the presiding officer may ask, be entitled to receive a ballot paper in the same manner as any other elector. Such ballot paper (hereinafter referred to as a tendered ballot paper) shall be of a colour different from the other ballot papers, and, instead of being put into the ballot box, shall be given to the presiding officer and endorsed by him with the name of the elector and his number on the electoral roll and the name or number of the electoral area to which the roll relates and shall be set aside in a separate packet and shall not be counted by the Returning Officer. The name of the elector and his number in the electoral roll and the name or distinctive number of the polling station to which the roll relates shall be entered in a list in Form IV annexed to those regulations, which shall bear the heading 'Tendered votes list'. The person tendering such ballot paper shall sign his name and address on that list or affix his thumb impression thereto.

27. If any polling agent declares and undertakes to prove that any person by applying for a ballot paper has committed the offence of personation, the presiding officer may require such person to enter in the list of challenged votes (which shall be in Form V annexed to these regulations) his name and address, or, if he is unable to write, to affix his thumb impression thereto and may further require such person to produce evidence of identification. If such person on being questioned in the manner provided in regulation 24 answers the first question in the affirmative and the other questions in the negative, he shall be allowed to vote after he has been informed of the penalty for personation. The presiding officer shall make a note of the circumstances, and of his decision of the list of challenged votes.

28. An elector who has inadvertently dealt with his ballot paper in such a manner that it cannot conveniently be used as a ballot paper may, on delivering it to the presiding officer and satisfying him of the inadvertence, obtain another ballot paper in place of the spoilt paper, and the latter shall, together with its counterfoil, be marked as cancelled.

29. A presiding officer, polling officer, or polling agent who is on duty at a polling station at which he is not entitled to vote shall, if he is certified by the Returning Officer of the constituency concerned to be entitled to vote at the election, be allowed to record his vote at that polling station. The name of the polling station at which he would otherwise have been entitled to vote shall be entered in the counterfoil of the ballot paper together with the other particulars to be entered therein.

30. (1) Such ballot paper shall be placed in an envelope and sealed by the presiding officer and returned with the certificate referred to in regulation 29 to the Returning Officer who has granted the same, and such Returning Officer shall cause such vote to be included among the other votes given for the candidate designated by the elector.

(2) The certificate referred to in regulation 29 shall be in the following form:—

FORM.

'Certified that ————entiteld to vote at————for———— Constituency has been employed in connection with the election for———— constituency and is prevented from voting at the said station and that I have therefore authorized him to vote at————

Signature of Returning Officer.

31. The presiding officer of each polling station, as soon as practicable after the close of the poll, shall, in the presence of any candidates or polling agents who may be present, make up into separate packets and seal with his own seal and the seal of such candidates or agents as may desire to affix their seal:—

(1) each ballot box in use at such station unopened but with the key (which should also be sealed in the same manner as the ballot box) attached;

(2) the unused ballot papers;

(3) the tendered ballot papers;

(4) the spoilt ballot papers;

(5) the marked copy of the electoral roll;

(6) the counterfoils of the ballot papers;

(7) the tendered votes list; and

(8) the list of challenged votes;

and shall forward such packets to the Returning Officer.

32. The packets shall be accompanied by a statement in Form VI made by the presiding officer, showing the number of ballot papers entrusted to him, and accounting for them under the heads of ballot papers in the ballot box, unused, spoilt, and tendered ballot papers, and ballot papers dealt with under regulation 29.

33. Subject to any directions given in that behalf by the Returning Officer, the packets and statements shall be forwarded by the Presiding Officer to the Commissioner of the Corporation of Madras in the Madras city and to the divisional or taluk office as the Returning Officer may direct in the mufassal. Each packet shall be numbered and shall bear a note as to its contents and the name of the polling station. Empty boxes need not be sent but should be handed over to the village headman or such other officer as the Returning Officer may direct. Where no vote has been recorded in any constituency, the presiding officer shall submit a nil report together with the statement in Form VI. The Commissioner of the Corporation of Madras or the divisional or taluk officer, as the case may be, shall forward to the Returning Officer, immediately on receipt from all the polling stations in the city, division or taluk, the packets referred to in regulation 31 together with a statement in Form VII which shall be compiled from the statement in Form VI and from the nil reports received from the presiding officers.

Postal voting.

34. Regulations 35 to 48 shall apply to the eight constituencies excepted by regulation 11. No elector of these constituencies shall be allowed to vote in any other way than is provided in these regulations.

35. Not less than fifteen clear days before the date fixed for the poll, the Returning Officer shall issue through the post a declaration paper and a voting paper to each elector to the address entered against his name in the electoral roll, unless the elector has, since the publication of the roll, changed his address and intimated the fact in writing to the Returning Officer.

36. The declaration and voting paper shall be in Form VIII. It shall be printed in such language as the Local Government may by an order direct. The same serial number shall be entered on the face of the declaration paper and on the back of the voting paper. To each elector shall be issued the declaration paper and the voting paper whose serial numbers correspond to the number which the elector bears on the electoral roll.

37. Before the ballot papers are issued to an elector, the Returning Officer shall—

(a) have the name of the elector entered on the declaration paper and initial the voting paper on its back; and

(b) place a mark against the name of the elector concerned in the electoral roll, or the copy of it, used for the purpose of the election,

38. With the ballot papers, the Returning Officer shall send a cover addressed to himself in Form IX, an envelope with the number of the voting paper entered on its face and a letter in Form X. The Returning Officer shall have the number of the voting paper entered at the left-hand bottom corner of the cover in Form IX.

39. Each elector, upon receipt of his ballot papers, if he desires to vote in the election, shall sign the declaration in the declaration paper and record his vote on the voting paper by placing a mark against the name of the candidates or candidates of his choice.

40. The elector shall then enclose the voting paper in the envelope and stick it up and enclose the envelope and the declaration paper in the cover and send the cover by registered post to the Returning Officer so as to reach him not later than the day and the latest hour fixed for the poll. The covers received after such day and hour shall be rejected:

Provided that, at his option, the elector may deposit the cover in a ballot box which shall be provided at the office of the Returning Officer on the day and during the hours fixed for the poll.

41. (1) If an elector is incapacitated from blindness or other physical cause, from voting in the manner prescribed above, it shall be competent for him to record his vote by the hand of any of the officers or other persons mentioned hereunder: and such officer or other person shall, on the declaration paper, certify the incapacity and attest the fact of his having been requested by the elector to mark the voting paper for him, and of its having been so marked by him in the presence of the elector.

(2) The following officers or other persons are empowered to attest votes of incapacitated electors under this regulation:—

(i) District and taluk board members and municipal councillors.

(ii) Gentlemen who bear a title conferred or recognized by the Government of India.

(iii) Members of the Legislative Council of the Governor of Madras, of the Legislative Assembly and the Council of State.

(iv) Stipendiary Magistrates other than a village magistrate, Judges of the Court of Small Causes, Madras and the City Civil Court, Madras, Sub Judges, District Munsifs and District and Sub-Registrars.

42. An elector who has not received his ballot papers sent by post or whose ballot papers, before their despatch back to the Returning Officer, have been inadvertently spoilt in such manner that they cannot be conveniently used as ballot papers, or who has lost his ballot papers may, on his transmitting to the Returning Officer a declaration to that effect signed by himself, require the Returning Officer to send him new ballot papers in place of those not received, spoilt or lost, and, if the ballot papers have been spoilt, the spoilt ballot papers shall be returned to the Returning Officer who shall cancel them on receipt. In every case when new ballot papers are issued, a mark shall be placed against the number of the elector's name in the roll to denote that new ballot papers have been issued in place of those not received, spoilt or lost.

43. No election shall be invalidated by reason that an elector has not received his ballot papers provided that ballot papers have been issued to him in accordance with these regulations.

Counting of Votes.

44. The Returning Officer shall, as soon as may be practicable after the close of the poll, appoint a date which shall be not later than seven days from the date of the poll, and the time and place for the counting of votes and shall give notice in writing thereof to all candidates and election agents.

45. (1) No person shall be allowed to be present at the counting of votes except the Returning Officer and such persons as he may appoint to assist him in counting the votes, and such other persons as have a right to be present under sub-rule (6) of rule XII.

(2) No person shall be appointed to assist in counting the votes, who has been employed by or on behalf of any candidate for any purpose whatsoever connected with the election.

46. On the day and at the time appointed under regulation 44 the Returning Officer shall, before he commences to count the votes, read the provisions of section 14 of the Indian Election Offences and Inquiries Act, 1920, to such persons as may be present, and shall then proceed as follows:—

(a) (i) If the constituency is one in which the voting is personal, the ballot box or boxes relating to each polling station or the envelopes containing votes under regulation 29 shall be opened one after another, and the Returning Officer shall take out the papers therefrom, count them or cause them to be counted, and record the number thereof in a statement. Such statement shall not be shown to any candidate or agent.

(ii) If the constituency is one in which postal voting is allowed, the covers received from or deposited by voters shall be opened one after another and the envelopes and declaration papers taken out therefrom. The Returning Officer shall then examine whether the declaration paper is the one sent out by him and whether the declaration and attestation are prima facie regular. If he is not satisfied that a declaration paper is the one sent out by him to the voter concerned or if the declaration or attestation is not in order, he shall endorse the word "rejected" on the back of the declaration paper and keep it with the connected envelope in a separate bundle. He shall file the other declaration papers and the envelopes containing the corresponding voting papers in a separate heap. These envelopes shall then be opened, the papers enclosed therein taken out and counted, and the number thereof recorded by the Returning Officer in a statement.

(b) The Returning Officer shall then mix together all the ballot papers so counted and totalled up and distribute them in convenient bundles to the persons appointed to assist in counting the votes,

(c) When the ballot papers have been so distributed, but not before, the Returning Officer shall allow the candidates and their agents, reasonable opportunity to inspect, without handling, the ballot papers, and shall on every ballot paper which is wholly or partially rejected endorse the word "rejected". If any candidate or agent present questions the correctness of the rejection, he shall also record on the ballot paper the grounds for the rejection. No candidate or agent shall be allowed to see the serial number on the back of any ballot paper.

(d) The Returning Officer shall, as far as practicable, proceed continuously with the counting of the votes; and shall, during any necessary intervals during which the counting has to be suspended, place the ballot papers, packets and other documnets relating to the election under his own seal and the seals of such candidates, or agents as may desire to affix them, and shall cause adequate precautions to be taken for their custody.

47. (1) A ballot paper shall be rejected if—

(a) the number of votes recorded thereon exceeds the number of vacancies to be filled,

(b) no vote is recorded thereon,

(c) it is void for uncertainty,

(d) it bears any mark by which the elector can be identified, and

(e) in the case of a postal vote, the Returning Officer is not satisfied that the declaration paper is the one sent out by him to the elector, or if the declaration or attestation is not in order

Provided that in a case where more than one vote can be given on the same ballot paper, if one of the marks is so placed as to render it doubtful to which candidate it was intended to apply, the vote concerned but not the whole ballot paper shall be invalid on that account.

(2) Except on the abovementioned grounds a ballot paper shall not be rejected.

(3) The decision of the Returning Officer as to the validity of a ballot paper shall be final, subject only to reversal on an election petition.

48. The following procedure shall apply to constituencies other than those for which postal voting is allowed :—

The Returning Officer shall not open the sealed packets of the tendered votes, the marked copy of the electoral roll or the counterfoils of the ballot papers. He shall verify the statement submitted by the presiding officer under regulation 32 by comparing it with the number of counted votes and rejected ballot papers, the unused ballot papers in his possession and the tendered votes list, shall then reclose and reseal each packet which has been opened by him, and shall record on each packet a description of its contents and the date of the election to which it refers.

49. The following procedure shall apply in the case of postal vote constituencies :—

Upon the completion of the counting, the Returning Officer shall seal up in separate packets—

(1) the counted ballot papers ;

(2) the rejected declaration papers and connected envelopes;

(3) the voting papers rejected at the count;

(4) the file of declaration papers; and

(5) the marked copy of the electoral roll.

He shall also prepare and sign a statement in Form XI and shall record on each packet a description of its contents and the date of the election to which it refers.

50. The Returning Officer shall then prepare and certify a return in Form XII setting forth—

(1) the result of the verification referred to in regulation 48,

(2) the names of the candidates for whom valid votes have been given,

(3) the number of valid votes given for each candidate,

(4) the name of the candidate elected,

(5) the number of votes declared invalid, and

(6) the number of tendered votes given, and shall permit any candidate or any representative duly authorized under sub-rule (6) of rule XII to take a copy or an extract from such return.

Miscellaneous.

51. (1) The Returning Officer shall, after reporting the result of the election under rule XII forward a copy of the return made under regulation 50 to the Secretary to Government, Law (Legislative) Department, who shall thereupon publish in the Gazette the name or names of the candidates elected.

(2) All the packets relating to the elections shall, subject to the control of the Local Government, remain in the custody of the Returning Officer.

52. The packets of ballot papers whether counted, rejected or tendered, and of the counterfoils thereof, or of the declaration papers as the case may be shall not be opened and their contents shall not be inspected or produced except under the order of a competent Court or of Commissioners appointed to hold an inquiry in respect of an election, but all other documents relating to the election shall be open to inspection subject to such conditions as the Local Government may impose and to the payment of a fee of Rs. 5.

53. The packets aforesaid shall be retained for a period of one year and shall thereafter be destroyed subject to any direction to the contrary made by the Local Government, or by a competent Court or by Commissioners appointed to hold an inquiry in respect of an election.

(2) Every nomination paper shall be subscribed by two such electors as proposer and seconder and the candidate shall subscribe a declaration on it expressing his willingness to stand for election.

(3) The same elector may subscribe as many nomination papers as there are vacancies to be filled. Each candidate shall e nominated by a separate nomination paper.

SCRUTINY OF NOMINATION PAPERS.

4. (1) On the date and at the time appointed for the scrutiny of nomination papers, every candidate and his proposer and seconder and any other elector of the town or ward may attend at the place appointed, and the chairman shall give them all reasonable facilities for examining the nomination papers of all candidates which have been received by him as aforesaid.

(2) The chairman shall examine the nomination papers and shall decide all objections which may be made to any nomination paper on the ground that it is not valid under Rule 2 and may reject, either of his own motion or on such objection, any nomination paper on such ground ; the decision of the chairman shall in every case be endorsed by him on the nomination paper in respect of which such decision is given.

5. Immediately after the scrutiny and the acceptance or rejection of nomination papers in the manner described in Rule 4 is completed, the chairman shall make up a final list of valid nominations in Form No. III and publish it on the notice-board of his office not later than four days before the date fixed for the election.

6. (1) Any candidate who has been duly nominated for election may withdraw his candidature at any time by written notice signed by him and delivered to the chairman before midday of the day previous to that fixed for the poll ; but no candidate who has withdrawn his candidature may subsequently cancel his withdrawal and stand at the same election.

(2) The chairman shall remove from the ballot paper the name of any candidate who

(a) dies at any time before the poll is taken or

(b) has withdrawn his candidature in accordance with the provisions of sub-rule (1)

7. (1) If the number of candidates who have been validly nominated and have not withdrawn their candidature is equal to the number of vacancies, all such candidates shall be deemed to be duly elected.

(2) If the number of such candidates is less than the number of vacancies all such candidates shall be deemed to be duly elected and the chairman shall start election proceedings afresh for filling up the remaining vacancy or vacancies and repeat the formalities prescribed in Rules 1 to 5. *

8. (1) If, owing to there being more candidates than there are vacancies, a poll has to be taken, the chairman shall appoint forthwith one or more polling officers for each polling station and may pay them reasonable remuneration for their services. The chairman may also, if necessary, appoint one or more identifying officers to assist the polling officer in identifying the voters. Polling officers shall neither be councillors for the wards for which the poll is to be taken nor registered voters therein.

(2) If, after the taking of a poll has become necessary under sub-rule (1), the number of validly nominated candidates becomes, owing to the death of a candidate before the poll is taken, equal to or less than, the number of vacancies, election proceedings shall be started afresh and the formalities, prescribed in rules 1 to 5, repeated.

VOTING.

9. (1) The polling officer shall keep order at the station, shall see that the election is fairly conducted, shall regulate the number of electors to be admitted at one time, and shall exclude all persons except his own clerks, the candidates or agents whom the candidates may have appointed in writing to appear in their stead at the polling station, the police on duty, and such persons as may be admitted for the purpose of identifying the electors.

(2) The letter of a candidate appointing an agent to represent him at the polling station shall be sent so as to reach the polling officer before the voting commences.

10. The ballot box shall be so constructed that the ballot papers can be introduced therein but cannot be withdrawn therefrom without the box being unlocked. Just before the commencement of the poll the polling officer shall show the ballot box empty to such persons as may be present at the polling station and shall then lock it up and place a seal upon it in such manner as to prevent its being opened without breaking such seal and place it in his view for the receipt of ballot papers and shall keep it so locked and sealed. The key of the ballot box shall also be placed under seal.

11. The chairman shall provide for each polling officer such number of clerks as he may consider desirable and shall supply him with a copy of the electoral roll, a list of the nominations, ballot papers and boxes, and such other papers, stationery and forms as may be necessary.

12. Every ballot paper shall be in Form No. V and shall have the names of the candidates printed on it in alphabetical order. If there are two candidates of the same name, they shall be distinguished by the addition of their occupation or in some other suitable way.

13. (1) The name of every person presenting himself to vote and his number on the electoral roll shall be entered in a signature slip maintained in Form No. IV, and the voter shall thereafter, if he is literate, sign his name in the column provided for that purpose, or, if he is illiterate, shall fix his thumb impression thereto.

(2) The voter shall present his slip to the polling officer who, after satisfying himself that it has been duly signed by the voter or impressed with his thumb-mark, shall file it; provided that the polling officer may, if any doubt should arise as to the identity of the voter, require that the slip be attested by any person present who can identify the voter. If there is no such person present, the polling officer shall note on the slip the fact that the voter's identity has been questioned.

(3) Special facilities shall be accorded to women voters who observe the gosha system in accordance with the regulations framed by the Council in that behalf.

14. Immediately before a ballot paper—that is the outerfoil of Form No. V—is handed over to the voter, the polling officer shall

(i) initial it on the back;

(ii) enter the voter's number in the electoral roll on the corresponding counterfoil of Form No. V; and

(iii) affix his initials against the voter's name in the electoral roll.

The polling officer shall then tell the voter how many votes may be given and shall give him the ballot paper.

15. The voter on receiving the ballot paper shall forthwith proceed to the place set apart for the purpose and there mark a cross against the name of the candidate or candidates for whom he intends to vote. He shall then fold up the ballot paper so as to conceal his vote and put it into the ballot box.

16. (1) If the voter is unable to read the ballot paper or to make a cross thereon and applies for assistance in doing so, the polling officer shall read it for him and, if so required, mark the ballot paper according to the directions of the voter and give it to him to put in the ballot box.

(2) In the case of every voter whose ballot paper is marked in this manner by the polling officer, a note shall be made on the corresponding counterfoil of Form No. V by the polling officer of the reason why it was so marked.

(3) The marking of a ballot paper by the polling officer under clause (1) shall not be questioned subsequently on the ground that it was not in accordance with the voter's directions.

17. (1) Any ballot paper which is not duly marked or on which votes are given to more candidates than there are members to be elected or on which any mark is made by which the voters may afterwards be identified, shall be invalid.

(2) If more than one cross is placed against any candidate's name, they shall count only as one vote in his favour, provided that the voter has not placed crosses against more candidates than there are members to be elected.

(3) If the cross or any one of the crosses is so placed as to render it doubtful for which candidate such mark is intended to apply, the vote concerned, but not the whole ballot paper in the cases where more than one vote can be given on the same ballot paper, shall be invalid. provided again that the voter has not placed crosses against more candidates than there are members to be elected.

18 If a person representing himself to be a particular elector named on the electoral roll applies for a ballot paper after another person has voted as such elector, the applicant shall, after duly answering such questions as the polling officer may ask, be entitled to mark the ballot paper in the same manner as any other voter. The ballot paper (called in these rules a tendered ballot paper) shall, instead of being put into the ballot box, be given to the polling officer, and endorsed by him with the name of the voter and his number on the electoral roll and set aside in a separate packet and is not to be counted by the chairman. The signature or thumb impression of the voter concerned shall be taken on signature slips in Form No. IV, but should be attached to their connected tendered ballot papers and separately filed.

19. A voter who has inadvertently dealt with his ballot paper in such a manner that it cannot be conveniently used as a ballot paper may, on delivering it to the polling officer and satisfying him of the inadvertence, obtain another ballot paper in place of the spoilt one, the latter one together with its counterfoil being marked as cancelled.

20. Immediately after the close of the poll, the polling officer shall, in the presence of the candidates or their agents, make up into separate packets and seal with his own seal and the seal of such candidates or other agents as may desire to affix their seal—

(1) each ballot box in use at his station unopened;
(2) the keys of such boxes;
(3) the unused and spoilt ballot papers, both ordinary and tendered, with their counterfoils;
(4) the tendered ballot papers with the signature slips attached to them;
(5) the marked copies of the electoral roll and the counterfoils of ballot papers; and
(6) the file of signature slips.

21. The packets shall be forwarded at once by the polling officer to the chairman accompanied by a statement in Form No. VI. Each packet shall be numbered and shall bear a note as to its contents.

22. On the day and at the hour appointed for the counting of votes, and in the presence of such candidates or their agents as may be in attendance the chairman shall proceed as follows:—

(a) The ballot box or boxes relating to each polling station shall be opened one after another; the chairman shall take out the papers therefrom, count them or cause them to be counted and record the number thereof in a statement in Form No. VII.

(b) The chairman shall then mix together the whole of the ballot papers of all the ballot boxes. The examination and counting of the votes will then commence. The chairman shall, on every ballot paper which is wholly or partially rejected, endorse the word 'rejected.' If any candidate or agent present questions the correctness of his rejection order, he shall also record on the ballot paper the grounds of rejection briefly.

(c) The chairman shall, as far as practicable, proceed continuously with the counting of the votes; and shall, during any necessary intervals during which the counting has to be suspended place the ballot papers, packets and other documents relating to the election under his own seal and the seals of such candidates or their agents as may desire to affix them; and adequate precautions shall be taken for their custody.

23. (a) After the chairman has completed the scrutiny and counting he shall prepare a return of the results of the polling in Form No. VIII. and, after verifying the totals of the votes with the figures in Form Nos. VI and VII, shall, subject to the provisions of Rule 28, declare the election of the candidate or candidates to whom most valid votes have been given.

(b) Any candidate or his agent shall, on application, be permitted to take a copy or an extract from the return in Form No. VIII.

24. The chairman shall not open the sealed packets containing the tendered ballot papers and their connected signature slips or the marked copies of the electoral roll.

25. Upon the completion of the counting and the declaration of the results, the chairman shall seal up in separate packets.

(1) the ballot papers, all or some of the votes on which have been counted, and
(2) the ballot papers, all the votes on which have been rejected, and shall mark on each packet the number of papers it contains. A note shall be made giving a description of the contents of each packet and the election to which it relates.

DISPOSAL OF BALLOT PAPERS.

26. (1) The chairman shall after declaring the result, forward a copy of the return to the District Collector and shall retain in his custody the packets of ballot papers, whether counted, rejected or tendered, and of the counterfoils thereof. These packets shall not be opened and their contents shall not be inspected or produced except under the orders of an election or other competent court.

(2) The chairman shall retain the packets for a year and shall then, unless other wise directed by the orders of an election or other competent court, cause them to be destroyed. The marked copies of the electoral roll shall be preserved for three years.

27 (1) If any person has been elected for more words than one, he shall, within 24 hours from the date of the last of such elections, intimate to the chairman the ward for which he chooses to serve

(2) In d fault of such intimation the chairman shall notify the ward for which such person shall serve.

(3) The said person shall be deemed to have been elected for the ward so chosen or notified as the case may be; and thereupon the voters of the other ward or wards for which such person has been elected shall proceed to elect a councillor in the manner herein before provided

28. If there is an equality of votes between any two or more candidates, the chairman shall, after notice to the candidates concerned, decide by drawing lots which candidate or candidates shall be deemed to have been elected.

In such cases the chairman shall declare the candidate who has obtained the next highest number of votes to have been elected. No candidate who has submitted his withdrawal may subsequenty cancel it.

31. If any question arises as to the interpretation of these rules, otherwise than in connection with an election inquiry, the question shall be referred to the Local Government whose decision shall be final.

32. A Short History of the Administration of the Madras Presidency.

The Executive Civil Government of the Madras Presidency is subject to the superintendence, direction and control of the Governor-General in Council. Under the Government of India Act, 1915 as amended by the Government of India Act, 1919, rules have been framed under which certain subjects have been declared to be provincial and there again have been divided into reserved and transferred subjects; the administration in respect of reserved subjects is in the hands of the Governor in Council and in respect of transferred subjects in those of the Governor acting with his ministers. The term "Local Government" means the Governor in Council or the Governor acting with his ministers, as the case may be. The Council includes the Governor, who is the President, and four members of whom one is appointed by the Governor as the Vice-President; one of the members at least must be a person who, at the time of his appointment, has been for at least twelve years in the service of the Crown in India. The Governor and the members of the Executive Council are appointed by the Crown. The terms for which they may hold office are not limited by any legal enactment. The Secretary of State has directed that a member of the Executive Council should hold office for five years exclusive of any time during which he draws less than full pay, not having himself been granted leave. If a Governor or member of the Executive Council returns to Europe or leaves India with intent to return to Europe, his office is deemed to become vacant. The ministers are appointed by the Governor and hold office during his pleasure; but they must not be members of the Executive Council or officials, and no minister can hold office for a longer period than six months unless he is, or becomes, an elected member of the local legislature. The Governor in Council may grant a member of the Executive Council leave of absence under medical certificate for a period not exceeding six months. When a vacancy occurs in the office of the Governor and there is no successor on the spot to supply the vacancy, the Vice-President or, if he is absent, the senior member of the Executive Council assumes office as acting Governor. If a vacancy occurs in the office of a member of the Executive Council and there is no successor present on the spot, it may be filled by the Governor in Council by the appointmant as temporary member of any person qualified for such appointment. The Governor may make rules and orders for the transaction of business in his Executive Council and with his ministers. On questions brought before the Executive Council, the opinion of the majority ordinarily prevails, the Governor or other presiding member having a second or casting vote in the event of an equal division of opinion; but when any measure is proposed which in his judgment affects the safety, tranquillity or interests of the province or any part thereof, and he differs from the opinion of the majority of the members of the Executive Council the Governor has power to act on his own authority and responsibility. The Governor in Council is not empowered to declare war or to make treaties and has no immediate control over the military administration of the Presidency. He corresponds directly with the Secretary of State except in certain cases. The authority of the Local Government is not superseded by the presence in its province of the Governor-General. The Local Government is empowered to undertake works of public utility, not being railways, which are not expected to cost more than fifty lakhs of rupees. The Governor in Council, or the Governor acting with the ministers, possesses all the civil patronage of the Presidency which is not retained by the Secretary of State or delegated to subordinate members of the administration. Despatches to the Secretary of State in the reserved departments are signed by the Governor and all the members of the Executive Council; despatches in the transferred departments are signed by His Excellency alone. Letters addressed to the Government of India and all orders of the Local Government are signed by an officer of the Secretariat. All correspondence regarding public business reaches Government through the Secretariat.

The year 1921 witnessed the introduction of the Reforms, which brought about a complete change in the financial relations between the Central and Provincial Governments, involving important changes in the general form of accounts and in the prescribed major heads. Till then the Provincial Government had no separate revenues of their own, their resources being obtained mainly from a share of divided heads of revenue and from lump assignments from Imperial revenues. The transactions of the Imperial and Provincial sections were accordingly combined, but shown under distinct divisions, against each major head of revenue and expenditure, in the general accounts and estimates. Now, however, definite sources of revenue have been allocated to the Provincial Governmen and there has been a complete separation between the revenues and the expenditure of the Central and Provincial Governments, though all monies received from sources of provincial revenue are paid to the public account of which the Governor-General in Council continues to be the custodian. The estimates and accounts of the Government of India now embrace the transactions of the Central Government only under each head of account, the transactions of the Provincial Government appearing in them merely as a net addition to or withdrawal from their banking account with the Central Government. The Provincial Government is concerned with central subjects only in so far as they act as agents of the Government of India in their administration and in such capacity are vested with certain financial powers.

Prior to 1921-22 all items of receipts and expenditure which were creditable or debitable to Government were either Imperial or Provincial according as they appertained to the Supreme or to the Local Government. This classification had no statutory basis and depended upon the terms of the 'Provincial Settlement," as the administrative arrangements made between the Government of India and the Local Government and approved by the Secretary of State for the distribution of revenues and expenditure between these two Governments were designated. The history of these provincial settlements, which may be divided into five periods, represents a succession of expedients by which the Central Government secured from local sources of revenue such share as, added to the profits of commercial departments and revenue the locale of which was no guide to its true incidence, was necessary to enable them to carry on the services which they must of necessity administer.

The permanent settlement was in force until 1921-22, when the complete separation between the finances of the Central Government and those of the Provincial Governments, which was found to be an essential corollary of the constitutional reforms, took shape in the system now prevailing. Divided heads were abolished and each source of revenue became either wholly central or wholly provincial, land revenue, excise and stamps being made to contribute the major part of the provincial income; but the resource left to the Central Government under this arrangement being insufficient to enable it to balance its budget, contributions are levied from the provinces to diminish the deficit. Under the statutory rule governing the matter, out of a total of 983 lakhs of rupees contributed to the Central Government by all the provinces the initial contribution of the Madras Presidency was fixed at Rs. 348 lakhs. The rule provides that the total of the contributions shall not exceed Rs. 983 lakhs and that if it is reduced below that figure the reduction shall be in the contributions of those provinces only which are now called upon to pay more than a certain specified proportion. Any reduction would therefore benefit Madras whose payment is now most in excess of the proportion to be aimed at; but there has hitherto been no reduction and the levy of such a large contribution as Rs. 348 lakhs has been the subject of strong and continued protests.

The power of borrowing was never conceded to Provincial Governments prior to the Reforms. That power has now been conferred by section 30 (1)(a) of the Government of India Act under which a Local Government may, on behalf and in the name of the Secretary of State in Council, raise money on the security of the revenues allocated to it under the Act, and make proper assurances for that purpose.

The only restriction on the powers of Local Governments to raise loans is that no loan shall be raised, in the case of loans to be raised in India, without the sanction of the Governor-General in Council or, in the case of loans to be raised outside India, of the Secretary of State in Council, and in sanctioning the raising of the loan the Governor-General in Council, or the Secretary of State may specify the amount of the issue and any or all of the conditions under which the loan shall be raised. In practice it has been found more convenient for the Local Government to borrow from the Government of India than to go into the market separately.

In the pre-reform period the Government of India completely controlled the imposition of any taxation in British India apart from local taxes which were raised by Local Bodies. The scheduled taxes rules framed under section 80-A (3) (a) of the Government of India Act have, for the first time, given local legislature powers of taxation without the previous sanction of the Governor-General in respect of certain specified matters. Prior to the introduction of the Reforms, capital expenditure on major irrigation works was provided entirely by the Imperial Government either from revenues or from loans. The financing of famine expenditure has also been placed on a new basis under the Reforms.

Revenue. The principal sources of revenue and the objects on which Provincial funds are expended can be learnt from an examination of the Provincial accounts for the year. The total revenue (excluding opening balance) received during the financial year 1st April 1921 to 31st March 1922 amounted to Rs. 2,465·05 lakhs of which the amounts credited to "Central" and "Provincial" were respectively Rs. 1,291·63 lakhs and Rs. 1,173·42 lakhs. These figures have been arrived at after adding to "Central" and deducting from "Provincial" the Provincial contribution of Rs. 348 lakhs to the Government of India and the assignment to the Government of India of Rs. 35·81 lakhs on account of income-tax adjustments. The amount expended from Provincial funds was Rs. 1,280·24 lakhs, leaving a deficit of Rs. 106·82 lakhs. Nearly two-thirds of the Provincial revenue was derived from Land Revenue which amounted to Rs. 726·68 lakhs. The next important source of revenue was Excise which yielded Rs. 458·17 lakhs. Other important item of revenue were Stamps, Rs. 189·85 lakhs, Forests, Rs. 48·57 lakhs and Registration, Rs. 32·56 lakhs.

Expenditure. The principal items of expenditure were Land Revenue, Rs. 129·04 lakhs, General Administration, Rs. 134·06 lakhs, Police, Rs. 196·67 lakhs, Education, Rs. 142 30 lakhs. Civil Works Rs. 129·78 lakhs Administration of Justice, Rs. 94·18 lakhs, Forests, Rs. 51·94 lakhs, Medical, Rs. 54·46 lakhs, Excise, Rs. 30·83 lakhs, Superannuation Allowances and Pensions, Rs. 45·67 lakhs' Stationery and Printing, Rs. 24·26 lakhs Public Health Rs. 26·63 lakhs and Agriculture, Rs. 25·18 lakhs.

Budget.—The procedure in connexion with the framing of Provincial budgets and their passage through the Legislative Council has, under the recent Reforms, been materially changed in certain respects. For example, the sanction of the Government of India is no longer required. The procedure laid down in full in the Legislative Council rules is briefly summarized below. A statement of the estimated annual expenditure and revenues of the provinces, referred to as the "budget," is presented to the Council on a day appointed by the Governor. A separate demand has to be made in respect of the grant proposed by each department of the Government, and this demand should first contain a statement of the total grant proposed and then a statement of the detailed estimate under each grant divided into items. The budget is then dealt with by the Cousil in two stages, a general discussion and the voting of demands for grants. The general discussion begins on a day appointed by the Governor subsequent to the day on which the budget was presented, and it continues for such time as the Governor may allot for this purpose. The discussion may concern the budget as a whole, or any question of principle involved therein, but no motion may be moved at this stage, nor may the budget be voted upon. Then, after an interval during which motions for the reduction or omission of grants are submitted, discussion of demands follows for which a maximum of 12 days may be allotted. If the Legislative Council votes a reduction or omission of a demand relating to a reserved subject, it is open to His Excellency the Governor to restore the provision by giving a certificate that the expenditure provided for by the demand is essential to the discharge of his responsibility for the subject, but no such action can be taken when a demand pertaining to a transferred department is affected.

Committees,- Under a statutory rule a Committee on Public accounts has been established to scrutinize the audit and appropriation accounts of the province, and to satisfy itself that the money voted by the Council has been spent within the scope of the demand granted by the Council. It is its duty to bring to the notice of the Council every re-appropriation from one grant to another grant, every re-appropriation within a grant which is not made in accordance with the rules regulating the functions of the Finance Department or which has the effect of increasing the expenditure on an item, the provision for which has been specially reduced by a vote of the Council, and expenditure which the Finance Department wishes to bring to the notice of the Council. An advisory Finance Committee has also been constituted to examine all proposals for new expenditure before they are placed before the Council.

The control of the Local Government over the funds at their disposal is limited by certain rules which prescribe that the sanction of the Secretary of State in Council is necessary before expenditure can be incurred on certain accounts. In this matter, a clear distinction has been drawn between powers to sanction and incur expenditure on transferred subjects and powers in relation to expenditure on reserved subjects, The Joint Parliamentary Committee appointed to revise the draft rules made under the Government of India Act of 1919 have stated that it is the intention of that Act that expenditure on transferred subjects should, with the narrowest possible reservations, be within the exclusive control of the Provincial legislature. The main reservations laid down are that the Secretary of State must retain control over expenditure on transferred subjects which is likely to affect the prospects or rights of the all-India services, which he recruits and will continue to control; and that he should also retain power to control the purchase of stores in the United Kingdom.

The recognized privilege, under which a person aggrieved by the action of any Government official may ordinarily appeal to the next higher authority by means of a petition and receive back a written reply, either refusing or promising redress, is of much importance in all branches of the administration, but especially in matters dealing with the land revenue, owing to the number of small holdings of land under the ryotwari tenure and the consequent multiplication of details in the administration of the land revenue. An aggrieved person may generally appeal in succession of the officers representing each trade in the department concerned, and may finally address in turn the Local Government, the Government of India and the Secretary of State. The three last named authorities have prescribed certain rules to check the indiscriminate presentation of petitions, in some cases a period is fixed within which the appeal must be filed, in others a restriction is imposed upon the number of authorities an aggrieved official may invoke with reference to the status of such official, but there is, in general, no check except where a legal enactment or regulation provides for the appeal and imposes limits on its presentation. The Government do not act as a channel of communication for memorials addressed to Parliament.

The Civil Service.—The Executive and, outside the Presidency town, the Judicial administration are in the hands of the Civil Service in which are included both the Imperial branch called the Indian Civil Service and the Provincial branch now known as the Madras Civil Service.

The Indian Civil Service, designated until 1890 the "Covenanted Civil Service of India," is the modern representative of the merchants, factors and writers who were employed under covenant by the East India Company. Until 1919 this service was recruited only by competitive examination in London. During the war, however, there were few recruits and to fill up vacancies power was taken for a limited period under the Indian Civil Service (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1915, to select candidates by nomination both in England and in India; and further changes have been introduced after the amendment of the Government of India Act in 1919, mainly with a view to provide fresh avenues of recruitment whereby effect may be given to the recommendation made by the Royal Commission on the Public Services in India (1912—1915) and amplified in the Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms, that Indians should be appointed more extensively in the public services. The five methods of recruitment now are open competitive examination in London, separate competitive examination in India, nomination in India, appointment from the Indian bar, and promotion from the Provincial Civil Service, The Provincial or Madras Civil Service was consituted in 1892 as a result of the recommendations of the Public Service Commission (1886-87) to fill appointments, some of which had till then been reserved for the Indian Civil Service while others had been held by what was then called the Uncovenanted Civil Service. It comprises on the judicial side Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs, recruited for the most part direct to the lower of these ranks from the legal profession and engaged in dealing with civil litigation; and on the executive side Deputy Collectors and Magistrates, a few of whom have been recruited by competitive examination or direct nomination, but the majority by promotion from the Subordinate Civil Service. The lower administrative appointments above the ministerial grade form the Subordinate Civil Service.

At least one of the Members of the Executive Council of the Governor of Fort St. George must be a person who at the time of his appointment has been in the service of the Crown in India for at least 12 years and not less than one-third of the Judges of the High Court of Judicature at Madras must be members of the Indian Civil Service: as also, subject to certain exceptions which are noticed below, must all officers holding appoinments of the following classes, (a) Secretaries to Government, except in the Public Works Department, (b) Members of, and Secretaries to, the Board of Revenue, (c) District and Sessions Judges and Additional Sessions Judges, and (d) Collectors and District Magistrates. These and a certain number of appoinments of Sub-Collector are classed as "superior," the "inferior" appointments being regarded as posts in which officers are trained for positions of independent responsibility, The office of Commissioner of the Agency division is held by a senior Collector and District Magistrate The cadre of the Indian Civil Service also provides for certain other appointments which are not reserved by statute, such as those of the Resident in Travancore and Cochin, the Commissioner of Coorg, the Registrar of Co-operative Societies, the Registrar of the High Court the Private Secretary to His Excellency the Governor, the Deputy Commissioner of Salt and Abkari and the Collector of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore. The Director of Industries and the Provincial Superintendent of Census Operations are usually members of the Indian Civil Service. In special circumstances a person not belonging to the Indian Civil Service may be appointed to one of the posts reserved by statute for that service, but every such appointment must be reported to the Secretary of State with the special reasons for making it, and it is only provisional until it has been approved by the Secretary of State in Council. Statutory rules were framed however as far back as 1892 under which a certain number of appointments ordinarly so reserved were scheduled as thrown open to members of the Provincial Civil Service and other persons domiciled in India. In the first instance fifteen appointments were thus thrown open to the members of the then newly formed Provincial Civil Service, including two posts of Collector and District Magistrate, four of District and Sessions Judges, one of Secretary to the Board of Revenue and eight of lower rank which have since been assimilated to the corresponding grades of the Provincial Civil Service, i.e., the Deputy Collectors cadre. Additions have subsequently been made to these "listed" appointments and there are now eleven superior appointments listed, including five in the executive service and six posts of District and Sessions Judge. of which two have recently been filled by direct nomination from the bar, while several "inferior" appointments such as those of Under Secretaries which were formerly held by members of the Indian Civil Service are now filled otherwise.

Other.—Besides the Indian Civil Service, the Imperial Service of the Public Works Deparment is now included in the Indian Serv ce of Engineers, which is divided into two branches, consisting of officers recruited in Europe and in India. All appointments to the Indian Service of Engineers are made by the Secretary of State. Appointments to the Europe recruited branch are made on the advice of a selection committee including at least one eminent representative of the engineering profession. Candidates for this branch must produce evidence that they have obtained one of the University del grees prescribed by the Secretary of State or that they have passed sections A and B of the A.M.I,C.E. examination, or obtained such other diploma or distinction in engineering or general and technicar (theoretical and practical, education as the Secretary of State may decide to accept in any particulal case. Appointments to the India-recruited branch are made from two sonrces—graduates of the College of Engineering, Madras, and selected officers of the Provincial Engineering Service. Officers for the Indian Police Service are recruited by competitive examination in England, and in India on the nomination of a selection committee, followed by a competitive examination among the nominees. Officers for the Imperial Agricultural Service are recruited in England and in India on the advice of a selection committee. Special qualifications of a practical and scientific nature are essential both for administrative and for research and instructional posts. Officers for the Imperial Veterinaary Service are appointed by the Secretary of State. They must hold a diploma of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons. Officers of the Imperial Forest Service are recruited both in England and in India on the advice of a selection committee and are required to pass through the forestry course at one of the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge or Edinburgh.

Educational qualifications for admission to the Public Service.—Admission to Government service in this Presidency is not as a rule dependent on success in a competitive examination, but no person can in general be appointed to a post, the sanctioned pay of which is Rs. 35 per mensem in the mufassal or Rs. 40 per mensem in the Madras City or more unless he possesses the minimum educational qualifications—public or departmental—are also prescribed for particular posts in each department.

Secretariat.—There are eight Secretaries to Government, each of whom has ordinarily an Under Secretary and one or more Assistant Secretaries, though the exact arrangements differ in different departments; and at times of pressure a Deputy Secretary, may be appointed to assist any one of them. The Chief Secretary deals with the correspondence relating to the Public, Judicial, Political and Ecclesiastical departments; the Secretary to Government, Revenue Department, with the administration of the Land Revenue, the Agency tracts and the Laccadives, the Court of Ward and Zamindars, Excise and Stamps; the Secretary in the Law Department with Civil Justice, Emigration, the Depressed Classes, Jails, Labour, Legislation, Education and Registration; the Finance Secretary, besides Finance, with Pensions, and Central subjects, viz., Archaeology and Epigraphy, Customs, Income-tax-Marine, Meteorology, Opium, Post Office and Salt; the Secretary in the Development Department, with Agriculture; Co-operation, Forests, Factories Industries, Fisheries and Veterinary, and the Secretary to Government, Local Self-Government, with matters concerning Local Boards, Municipal Councils, the medical Department, Public Health, Religious and Charitable Endowments, Tramways and Town-planning. Of the two Secretaries to Government, Public Works Department, one deals with Irrigation and the other with all other Government public works except Railways with regard to which the Senior Government Inspector of Railways occupies the positoin of Secretary to Government.

One officer is appointed as Agent of the two Indian States of Travancore and Cochin: he has under him an Assistant. The Collectors of Trichinopoly, Bellary and Kurnool are ex-offico Political Agents for the Indian States of Pudukkottai, Sandur and Banganapalle, respectively, and the Collectors of South Arcot, Tanjore, Malabar and Godavari are ex-officio Political Agents, for the French Settlements of Pondicherry, Karikal, Mahe and Yanam. A consul is appointed for Pondicherry and Karikal. The Collector of Madras is ex-officio Paymaster of Carnatic Stipends and in that capacity is under the Political Department of the Government Officers in the service of Government are occasionally employed in the Indian States with the sanction of the Government.

Administration. For purposes of general administration the Presidency is divided into 26 districts under the executive administration of a District Collector and Magistrate, who is generally a member of the Indian Civil Service. Each district, with the exceptions of Madras and Anjengo, contains two or more divisions or subdivisions; a division or sub-division again comprises one or more taluks, each of which is under the jurisdiction of a Tahsildar. Some of the Divisional Officers are members of the Indian Civil Service; the majority are, however, Deputy Collectors who are members of the Provincial Civil Service. The Collectors as Revenue Officers are subject directly to the control of the Board of Revenue which consists of the senior officers of the Revenue Department, usually members of the Indian Civil Service. There are no officers corresponding to Commissioners of Divisions in other provinces who have charge of a number of districts. The revenue jurisdiction of each member of the Board of Revenue extends over the whole Presidency and the work of the Board is distributed among the members under Madras Act I of 1894. But orders on important matters are passed by the full Board. Two members of the Board are Commissioners of Land Revenue; and one of these is also Commissioner of Revenue Settlement; the third is Commissioner of Salt, and Inam Commissioner. Under the Commissioner of Land Revenue Settlement are the Director of Survey, five Settlement Officers in charge of Settlement Parties and thirteen Special Assistant Settlement Officers. The Land Revenue and Settlement offices of the Board which were till recently separate have been amalgamated into one and the combined office is in charge of a Secretary, a member of the the Indian Civil Service, who is assisted by two Assistant Secretaries, both of whom belong to the Provincial Service.

Criminal Law.—The superior court for civil and criminal judicial work is the High Court at Madras. The High Court may consist of a Chief Justice and as many Judges not exceeding 20, as His Majesty may from time to time think fit and appoint. At present, in addition to the Chief Justice, there are 11 puisne judges. The judges must be barristers of five years' standing or members of the Indian Civil Service of ten years' standing, who have exercised the powers of a District Judge or like powers for at least three years, or persons who have held judicial office not inferior to that of a subordinate judge or a Judge of a Small Cause Court for five years or pleaders of the High Court of ten years' standing; one third of the Judges, including the Chief Justice, must be barristers and one third must be members of the Indian Civil Service. A judge holds office during His Majesty's pleasure but has power to resign. The Governor in Council may make temporary arrangements if a vacancy occurs in the High Court. A High Court Bench may consist of one or more judges, a Full Bench being a bench of not less than three of the judges for the time being present as judges of the Court. The High Court has framed rules showing what class of work may be disposed of by the various Benches; certain matters may be disposed of by a judge in Chambers. A list showing the sittings of the various courts during the following week is published every Friday. For the administration of criminal justice there are 25 Sessions Judges in the mufassal, the High Court being the Sessions Court in the Presidency town. Additional and Assistant Sessions Judges are sometimes appointed to assist courts in which the work is heavy. Sessions are held once a month at the headquarters of each judge, but once a quarter in the High Court. Magistrates are of three classes—first, second and third. The powers of a first-class magistrate are more extensive than those of a second-class magistrate; for instance, a first class magistrate can pass a sentence of imprisonment for two years, while the longest erms for which second and third-class magistrates can pass sentences of imprisonment are six months and one month respectively. Village magistrates are not included in these three classes of magistrates they may try persons charged with petty thefts when the value of the property stolen does not exceed one rupee and certain other cases of a trivial nature; they may sentence such persons if found guilty to be confined in the village choultry for a time not exceeding twelve hours. The Collector is always District Magistrate except in the Presidency town, where there are three stipendiary magistrates (including the Chief Presidency Magistrate). There are also four benches of Honorary Presidency Magistrates for the trial of petty cases. Divisional Officers are also Sub-divisional Magistrates. These magistrates generally exercise all the powers of a first-class magistrate as well as certain other special powers. The bulk of the magisterial work, as far as the trial of original cases is concerned, is disposed of by second-class magistrates. In taluks where the work is light the Tahsildar and Sarishtader—the head of the taluk office under the Tahsildar—exercise the powers of magistrates including the power to try cases and to commit accused persons for trial before the Sessions Courts, but in other taluks Stationary Sub-Magistrates are appointed for this purpose. Tahsildars are magistrates of the second class ex-officio and Deputy Tahsildars, and Sub-magistrates and taluk sarishtadars are Magistrates of the third class ex-officio. In important mufassal stations, retired Government officers with, judicial experience are appointed Honorary Magistrates and exercise the ordinary and certain special powers of stipendiary first class magistrates. Benches of magistrates are sometimes appointed in mufassal municipalities, and other mufassal towns and villages with powers to try regularly cases under certain special law and with summary powers to dispose of certain other classes of petty cases. Special third-class magistrates, chiefly selected from among Sub-registrars, are appointed to try such petty cases in mufassal towns and villages not within easy reach of a regular magistrate's court. District Magistrates rarely take cases on their own file. Divisional Magistrates dispose of cases triable by a first-class but not by a second-class magistrate and of other cases which are of special importance for any reason or in which it is probable that a heavier sentence should be awarded than a subordinate magistrate is competent to pronounce in view of the previous history of the accused or of the value of the property stolen, etc. The District and Divisional Magistrates closely supervise the work of subordinate magistrates. The judgments of Divisional Magistrates are perused by District Magistrates and Sessions Judges. District Magistrates and Sessions Judges transmit to the High Court copies of their judgments in certain cases. In three cantonments in the Presidency the station staff officers are appointed magistrates of the third class and also cantonment magistrates under the Cantonment Act to try petty cases including breaches of cantonment rules.

Police.—The head of the Police Department is the Inspector-General. The Presidency is divided into four ranges, each of which is under a Deputy Inspector-General of Police. A Superintendent of Police is stationed at the headquarters of each district and in most districts there are Assistant Superintendents or Deputy Superintendents, who are subordinate to the Superintendent and have either distinct local charges or are employed as Personal Assistants to the Superintendent. The superior service is divided into two kinds—Indian (Imperial) and Madras (Provincial). Recruitment for the former is, as a rule, made both in England and in India, on the results of competitive examinations, open to European British subjects and to such Indians as are admitted by the Secretary of State in exceptional circumstances and to statutory natives of India respectively. Recruitment for the latter (Madras Police) is made partly by the promotion of Inspectors and party by direct appointment. Under them are the Inspectors, the sub-inspectors and the subordinate police establishment. The railways from two separate districts for the purposes of the Police Department, a special force known as Railway Police being employed under two Superintendents for the detection of offences within the railway limits and for the maintenance of order at railway stations. A Criminal Investigation Department is constituted to deal with crime of a special character and criminal organizations of more than local importance. To enable old offenders to be recognized, the finger-prints of all convicts are taken and sent to the Finger-Print Bureau at Madras. The Railway Police, the Criminal Investigation Department and the Finger-Print Bureau are under the control of a separate Deputy Inspector-General. A Provincial Training School has been established at Vellore for, the training of probationary and Assistant Deputy Superintendents, Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors. Central recruits' schools for the training of the constabulary have also been established at Vellore Vizianagram Coimbatore and Anantapur. The magistracy exercise a limited control over the work of the Police but have no power to inflict departmental punishments or to interefere directly in the internal administration of the department. The Madras City Police source is controlled by a Commissioner assisted by two Deputy Commissioners and two Assistant Commissioners. The Commissioner is subject to limited control by the Inspector-General. In each village one or more village watchmen or talaiyaris are employed; they are under the orders of the village magistrates and are appointed by Divisional Officers; they are not ordinarily under the control of officers of the Police Department but the Local Government may allow the powers of punishing them usually vested in a Divisional Offier, to be exercised by a Superintendent, or Assistant Superintendent of Police in a specified area. Among other duties, they have to patrol the village at night, to carry the village magistrate's reports regarding crime and criminals to the nearest police station and sub-magistrate, to watch the cattle pounds and to assist in tracing offenders and detecting, crime; they have no uniform but in some districts they are supplied with badges of office. In special localities ghat talaiyaris enlisted and controlled by the Police Department, are employed to supplement the police in guarding roads. Such additioncl police are commonly spoken of as punitive police.

Prisons.—The Inspector-General of Prisons controls the Jail Department. There are ten central jails (nine permanent and one temporary) and four district jails. The temporary jail was opened to ease the pressure in existing jails caused by the influx of Mappilla prisoners due to the Mappilla rebellion. There are also two special jails—the Borstal Institution, Tanjore, for the confinement of prisoners of ages between 15 and 23, and the Civil Jail, Madras, for civil prisoners admitted with in the City of Madras. Central jails are those in which prisoners sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for one year and upwards and prisoners sentenced to transportation are confined; they also serve the purpose of district jails for the districts i n which they are situated. Two central jails, one for the Tamil and the other for the Telugu districts, have been set apart for the confinement of habitual offenders. Each of the central and district jails (except one of the latter class which is managed by the District Medical Officer) is under the charge of a Superintendent. The appointment of Inspector-General of Prisons and four superintendentships of central jails are reserved for commissioned medical officers of the Indian Medical Service. The Surgeon-General, the Director of Public Health, the Deputy Director of Public Health, all Presidency Magistrates, the Commissioner of Police, Sessions Judges, District Magistrate, Subdivisional Magistrates and Inspectors of Schools are ex-officio visitors of jails within their jurisdiction. Non-official visitors are appointed by the Government for the jails in the City of Madras and by District Magistrates for the mufassal jails. Remissions of sentence are granted for good conduct and diligence, the days gained being liable to forfeiture for prison offences. A diligent and well-behaved convict may ordinarily earn three days' remission in a month. Selected casual convicts may be employed as night watchmen, overseers and convict warders; they earn money gratuities and are granted special remission and other privileges. Elementary education is imparted in all jails to prisoners under 30 years of age by a paid teaching staff. Lectures on moral and religious subjects are delivered by honorary lecturers and on sanitary matters by the medical subordinates attached to jails. Technical instruction is given to convicts employed in the various industrial departments to enable them to earn their livelihood on release. Each jail is provided with a library and the prisoners are given facilities for reading and study. Recreation is provided for well-behaved prisoners in association wards between lock-up and sleeping time. A Central Discharged Prisoners' Aid Society has been organised at Madras and several district committees have been formed at various centres. At the headquarters of each sub-magistrate is a subsidiary jail, in which remanded or undertrial prisoners and convicts sentenced to imprisonment for not more than one month are generally confined; these subsidiary jails are superintended by sub-magistrates and inspected periodically by District Medical Officers. There is a Reformatory School at Chingleput for the reception of juvenile offenders under the age of 15 years.

Civil law.—The administration of civil justice is carried on by 24 District Judges, 29 Subordinate Judges, two special Samll Cause Judges and 144 District Munsifs. In addition there are at present on a temporary basis one District Judge, 19 Subordinate Judges, 1 Small Cause Judge and 23 District Munsifs, In the Presidency town there are a City Civil Court consisting of one Judge and Small Cause Court consisting of a Chief Judge and two other judges. The heads of villages may be appointed village munsifs, with power to hear petty suits of a value not exceeding Rs. 50 (or with the wirtten consent of both parties, Rs. 200), or, alternatively, a panchayat court with similar powers may be constituted, in which case the village munsif ceases to exercise jurisdiction. Offices for the registration of documents have been established at convenient centres throughout the Presidency which for this purpose is divided into districts and sub-districts. The latter are under sub-registrars of whom there are 578, including 7 officers working as clerks in the Inspecotr, General's office, 5 temporary and 5 ex-officio officers. Excluding the temporary and ex-officio officers the remaining 568 officers are divided into two grades, a lower and an upper, on time-scales of pay. The upper grade consists of 113 officers and the lower of 455. The districts are presided over by District Registrars,32 in number, also on a time-scale of pay. This number includes the three appointments of Personal Assistant to the Inspector-General of Registration, Inspector of Registration Offices and Assistant tothe Registrar of Joint Stock Companies. The head of the department is the Inspector-General of Registration, who is also ex-officio Registrar of Joint Stock Companies and Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages. The Assistant to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies is the Assistant Registrar of Joint Stock Companies for the Madras City and ex.officio Registrarof Provident Insurance Societies and Life Assurance Companies. All District Registrars are ex-officio Assistant Registrars of Joint Stock Companies within their jurisdiction. All registering officers are Registrars of Births and Deaths under the Births, Deaths and Marriages Registration Act. 1886. One hundred and ninety-tive officers are also notaries public. Several of them exercise magisterial powers of the third class for the trial of offences punishable under the local laws and some of them are members of local bodies. Sub-Registrars stationed at the headquarters of Deputy Thasildars are placed in charge of the sub-treasury during the absence of the Deputy Thasildar on tour. At taluk stations, they are in charge of the double lock chests during the absence of the Tahsildar on tour if there is no sub-magistrate at the station, or when both the Tahsildar and the sub-magistrate are absent on duty simultaneously.

Local Boards.—A district board has been formed for every district and one for the Agency Division. Taluk boards exist at all districts except the Nilgiris and the Agency Division. Union boards have been established in areas which though more or less urbay are not yet fit to become Municipalities. The area under a district board is ordinarilu the revenue district excluding all municipalities, while that under a taluk board is usually coterminous with a revenue divisional charge, but in some districts, taluk boards have been constituted tor single revenue taluks. The Madras Local Boards Act, 1920, gives each class of local board (district, taluk and union) an independent status and distinguishes their funds and functions. Not less than three-fourths of the members should be elected; the president of a union board should invariably be elected; the president of a taluk board should be elected unless the Government otherwise direct; and the president of a district board may be appointed or elected at the discretion of the Government. The privilege of electing their presidents has been conceded to two district boards; and official presidents have been replaced by non-official presidents in all districts but the Nilgiris. The Revenue Divisional Officer is no longer an ex-officio member of the district board or the ex-officio president of the taluk board and the privilege of electing its president has been conceded to all except 14 taluk boards. The total number of members of a district board is subject to a maximum of 52 and a minimum of 24. The president of every taluk board in the district is an ex-officio member of the district board. One-fourth of the members of the district board, are appointed by Government and the rest are elected by the taluk boards in all districts except in the Nilgiris where the two planters' associations and the tax-payers and inhabitants of the district elect the members. The total number of members of a taluk board is subject to a maximum of 24 and a minimum of 12. Three-fourths of the total number of members of taluk boards are elected by the tax-payers and inhabitants of the taluk, and the rest are appointed by the presidents of district boards. The qualifications of voters have been considerably lowered and women are no longer debarred from voting or from standing as candidates at elections. Presidents, vice-presidents and members of local boards do not ordinarily receive any remuneration but they may be paid their travelling expenses. Presidents are responsible for seeing that the resolutions of their boards are carried into effect. Under the Madras Local Boards Act, 1920, no village can be constituted into a union unless it has a population of 5,000. The total number of members of a union board is subject to a maximum of 15 and a minimum of 7. Three fourths of the members are elected by the tax-payers and inhabitants of the union and the rest are appointed by the president of the taluk board. Union boards exist in all districts except the Nilgiris and South Kanara. The main source of income of district and taluk boards is a tax of one anna in the rupee on the annual rent value of all occupied lands in the district. The district board can levy an extra tax not exceeding 3 pies in the rupee on the annual rent value of occupied lands and the taluk board can levy another tax of three pies in the rupee. The levy of a railway cess has been abolished. The income of union boards is derived chiefly from a tax on houses. Local boards also derive an income from tolls and ferries, profession and companies taxes, pilgrim tax and fees for the use of markets, cart-stands and slaughter-houses. A consolidated budget of all the local boards in the district has to be submitted to the Government, but the local boards have a free hand in framing their budgets. Government cannot interfere in this matter unless a budget fails to provide for the due discharge of all liabilities in respect of loans or for the maintenance of a working balance. The main ordinary duties of local boards are the construction and maintenance of roads, bridges, avenues, hospitals, dispensaries, markets, water-works, wells, drains, latrines, the training of nurses, midwives, and vaccinators, the supervision of sanitation and the diffusion of education. District and taluk boards employ engineering establishments for the construction and maintenance of public works vested in them or under their control, but the services of officers of the Public Works Department are occasionally utilized with the permission of Government for the execution of special works considered to be beyond the powers of the ordinary local fund staff. The District Collector, the Surgeon-General, the Director of Public Health and his assistants, the Sanitary Engineer and his deputies, the District Medical and Sanitary Officer, the Chief Engineer, the Superintending Engineer of the circle, the Director of Public Instruction and the Inspector of Schools may, with the permission of the president, address a local board on any matter affecting the general administration, sanitation, public works or public instruction.

Municipalities.—The duties devolving on local boards are discharged in municipal areas by independent bodies styled municipal councils. Each council consists of not less than 16 and not more than 36 members. Under the Act the elective strength should not be less than three-fourths; the rest of the members are appointed by Government. The Revenue Divisional Officer is no longer an ex-officio member of the Council and official supervision has been largely relaxed. The property tax leviable on buildings and lands comprises a tax for general purposes and it may also comprise a water and drainage tax, a lighting tax and a railway tax. The rate of this tax is fixed by each council independently. Other sources of municipal income are a professional tax, tolls, taxes on vehicles and animals, a companies tax and in some cases a pilgrim tax. In hill stations a tax on private menial and domestic servants may in addition be levied. Unless a municipal council is indebted, it has a free hand as to the taxes to be levied and the rates at which they should be levied. The registration of births and deaths is compulsory in all municipalties and the vaccination of children is also obligatory. Some councils employ paid chairmen, while others have paid secretaries to assist their honorary chairmen. Every rate-payer is given a vote and is eligible for election to the council. Women can also vote at municipal elections but cannot at present stand as candidates at elections. They may, however, serve on special committees of the council.

Madras Corporation.—The municipal affairs of the City of Madras are administered by a council and a Commissioner. The council consists of 50 councillors, of whom 30 are elected by the rate-payers and inhabitants of the 30 municipal divisions, three elected by the Madras Chamber of Commerce, three by the Madras Trades Association, two by the South Indian Chamber of Commerce, one by the Port Trust Board, one by the Anglo-Indian Association of Southern India, Limited, and one by the University of Madras. The remaining nine councillors are appointed by the Government. There are four standing committees, of seven members each, dealing with taxation and finance, works, health and education. The Commissioner, who is appointed by the Government, is a paid officer and is the head of the executive. He can attend meetings of the council or of any standing committee and take part in the discussion, but he has no right to move any resolution or to vote. At the first meeting after the first day of November in each year the council elects one of its number to be its president. The taxes leviable in the City of Madras are in general similar to those in the mufassal municipalities, but the Corporation levies also a tax on timber brought into the city and a duty on transfers of property in the shape of an additional stamp duty. The council can itself fix the rate at which the property tax is to be levied. The present rate is 18¾ per cent of the annual value of buildings and land. The three principal officers of the municipal corporation are the Revenue Officer, the Health Officer and the Engineer who are appointed by the council subject to confirmation by the Government. A special engineer has also been appointed by the council with the approval of the Government to carry out the extensive water and drainage schemes now in hand. Subject to confirmation by the Government, the council has power, in the event of any unusual mortality or the prevalence of any dangerous disease within the city, to appoint a special health officer to investigate the causes thereof and to suggest remedies, and to appoint a special revenue officer for the purpose of carrying out a periodical revision of assessment, introducing a new tax or discharging any extraordinary duty connected with the revenue administration of the Corporation. But no necessity for either of these appointments has so for arisen.

Marine.—The Marine Department ncludes the Presidency Port Officer and the Deputy Conservator of the Port of Madras, who are officers of the Royal Indian Marine, and 12 others Port officers, one of whom is Personal Assistant to the Presidency Port Officer and Agent for Government Consignments, Madras, while the others are stationed at minor ports. The port of Madras is under the control of a body of trusties constituted under the Madras Port Trust Act II oi 1905.

Civil Veterinary.—The Civil Veterinary Department has an executive and an educational branch. At the head of the executive branch is the Chief Superintendent, Civil Veterinary Department, who is a member of the Indian Civil Veterinary Department, with three superintendents and four deputy superintendents under him. The college is presided over by another member of the Indian Civil Veterinary Department under whom are a professor of pathology and bacteriology, a professor of surgery and other lecturers. The whole department works directly under the Ministry of Development.

Horticulture.—Botanic gardens are maintained on the hills in immediate charge of the Curator of the Government Gardens and Parks, the Nilgiris, who works under the orders of the Director of Agriculture.

Cinchona and quinine.—The Government have large cinchona plantations on the Nilgiris and a factory at Neduvattam for the manufacture of quinine. Quinine produced at the factory is supplied to the medical departments of Madras and Bombay and to hospitals and dispensaries throughout the Madras Presidency, and elsewhere in India It is also sold to the public in packet form through the agency of post offices. The plantations and factory are under the Deputy Director of Agriculture (Cinchona).

Public Works.—The Public Works Department is responsible for the construction and maintenance of buildings belonging to Government (except certain buildings in charge of the Forest and Salt. Abkari and Separate Revenue departments), navigable canals. and irrigation works which are ordinarily capable of irrigating more than two hundred acres of land; it does not as a rule maintain roads, though a few important roads are in its charge. At the head of the Public Works Department are two Chief Engineers, the senior of whom is the Secretary to Government and the junior Joint Secretary; one controls the general roads and buildings branch and the other the irrigation branch of the business of the Departnent. No railways in the Presidency are worked by the State, but the Government are kept in touch with the Railway administrations by the senior Government Inspector of Railways who, for this purpose, is also a Secretary to Government. The Presidency is divided into seven circles, over each of which there is a Superintending Engineer, who controls the district staff of executive and assistant executive engineers. These are employed both on irrigation and other public works. The superior officers belong to the Indian Service of Engineers and in addition a new provincial service was constituted in 1920 under the style of the "Madras Engineering Service" to include the bulk of the officers required for the charge of permanent subdivision and equivalent posts. There are, besides, specialist appointments, including the Sanitary Engineer to Government the Consulting Architect and his assistant—and temporarily also a special Consulting Architect—the Electrical Inspector and the Electrical Engineer. A special Harbour Engineer was appointed in 1920 to advise the Government on important harbour works, but he and his staff were transferred in 1921 to the Marine Department. The Boiler Inspectors are under the control of the Public Works Department, which deals with questions relating to the working of the Steam Boilers and Prime.movers Act. The accounts of the department are audited by the Accountant-General. Payments are made by means of cheques drawn by officers on Government treasuries or the Imperial Bank of India, the expenditure being limited to the amount of budget allotments.

Audit.—Under the Reforms the audit of the transactions of both the Central and Provincial Governments is a central subject, while that of local funds is a provincial subject. The audit of the former is entrusted to the Accountant-General, who is an officer of the Government of India under the direct orders of the Auditor General in India. The audit of local funds is conducted by the Examiner of Local Fund Accounts working under the administrative control of the Local Government. The Accountant-General is also ex-officio Deputy Controller of the Currency and is assisted by a currency officer of the rank of Assistant Accountant-General who is in immediate charge of the Currency office. In this capacity as Principal Audit Officer, the Accountant-General is assisted by two Deputy and three Assistant Accountant-General besides four Assistant Accounts Officers. One of theDeputies is in charge of the civil audit and the other in charge of the public works audit. Each year the Accountant-General reviews the result of the audit conducted by him during the past official year in his audit and appropriation reports which are transmitted, through the Auditor-General in India, to the Finance Department to be placed before the Committee on Public Accounts for scrutiny and report to the Legislative Council.

Salt, Abkari and Separate Revenue.—The manufacture and sale of salt and of intoxicating liquors and drugs including opium are controlled by the Salt Abkari and Separate Revenue Department. The head of the department is the Commissioner who is a Member of the Board of Revenue. There are three Deputy Commissioners, who have charge of the Northern, Southern and Central territorial divisions, and an Assistant Commissionor of Distilleries who is responsible for the supervision of distilleries. One Deputy Commissioner and the Secretary to the Commissioner are usually Members of the Indian Civil Service. There are 11 Assistant Commissioners and 85 Inspectors. The manufacture of salt is a Government monapoly and one of the principal duties of the officers of the department is the prevention of the unauthorised manufacture of salt. The factories are of two classes; in factories for the manufacture of salt for sale to Government, salt is manufactured by ryots who are paid for their salt by Government as soon as it is stored, and this salt is again sold by Government normally at fixed rates and occasionally in public auction; in factories for the manufacture of sale for general sale, private persons are permitted not only to carry on manufacture subject to the conditions of their licences but also to dispose of their salt at their own price and discretion. Salt which has been sold by Government, and salt which is the property of licensees or of purchasers from them, may not be removed from the factories until duty at the rate fixed by the Government of India has been paid.

The manufacture and the sale of any intoxicating liquor or drug except under due authority are prohibited by law. In the case of imported liquors, the duties leviable under the tariff for the time being in force are credited to Customs, and the excise revenue therefrom is derived only from licences for the privilege of vend. The right of vend in taverns licensed for the retail sale of liquor on and off the premises is sold in public auction; in other cases, fixed fees are charged for licences. A brewer must take out a licence and comply with certain rules, duty, which is at present fixed at 8 annas per imperial gallon, must be paid once in a quarter on the total quantity of beer brewed during the quarter, less 5 per cent allowed for wastage.

The revenue derived from country spirit is levied partly by means of a still-head duty and partly by licence fees and the sale of the right of vend; country spirit is arrack which is generally distilled from jaggery or molasses. Under the "contract distillery system," which is now in force throughout the whole Presidency with the exception of the major portion of the Agency division where the central distillery and outstill systems are in force, the exclusive privilege of manufacture and supply of country spirits throughout a district or other specified area is disposed of by tender to approved individuals and firms. Tenderers are required to state at what rate over and above the still-head duty they are prepared to supyly spirits of specified strengths from a central source of supply (distillery and warehouse) in each contract area. The successful tenderer has the monopoly of supply of liquor of his own manufacture to retail vendors within the area of his contract at rates which are fixed by Government, and he must generally establish wholesale depots at convenient places for this purpose, he must also pay the still.head duty at the rate fixed by Government on all liquor so issued the duty, except in certain low-duty areas, varies from Rs. 6-14-0 to Rs. 8-7-7 per proof gallion, except in Madras City and the Saidapet taluk of the Chingleput district were it is Rs. 10-10-0 per proof gallon; the annual fee for a licence to establish and maintain a distillery is Rs. 100 and licences for warehouses are issued free. If a distiller himself establishes a wholesale depot, no fee is charged, but to facilitate the supply of spiri ts to retail vendors in tracts which are not within easy reach of a distillery or a warehouse licences are issued at the instance of the contractor to persons who are not distillers, on payment of a fee of Rs. 15 for the wholesale vend of country spirits, the licensees being allowed to sell onld to other wholesale depot keepers and independent arrack shopkeepers in the districts or other tracts to which the licence applies. The manufacture is separated from the sale of liquor. The right of retail vend of country spirits is sold annually in public auction by separate shops. The rates of still-head duty are fixed by the Governor in Council and may vary from year to year. Liquor may be issued and sold only at certain specified strengths. viz., 35o or 60o under-proof, except in the low-duty area round Pondicherry in the South Arcot district and the Attapadi valley, where lipuor of strength 40. under-proof may be sold.

Untermented or "sweet" toddy—the sap of a cocoanut, sago, palmyra, date or dadasal palm—is not subject to any taxation, but it must be drawn in pots freshly coated internally with lime or containing sufficient lime to prevent fermentation, Fermented toddy is taxed by means of rents payable for the right of retail vend and also, throughout the greater part of the Presidency, by means of the tree-tax system under which a fixed fee is charged for every tree, from which it is intended to draw fermented toddy. The right of retail vend is sold in public auction. Under the tree-tax system, no palm tree may be tapped for the purpose of producing fermented toddy without a licence, upon issue of which the tree is given a distinguishing mark. The fees for licences to tap cocoanut and sago palms are Rs 4-8-0 and Rs. 9-0-0 a tree for each half-year and the fee for a licence to tap a palmyra or date palm if Rs. 3 a year in the major portion of the Presidency; in some districts, fees are levied at five-sixths of these rates and in some at 25 per cent in excess of those rates. Special rates are in force in the Agency.

An excise licensing board has been appointed for the City of Madras with power to determine the number and location of shops for the sale of intoxicants of all kinds. In district municipalties and unions of an urban character special local committees are appointed to advise the Collectors in respect of the number and location of shops. In other areas, the number and sites of shops are determined by the Collector inconsultation with the District Superintendent of Police. Representations made by district or talukboards, village panchayats and other public bodies are duly considered and weight is attached to local opinion and the opinion of persons specially interested, e.g., railway authorities and large employers of labour. Lists of shops proposed for any lease within the jurisdiction of municipal councils and district and taluk boards are placed before the body concerned three months before the date fixed for the auction sale and their views are taken into consideration. Inspections have been issued to Collectors that, as a rule, rural shops must not be located without permission within a furlong of a metalled road, that when shops on a roadside are sanctioned in rural are the minimum distance between such shops should ordinariy be five miles, that sites selected should be so far public that persons entering shops do not escape observation but not so prominent as to compel atention and that where pcssible, the shops should be located on Government land. The general rule is that shop licences are issued for a single year and the number and sites of shops are determined beforehand and are not altered except for very special reasons. Maximum numbers of shops to be opened in each district have been fixed according to requirements.

The cultivation of the poppy is prohibited, and the whole of the opium required for the Presidency is supplied by the Government factory at Ghasipur and stocked in district treasuries in the first instance and thence distributed to taluk cutcherries. It is issued to licensed vendors from taluk cutcherries at a price fixed form time to time. Import of opium or intoxicating drugs other than those used for smoking is permitted only—

(a) in the case of imports by sea by licenced dealers in opium for medicinal purposes or by licenced chemists, or.

(b) under special orders of the Board of Revenue to be obtained in each case.

The privilege of the retail vend of opium and of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drugs (other than smoking preparations) prepared therefrom is sold in auction by shops.

Licences for the cultivation of the hemp plant are issued only in the Bapatla taluk of the Guntur district and in the Polur taluk of the North Arcot district; elsewhere, its cultivation is absolutely prohibited. In tracts where it is licenced, the cultivators are required to convey the produce to public storehouses whence removals are allowed only on pre-payment of excise duty at Rs. 20 per seer of ganja and Rs. 3 per seer of bhang. Licences for the vend of these intoxicating drugs are sold in public auction,

Income-tax.—The assessment and collection of income-tax are controlled by the Income-Tax Department, the head of which is the Commissioner of Income-Tax. The income-tax work forms part of the ordinary duties of the officers of the Land Revenue Department, except in the City of Madras, where there is a speeial staff consisting of a Special Income-Tax Officer for assessing incomes between Rs. 10,000 and Rs. 50,000 and 9 Inspectors. There is a special staff in selected districts consisting of 7 Deputy Collectors, 43 Assistant Tahsildars and 4 Inspectors, with a special staff of accountants and clerks. A scheme for the creation of a self-contained Income-Tax Department in the Presidency was sanctioned during the year 1921-22 by the Government of India, and will be brought into force gradually. When it has been completely introduced, the department will become Imperial and will be controlled by the Commissioner wlth a superior staff of 4 Assistant Commissioners and 27 income-tax officers.

Stamps.—The Collector of Madras is also Superintendent of Stamps and Stationery and has under him an Assistant Superintendent who is a Deputy Collector.

Customs.—The sea and land customs establishments are controlled by the Collector of Customs, Madras, he is assisted by two Assistant Collectors who are members of the Imperial Customs Service and eight inspectors who are borne on the cadre of the Salt, Abkari and Customs Department.

Registration of Births and Deaths.—The registration of births and deaths is compulsory in municipalities and may be made compulsory in rural arreas by the Local Government under the Madras Registration of Births and Deaths Act (III of 1899); during the year 1921 this Act was in force in 2,726 towns and villages. In rural tracts the registers of births and deaths are maintained by railway station-masters or by headmen of villages according as the tracts are within or outside railway limits; where registration is not compulsory, the headman has to ascertain by careful enquiries the occurence of births and deaths outside railway limits. The registers are inspected and checked by officers of the Land Revenue, Medical and Vaccination Departments and by chairmen of municipalities and unions; but the officer responsible for the compilation of statistics for the whole presidency is the Director of Public Health.

Labour.—A new Department of Labour was constituted in the year 1920 under a Commissioner of Labour who is an officer of the Indian Civil Service. This department deals with questions concerning the welfare of labourers and the depressed classes, the administration of the Factories Act, the management and control of criminal tribes settlements and the emigration of labour. In his administration of the Factories Act, the Commissioner of Labour is assisted by one Chief Inspector, three Inspectors and one Assistant Inspector.

Medical Sanitation and Vaccination.—The higher appointments in the Medical Department are usually held by commissioned officers of Indian Medical Service. The head of the departments is the Surgeon-General with the Government, who also superintends the Medical College, Madras, and the medical schools at Royapuram, Tanjore, Vizagapatam, Calicut and Madura. The branch of the department which deals with sanitation, vaccination and epidemics is superintended by the Director of Pubiic Health and his assistants. The Government maintain all the important hospitals in Madras City and all the district headquarter hospitals. The staff of the General Hospital includes three surgeons, four physicians and a resident medical officer; one of the surgeons or physicians is also the superintendent of the hospital and draws an extra allowance on that account, and all the seven are usually professors of the college; one of the professors of the college is also Principal and draws an extra allowance. The professor of chemistry is also the Chemical Examiner to Government. Four medical officers are stationed in Madras town which is divided into four departmental districts; the Presidency Surgeon, First District, is Inspector of Emigrants and Superintendent of the Medical School, Rayapuram. A District Medical and Sanitary Officer is stationed at the headquarters of each mofussil district and Civil Surgeons are stationed in seven other towns. The District Medical and Sanitary Officers, Tanjore, Vizagapatam, Malabar and Madura, are also the superintendents of the Medical schools in the respective districts. Medical Officers receive special fees for the inspection of vessels. Lunatic asylums are maintained by the Government at Madras, Calicut and Vizagapatam. There is a separate superintendent for the Asylum at Madras, but at Calicut and Vizagapatam the District Medical and Sanitary Officer and the Medical Superintendent of the Central Jail, respectively, are the superintendents. A leper hospital is maintained by Government at Madras in charge of an assistant surgeon working under the control of the Presidency Surgeon, First District. The Public Health Board advises local boards, municipal councils and the Government itself on all matters of public health administration; a sanitary engineer is employed to investigate and report on sanitary projects. The salaries of officers in the subordinate grades, including sub-assistant surgeons, vaccinators and sanitary inspectors, are paid wholly or mainly by local boards and municipal councils who maintain hospitals and dispensaries throughout the Presidency. Deputy Inspectors of Vaccination are paid wholly by Government.

Scientific Departments.—Appointments in connexion with science include the Superintendent, Government Central Museum, who is also Librarian of the Connemara Public Library, the Superintendent, Archæological Survey, and the Assistant Archæological Superintendent for Epigraphy for the Madras Presidency, the last two of whom have, under the reforms, become officers of the Imperial Department.

Legislative Council.—When first constituted by the Indian Councils Act of 1861, the Legislative Council of Madras consisted of the ordinary members of the Governor's Executive Council and a number of additional members besides the Advocate-General, of whom not less than half were to be non-officials nominated by the Governor. The number of nominated members, exclusive of the Advocate-General, was fixed at not less than four and not more than eight and thus the strength of the whole Council was so small that the Council could be described as "a mere committee for the purpose of making laws, a committee by means of which the executive Government obtained advice and assistance in their legislation and the public derived the advantage of full publicity at every stage of the law-making process." The Council could not inquire into grievances, call for information or examine the conduct of the executive; and even its legislative function consisted merely of registering the orders of the Government in a manner which ensured publicity and discussion. By the Councils Act of 1892 the minimum and maximum numbers of additional members, exclusive of the Advocate-General, were raised to 8 and 20, respectively. The Governor had power to nominate all of them, but he was to do so subject to certain regulations made by the Governor-General in Council with the approval of the Secretary of State in Council, and under these regulations seven non-official members were to be nominated on the recommendations of various local, commercial and learned bodies. Technically the function of the nominating bodies was to be that of mere recommendation, but,in practice,the nomination was always accepted and thus in course of time the system of election came to be firmly established. The Council was to contain an official majority, but it had the right of asking questions and of discussing though not voting upon the budget. The next stage in the development of the Council was marked by the Indian Councils Act, 1909 (The "Minto-Morley Reforms"), the salient features of which were (1) a great expansion in the strength of the Council—the Council consisted of 42 additional members, besides the ordinary members of the Governor's Council; (2) the legal recognition of the elective principle—21 members out of the 42 additional members were elected; (3) the abandonment of the official majority, though a combination of officials and nominated non-officials could obtain a majority over the elected members; (4) the grant of rights (a) to move resolutions on the budget and divide upon them, (b) to move resolutions upon matters of general public importance and (c) to ask supplementary questions.

The Government of India Act of 1919 made still further change in composition and functions fo the Local Legislative Council. The Council is no longer the Governor's Executive Council supplemented by a number of additional members for the purpose of legislation, but is a separate body consisting of members nominated or elected as provided by the Act and having an independent existentence of its own. The members of the Executive Council are ex-officio members of the Legislature but the Council contains in addition 98 elected and 25 nominated members The Ministers are appointed by the Governor but must not be officials and must be at the time of appointment or become within six months elected members of the Council. Of the nominated members not more than 19 may be officials; five are nominated to represent backward communities which are unlikely in any other way to secure representation, and one to represent the inhabitants of the Agency Division, which has been declared a backward tract. The Governor is not a member of the Legislative Council but has the right to address the Council and may for that purpose require the attendance of the members. Until the expiration of a period of four years from the first meeting of the Council, as constituted under the Act, the President is to be a person appointed by the Governor, but thereafter he will be a person elected by the Council from among the members and approved by the Governor. The Deputy President is a member of the Council elected by the Council and approved by the Governor. Of the ninety-eight elected members thirteen represent Muhammadan and five Indian Christian constituencies; the Europeans and Anglo-Indians of the Presidency each have one representative, as also the Madras University and the Planting community; commercial bodies have five and the larger landholders six; and the remaining sixty-five are elected by general non-Muhammadan constituencies. Twenty-eight of these sixty-five seats are reserved for non-Brahmans, though at the elections held at the end o

1920 considerably mere than this number were actually secured by non-Brahmans. For the rural constituencies the general qualification for a vote is the payment of Rs. 10 per annum in rent or revenue; for urban constituencies the payment of taxes at the minimum rate, or, in Madras, the occupation of a house of an annual value of not less than Rs. 60; irrespective of these qualifications, retired, pensioned or discharged officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers of His Majesty's regular forces are entitled to vote. Generally speaking, a voter must be a British subject, not of unsound mind and not under 21 years of age; a sex disqualification which formed part of the original rules has since been removed. The total number of voters on the first electoral rolls was over a millon and a quarter; and though this is a small proportion of the population of the Presidency, the enfranchisement of this number must be recognised as a great advance on the former system of indirect election. The number that actually went to the polls was 303,558.

The general qualifications for election to the Council run on the same lines as the qualifications for the franchise, with certain additions. The age minimum is raised to 25; conviction for a serious offence in a criminal court becomes a disqualification; and no person who is already a member of any legislative body constituted under the Act is eligible for election. Government servants are debarred from election, and the acceptance of any Crown office must be followed by resignation, except in the case of Ministers. The rules provide for the settlement of election disputes by a court of three commissioners of high judicial standing. New members are required to take an oath of allegiance to the Crown. On any failure to take this oath, the seat is declared vacant by the Governor, who may also declare vacant the seat of any member who is absent from India for a long period.

Powers of the Council.--Generally speaking, the Legislative Council has power, subject to the provisions of the Act, to make laws for the peace and good government of the province; but no legislation which affects any Act of Parliament is permissible. Considerable latitude is now allowed in respect of legislation for the imposition of taxation. Previous to the passing, of the Act, the consent of the Governor-General had to be obtained for all such legislation. This restriction has been removed in the case of certain scheduled taxes such as those on non-agricultual land and luxuries. Under the concurrent powers of legislation now granted to the Central and Provincial Legislatures, it is open to the provincial Council to amend, in its application to their own province, certain forms of legislation passed by the Central Legislatures. But it is obvious that, to ensure uniformity in India and to safeguard the observance of the general policy of the country, a large measure of control over matters affecting broader issues must be retained in the hands of the Central Legislature. This precaution is ensured by the scheduled limitation of the powers of the local Council; thus the following forms of legislation are not within the province of the Provincial Council:—

(a) Laws imposing new taxation, except such laws as are permitted by schedule (vide supra);

(b) Laws affecting the public debt of India or customs or taxes imposed by the authority of the Central Government;

(c) Laws affecting the Imperial forces or relations with foreign Princes or States;

(d) Laws regulating central subjects;

(e) Laws affecting provincial subjects which are declared to be subject to the legislation of the Central Government, or affecting the powers of the Governor-General, or such laws as aim at repealing or altering legislation which, according to the rules provided under the Act, can only be altered or repealed with previous sanction.

Powers of the Governor.—In pre-Reform days it was generally possible for the Government to pass any measure which it considered necessary and to prevent the passage of any measure which it regarded as injurious or unsound. With a large non-official majority these powers no longer remain and other safeguards for use in emergencies have had to be provided by the Government of India Act and the rules framed thereunder. Where any Bill has been introduced or is proposed to be introduced, or any amendment to a Bill is moved or proposed to be moved, the Governor may certify that the Bill or any clause of it or the amendment affects the safety or tranquillity of the Province or any part of it, or of another province and may direct that no further proceedings shad be taken in connection with it. Similarly, where the Council has refused leave to introduce, or has failed to pass in a form recommended by the Governor any Bill relating to a reserved subject, the Governor may certify that the passage of the Bill is essential for the discharge of his responsibility for the subject, and thereupon the Bill is deemed to have been passed. A measure so passed must ordinarily be reserved for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure, though where in the opinion of the Governor-General a state of emergency justifies such action, he may immediately signify his assent and the Act will come into force subject to subsequent disallowance by His Majesty in Council; and Acts passed under these provisions must be laid before both Houses of Parliament. It is further open to the Governor or the Governor-General, when a Bill has been passed by the Legislative Council, to withhold his assent; or the Governor may, instead of declaring that he assents to, or withholds his assent from, the Bill, return the Bill to the Council for reconsideration in whole or in part, together with any amendments which he may recommend; or, in certain cases for which provision is made in the rules, he may, or must, reserve the Bill for the consideration of the Governor-General. A Bill so reserved, if it does not receive the assent of the Governor-General within six months, lapses unless within that period the Governor has returned, or notified his intention to return, it to the Council for further consideration. No use has hitherto been made of these emergency powers.

Financial procedure.—The annual budget of the province is presented to the Council yearly on a day appointed by the Governor. There are two stages in the passage of the financial programme—a general discussion and the voting of demands for grants. But the following heads of expenditure are not subject to submission to the vote of the Council:—

(a) contributions payable by the Local Government to the Governor-General in Council;

(b) interest and sinking fund charges on loans;

(c) expenditure the amount of which is prescribed by law;

(d) salaries or pensions of persons appointed by or with the approval of His Majesty or by the Secretary of State in Council; and

(e) salaries of the High Court Judges and of the Advocate-General.

Normally, a separate demand is made in respect of the grant required for each department, but the Finance Member may unite the grants of two or more departments in one demand. On the appointed day, a motion for the granting of each demand is made by the responsible Member of Council or Minister. The members of the Legislative Council are then free to bring forward motions for the omission or reduction of a grant; but it is not open to them to move for the increase of any grant or for the alternation of its destination. There is statutory provision for excess grants and for supplementary grants. As in the case of ordinary legislation, the Governor has power to carry through demands in respect of reserved subjects when he is of opinion that such expenditure is essential for the proper discharge of his responsibilities, and in the case of all subjects, to enforce such expenditure as he considers essential for the safety of his province.

Resolutions.—Members have a right to move resolutions on matters of general public importance; fifteen days' notice must be given. Every resolution must be in the form of a recommendation to the Government, and no resolution may be moved on matters affecting relations with foreign States, relations with, or the administration of, Princes or Chiefs under the suzerainty of His Majesty, or on any matter which is sub judice. The Governor may disallow any resolution, before it is placed on the agenda, on the ground that the public interests would suffer thereby or that it relates to a matter which is not primarily the concern of the Local Government. The standing orders of the Council forbid the moving of a resolution which covers the same ground as a previous resolution of the same session.

Questions.—On giving seven days' notice a member may put a question on any matter of public concern, with the object of obtaining information from the member of the Government within whose special cognisance the subject-matter lies. The limitations on resolutions mentioned above apply equally to questions, and questions regarding controversies with higher authorities and the answers thereto are confined to matters and statements of fact. Any member who is dissatisfied with the answer given to his own or another member's question may follow up the question with a supplementary question.

Motions for adjournment.—It is open to any member to move for the adjournment of the business of the Council for the purpose of the discussion of a definite matter of urgent public importance. But the Governor may disallow such a motion on any of the grounds mentioned in the case of resolutions.

Education.—Public instruction is controlled by the Educational Department of Government. The control which Government exercise over the University of Madras is very slight, and consists chiefly in an annual audit of accounts and in the statutory rule whereby all changes in the by-laws of the University have to receive the sanction of the Governor in Council. Colleges may be affiliated to the University in compliance with certain regulations. Certain institutions are maintained and managed by Government directly; they include at present ten colleges for general education and nine colleges for special branches of education, of which four are not under the Educational Department, 36 secondary schools, 789 primary schools and 89 training schools for special education. Other institutions are aided by Government by money grants for various purposes on prescribed conditions. Government, local boards and municipalities make grants-in-aid to 362 and 22,889 schools, respectively, of the secondary and primary grade and to 201 other institutions under private management. Local boards and municipalities maintain in addition two colleges, 194 secondary schools and 9,708 elementary schools. Over these schools Government exercise considerable control by their scrutiny and sanction of the budgets of local bodies; the budget grants are made on the recommendation of the officers of the Educational Department. District boards and municipalities are subsidised by Government for the maintenance of secondary schools under their control, the net cost of those opened in 1918 and subsequent years being fully or partly met from Provincial funds, The Madras Elementary Education Act of 1920 requires taluk boards and municipalities to constitute " Elementary Education Funds " under their control and the budget estimates relating to such funds are subject to the approval of the Local Government. The Government further grant secondary school-leaving certificates to pupils of recognised schools, i.e,, schools which are managed in accordance with certain conditions laid down by Government. The Government notify from time to time the text-books which may be used in aided and recognised institutions. Scholarships are awarded annually by Government in recognized schools and colleges, some of them being reserved for females or members of the backward classes. In order to maintain a supply of competent teachers, Government maintain 89 training schools and 8 training colleges for teachers, grant stipends to a large number of their students and, after examination, issue teaching certificates; the staff of a recognised or aided school must consist of teachers holding such certificates or having some equivalent professional qualifications. There are 20 training schools for masters and 15 for mistresses under private (mission) management. Sex does not affect a candidate's eligibility to appear for the public and University examination, and women can obtain degrees on the same terms as men ; girls may, as a rule, attend the elementary schools for boys and there are secondary and elementary schools for girls only ; 4 colleges for women are affiliated to the University. The education of backward and indigent classes is specially encouraged by the maintenance of schools and the grant of assistance in money to schools for such classes under private management at increased rates and on conditions easier than those presescribed for ordinary schools Technical education is promoted by the maintenance of technical colleges affiliated to the University, by a system of technical examinations, by the inclusion in the secondary school-leaving certificate scheme of technical subjects and by the award of scholarships to be held in technical schools and colleges. In elementary schools the pupils are usually taught in their own vernacular, but English is the medinm of instruction and examination in the high school departments of all high schools except a few vernacular high schools for girls and in all colleges affiliated to the University. Physical education is practically compulsory in all recognized schools. Four classes for the training of physical training instructors are maintained, two by Government and two by aided high schools. The examinations for the higher grade teachers' certificates include questions on moral training. Religious instruction is not included in any of the prescribed courses of instruction: but while Government does not provide religious instrction in its own institution with the exception of the Madrasa-i-Azam, teacher in recognized schools may impart religious instruction at any time provided that secular instruction is given for the prescribed number of hours.

The head of the Educational Department under Government is the Director of Public Instruction The department is broadly divided into (a) the superior service and (b) the subordinate service. The former consists of the Indian Educational Service and the Madras educational Service. The Indian Education Service consists of 66 ports, 13 of which are inoulded in the Women's Branch. These posts are filled by persons appointed in England or in India with the approval of the Secretary of State. The Madras Educational Service consists of 62 posts, 19 of which are included in the Women's Branch. These posts are filled by recruitment in India. There are also certain special posts, not included in the Indian Educational Service but recruited from England, and others not included in the Madras Educational Service to which appointments are made by the Local Government. The pay of officers in the Indian Educational Service ranges from Rs 400 to Rs. 1,755 per mensem, with allowances in special cases, while that of persons in the women's Branch ranges from Rs. 400 to Rs. 1,050. In the Madras Educational Service the minimum and maximum pay are Rs. 250 and Rs. 800, and in the Women's Branch Rs. 200 and Rs. 500.

For the purpose of the administration of the education of boys the Presidency is divided into sixteen circles and for that of girls into five circles, each of which is under an inspector or inspectress of schools. There is an Inspector of European Schools belonging to the Indian Educational Service with a provincial assistant. The inspectors and inspectresses are members of the Indian Educational Service. Where inspectors' circles include more than one district each district has an assistant inspector. Under these are 181 sub-assistant inspectors; there are also 14 sub-assistant inspectors of Muhammadan and Mappilla schools and one sub-assistant inspector forBangalore. There are a superintendent and two supervisors of Sanskrit schools. For the supervision of girls' school there are three provincial assistant inspectresses and 18 sub-assistants of the subordinate service. Except in the Agency and in connexion with Sanskrit schools, the cadre of supervisors of boys' elementary schools was recently abolished. An adviser with an assistant and three touring demonstrators supervise physical training.

The Text-book Committee was appointed to take into consideration such books as may be referred to it by the Director of Public Instruction and to advise him on their suitability, to advise the Educational Department on the steps to be taken for the preparation and publication of new text-books when necessary and to help in forming under the control of the Director of Public Instruction (1) an educational library containing copies of all text-books aproved from time to time by the department, copies of text-books approved or prescribed in other provinces of India and in other countries and copies of works on the theory, the practice and the history of education and (2) an educational museum containing plans and models of school buildings and specimens of maps, diagrams, apparatus and appliances suitable for schools. The committee consists of 40 members appointed by the Director of Public Instruction, who is the ex-officio president. The committee submits half-yearly to the Director a list of books considered, with its recommendations. The Director publishes lists of books approved for use in institutions under public management and approved for use in recognised institutions under private management.

Educational institutions are classified independently in three ways. First, they are classified as private institutions and public institutions. All indigenous schools which have not accepted the departmental standards of instruction and all others in which the course of instruction, however advanced, does not conform to the standards prescribed or accepted by the University or by the department are private institutions. Public institutions include all other institutions whether under public management (i. e., managed by Government, by local boards or by municipalities) or under private management; the latter may be either aided by Government, by local boards or by municipalities or financially independent.

Schools not managed by Government are divided into "recognized" and "unrecognised." The conditions of recognition (vide the Madras Educational Rules) deal with the general educational qualifications of the staff, the prohibition of political, activities among managers, teachers and pupils, the proportion of teachers to pupils, the accommodation and appliances, sanitary inspection, fees, the admission, promotion and withdrawal of pupils, discipline and registers.

Secondly, public institutions are classified, according to the standard of instruction provided, into elementary schools (lower and higher), secondary schools, special schools (art, law, etc.), arts colleges (second grade and first grade) affiliated to the University of Madras and professional colleges (law, etc.) also affiliated to the University. In second grade colleges the highest instruction is that required for the intermediate examination in arts and science, while in first grade colleges students are educated for the B.A. honours degree or pass examination. In each of the professional colleges instruction for the corresponding degree examination is given.

Lastly, schools may be divided into "English" and "Vernacular." English schools include all schools in which English is used as the general medium of instruction either throughout the schools or in one or more of the higher classes or forms. Other schools are vernacular schools.

Examinations are held annually to test the teaching qualifications of the candidates and certificates are granted on the results of these examinations. They are of three kinds:—general teachers' certificates, of ability to teach the subjects that are ordinarily contained in the curricula of schools for general instruction; technical teachers' certificates, certificates of ability to teach in any one of the subjects included in the Government technical examination scheme; and physical training instructors' certificates. Teachers' certificates are of three grades:—collegiate, granted only to persons who have taken the degree of Licentiate in Teaching in the University, secondary and elementary. There are three grades of technical teachers' certificates, namely, advanced, intermediate and elementary. In each grade, certificates are divided into first and second classes. Examinations for secondary and elementary certificates are held at different centres by the Commissioner for Government Examinations. The examination for the teachers' certificates comprises a written test in pedagogy for the secondary grade and in some subjects of general education also for the elementary grade. Successful candidates are called probationary certificated teachers. After not less than 18 months of satisfactory teaching work in a recognized school probationers are, if suitable confirmed after a further test. No candidate is admitted to the test for a technical teachers' certificate unless he has passed the advanced or intermediate or elementary technical examination, as the case may be in the subject in which he desires to be tested or an equivalent examination. The nature of the examination varies with the subject, but must include a practical test in teaching a class in the subject.

Training institutions are divided into three classes, training colleges and secondary and elementary training schools, according to the grade of teachers' certificate for which the pupils are trained. In addition to the colleges at Saidapet and Rajahmundry, Government maintain at present twenty training schools for masters, fifteen training schools for mistresses, and two for physical training instructors. Government also maintain in full the L. T. class attached to the St. Joseph's College, Trichinopoly, and aided secondary training classes attached to the Pithapur Raja's College, Cocanada, C M. S. Noble College, Masulipatam, S. P. G High School, Nandyal, and Thirthapati High School, Ambasamudram. Local boards from time to time run sessional schools for sessions of a few months; teachers specially appointed for this work move from place to place, their object being to improve the general education of local teachers who have not secured the secondary school-leaving certificate and not to give instruction in the theory and art of teaching. Students from the Madras Presidency are admitted to the Government training institutions free; but outsiders are called upon to pay fees. A course usually occupies two years, but for the L. T. degree it occupies only one year. Stipends are granted by Government to the great majority of the students. Local boards also may grant stipends.

Schools are classified, acooding to the aims and character of the instruction given in them, into secondary and elementary. Secondary schools prepare their pupils for the University and for professional, commercial and industrial careers. Elementary schools aim more at providing a foundation of general and useful knowledge than at preparing children specially for a course of secondary education; but the education in the three lowest standards is such as to constitute a common foundation for both elementary and secondary education. A much higher standard of staff, buildings and equipment is expected of secondary than of elementary schools and the fees are correspondingly higher.

This simplification of classification and the change in the relations between the secondary and elementary schools have made public examinations marking the transition from one grade of eduation to another unnecessary and the old primary and lower and upper secondary examinations have been abolished. The University matriculation examination is still held, but the schools have universally taken up the secondary school-leaving certificate scheme, and the number of candidates for matriculation from this Presidency has become negligible.

The need for leaving certificates as evidence of a course of education having been satisfactorily accomplished was, however, recognized. These certificates are of two grades: elementary and secondary. The first are granted on the result of an examination in the ordinary school subjects held in the elementary schools itself by an officer not lower in rank than a sub-assistant inspector. The second are granted by a board of which the Director is the president in accordance with the following scheme. The list of subjects includes all those now studied in schools and any others which seem useful.

With a view to enabling pupils of promise to prosecute their studies, the Government award certain scholarships annually. Particulars regarding them are published annually in the Fort St. George Gazette.

Special scholarships, tenable for one year, are awarded to deserving Mappilla pupils in the Ernad and Wallavanad taluks in Malabar, with a view to subduing, by the spread of education, the ignorant fanaticism of the masses of this community. General scholarships are awarded annually to pupils reading in the higher standards of elementary schools. Special scholarships are given to encourage the education of the children of aboriginal, backward and criminal tribes and classes such as the Koyas, Savaras, Valayas and Koravars; Muhammadans and Adi-Dravidas and Adi-Andhras in secondary schools also have their allotted scholarships. Industrial Schools are under the Control of the Director of Industries. They are 41 aided institutions providing instruction to persons of both sexes in various industrials subjects. These institutions are scattered throughout the Presidency and are under the immediate charge of a special inspector. In addition to the aided institutions, there are four Government institutions, three of which are situated in Madras and the fourth at Madura. The Madras Trades school aims at supplying the industrial public with intelligent and skilled mechanics, electricians and plumbers equipped with a sound theoretical and practical training. Admission to the school is restricted to bona fide apprentices and workmen who are actually engaged in the trade which they wish to study.

Technical examinations are held annually under the control of the Commissioner for Government Examinations in 88 subjects under the following heads :—civil engineering, mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, physical science, geology, biology, sanitary science, Pharmacy, veterinary science, commerce, vernacular shorthand, drawing, jeweller's work, printing, book-binding, type-founding, leather work, textile fabrics, glass and pottery, tailoring and dress-making and cookery.

With a view to providing facilities to men of suitable age and skil possessing exceptional initiative in any branch of industry and who seem likely to add considerably to their usefulness by a special training in Europe, eight State Technical Scholarships of the value of £200 plus 25 per cent bonus have been instituted. These scholarships are awarded for not less than two or more than five years. The nominations are made by a board specially constituted for the purpose. Fifteen scholarships of the value of Rs. 60 per mensem tenable at the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore, have been instituted with a view to providing adequate facilities for the technical training of intending chemists. The scholarships are awarded for study in the departments of applied chemistry, bio-chemistry and electrical technology. Six scholarships per annum of the monthly value of Rs. 60 tenable at the Victoria Institute, Bombay, are awarded to students of this Presidency. The minimum educational qualifications required of the applicants is a completed secondary school-leaving certificate. The scholarships are tenable for a period of four years, and are awarded for the study of applied chemistry, sanitary engineering and plumbing, and textile manufacture. Sixty scholarships tenable for five years are awarded annually by the Director of Industries to pupils learning a trade or profession in recognized industrial schools, or to selected apprentices (boys or girls) serving properly arranged apprenticeships for a specified term of training in workshops or mills where suitable provision is made for class instruction. The aim of these scholarships is to encourage deserving apprentices and pupils to complete their whole apprenticeship or period of training at one institution or workshop, and so to some extent to check the present tendency of apprentices to move from workshop to workshop in search of a few annas increase in wages to the detriment of their training and the annoyance of their employers. These scholarships which are ordinarily awarded to the members of the artisan class or to others whose families are already engaged in the trade, rise in value from Rs. 1-8-0 in the first year to Rs. 7-8-0 in the fifth year and a yearly bonus is given for good work.

The Local Government exerts considerable influence over education not only directly by the maintenance of institutions from provincial funds and by the exercise of the extensive powers of control vested in them over local boards and municipal councils by the Acts relating to those bodies, but also indirectly by making grants to managers of institutions under private management on condition of compliance with certain regulations and by allowing local boards and municipal councils to make similar grants towards the cost of maintenance of elementary schools on the recommendation of officers of the Educational Department. If aid is sought on behalf of an institution, the conditions of recognition must be fulfilled unless the institution has been exempted from their operation. The recognition of secondary schools vests in the Director of Public Instruction, while the recognition of elementary schools vests in the District Educational Councils formed under the Madras Elementary Education Act. Text-books which are not included in the authorized list of text-books may not be used in aided institutions without the express sanction of the Director. The whole income of an aided school must be devoted to educational purposes.

The systems of distributing grants differ in elementary schools for Indians, secondary schools for Indians, colleges and special schools and European schools. Teaching grants in elementary schools are given on the basis of the number of teachers and vary according to the grade of instruction given and the teachers' qualifications. The grants may be reduced or suspended in cases where there has been falsification of the registers or misrepresentation regarding the employment of teachers or the attendance of pupils, or violation of any of the conditions of recognition and aid or any other irregularity. They may also be increased by 50 per cent for any improvement in efficiency, more especially for the introduction of any method of teaching calculated to train the children's faculties and powers of expression and observation, proper attention to physical exercise and generally any attempt to fit the children to their position in life and diminished by 20 per cent for inefficiency These grants are paid by District Educational Councils out of funds placed at their disposal by Government.

In secondary schools teaching grants are intended to supplement equally the income guaranteed from endowments, subscriptions, donations and other private sources and in practice the sum assigned usually amounts to half the net cost of the school, excluding expenditure on account of which grants can otherwise be given, such as on new building, furniture and apparatus, and assuming that fees are received from all pupils at rates fixed by Government and called the standard rates.

The grants for colleges and special schools are fixed by the Director after taking into consideration all the facts of the case.

Grants for European schools are fixed for three years by the Director on general considerations. Grants are also made towards stipends, to managers of training institutions, to students in technical schools, for the maintenance of European children, for school buildings, for hostels or boarding houses for students. for furniture, books and appliances required for schools, public libraries and reading rooms. In many cases the amount of grants depends on the sums contributed by managers of institutions or private persons. Full details regarding grants will be found in the Grant-in-Aid Code.

The Law College, Madras, is at present the only educational institution in the Presidency itself which affords facilities for the study of law. It was founded in 1891 as it was found that the law classes formerly attached to the Presidency College were unwieldy and the course of instruction was inadequate. The ostensible aim of the college is instruction in the theory of law; practically it is intended to afford instruction to students preparing for the various examinations in law. It is affiliated to the Madras University. The rules regulating its constitution and working are sanctioned by the Local Government. The staff consists of a principal, two professors and 6 assistant professors appointed by the Local Government. The general management of the college is vested in a council, subject to the general control of the Director of Public Instruction; the council consists of two or more Judges of the High Court, the Principal, the Advocate-General, two professors and such other members as may be appointed by Government; the executive management of the college is vested in the principal who is independent of the council in all matters of discipline. The college contains four kinds of classes; (1) M.L. classes; (2) B.L classes; (3) pleadership classes; and (4) special classes for students attending the college but not preparing for the University or pleadership examinations. Fees are levied at half rates from Muhammadans and Oriyas. There are two terms a year. Lending and consulting libraries are attached to the college.

The medical school established by Government in 1885 became a college in 1851. The control of the college was transferred in 1855 from the Medical Board to the Director of Public Instruction and in 1911 from him to the Surgeon-General; in 1857 the college was affiliated to the University of Madras. The government of the college is, subject to the general control of the Surgeon-General, now vested in the principal, who is aided by a consultative council composed of all the professors and of any other members who may be appointed by Government. The staff consists of a principal, twelve professors, two lecturers, twenty-three assistant professors and a physical training instructor. The college contains four departments, (i) the College, department, in which students are prepared for the M.B. & B.S. and the L.M. & S. degrees; (ii) the Assistant Surgeons' department, consisting only of military pupils, selected by the Director-General Indian Medical Service, for qualifying as military Assistant Surgeons, and of female pupils; (iii) the Chemist and Druggist department; and (iv) the Sanitary Inspector's department. Attendance at the lectures given in the Medical College is recognised in Great Britain as partial qualification for degrees and diplomas granted in that country. Numerous scholarships, medals and prizes are awarded to students of the College. Museums, a library and a gymnasium are attached to the College. Students have also the advantage of attending classes held in the General Hospital, the Government Ophthalmic Hospital, the Government Maternity Hospital and the Lunatic Asylum.

In the year 1876 a School of Agriculture was established at Saidapet. Prior to this date instruction of an elementary character had been given to a few apprentices. In 1878 the name of the institution was changed into that of "Agricultural College." The principal of the college was then also the Superintendent of the Government Farm at Saidapet. The educational side of his work was controlled by the Director of Public Instruction, while his practical administration was under the control of the Board of Revenue. In 1885 the farm was abolished and the college came under the sole control of the Educational Department. The growth of agricultural science and research led to the moving of the college to its present site at Coimbatore in 1906; the first batch of students entered the college in June 1908 and diplomas were first awarded in March 1911. Attached to the college are a hostel for students and quarters for the staff. The general farm and college estate occupy about 500 acres, of which about 340 acres are under cultivation. In addition to ordinary farm buildings there are a dairy, workshops and a veterinary hospital, and three plant-breeding stations for cotton, paddy and sugarcane. The responsibility for the discipline and management of the college is vested in the principal, subject to the control of the Director of Agriculture. There are a number of scientific sections of an instructional or scientific nature in the college, each in charge of a member of the Indian Agricultural service under the direct control of the Director of Agriculture. The instruction given at the college is designed to be a practical and scientific training for those who intend to make agriculture their profession. The college was affiliated to Madras University early in 1922 when the University degree of B Sc. Ag., was instituted. The courses of instruction provided are (1) a two years' course of a practical nature in which scientific instruction as such plays no part; a certificate of proficiency is awarded to competent students; and (2) a three-years' course leading up to the degree of B. Sc.

Ag. in which a tohrough training in the practice and theory of scientific agriculture is given. Students are required to have passed completely the intermediate examination in arts of the Madras University and should be qualified in Group I or II. Free tuition and lodging are given to students of the Presidency and of Coorg. A certain number of Government scholarships of the value of Rs. 25 per mensem are offered to students entering the degree course and there is one private scholarship of Rs. 110 per annum for which students from Malabar are eligible. Successful students have the prospect of employment as managers or agents to zamindars, planters and estate owners are in the Government Agricultural Department.

In 1903 the Veterinary College at Vepery, Madras, was instituted, in connection with the Society for Preventing Cruelty to Animals infirmary, to meet the pressing demand for subordinates trained in veterinary duties. The college affords theoretical and practical instruction with the object of training men for service under Government, municipalities, local boards or private employees. The present staff, of the college consists of a principal, two other Imperial officers, an assistant principal, three lecturers and two assistant lecturers. The responsibility for the discipline and management of the college is invested in the principal who is under the direct control of Government in the Development Department. A veterinary hospital, a bacteriological laboratory, a shoeing forge and a hostel are attached to the college. The age limits for admission to the college are from 18 to 22 years. Except in the case of Europeans and Anglo-Indians, educational qualifications of a school final examination standard are demanded. All students are on probation for the first two months of the three years' course. During the first year students are given practical instruction in nursing, dressing, handling, casting and securing animals as well as in the names of the instruments and appliances used in ordinary practice. In the second year they attend hospital practice and receive clinical instruction. They also attend at the forge and pharmacy, carry out dissections and perform operations on dead subjects. During the third year they perform the duties of clinical clerks and dressers, perform operations on dead subjects and afterwards on living animals, conduct postmortem examinations and carry out practically all the duties appertaining to their profession. The tuition is free to all students who execute an agreement binding themselves to serve Government for five years, if required, after completing their course in the college satisfactorily. All others are required to pay tuition fees in advance at the rate of Rs. 400 per annum. Forty students are admitted to the college each year and all are awarded scholarships ; five of the forty scholarships are reserved for Muhammadans. Students who are in the enjoyment of Government scholarships are required to refund the amount they have received as stipends and to pay tution fees if they leave the college without sanction or are expelled for misconduct. A diploma of graduation in veterinary science is awarded to students who pass the final examination on the completion of their course. Graduates of the college are eligible for appointment to posts in the Provincial and subordinate services in this Presidency, but Government are under no obligation to find employment for them.

The Engineering college at Guindy, Madras, established in the year 1794 as a survey school developed into a civil engineering college in 1857, It received official recognition in 1586 and was affiliated to the Madras University in 1877. It affords theoretical and practical instruction in the professional duties of engineers and subordinate engineers. The responsibility for the discipline and management of the college is vested in the principal, under the control of the Director of Public Instruction. The full staff consists of a principal, six professors, a number of instructors and assistants who are recruited from the cadre of the Department of Public Works, a workshop instructor and an instructor in physical training. The college contains two classes : a five years Engineer class for training civil and mechanical engineers and a four years' course subordinate class for training subordinates for the Public Works Department, Revenue Department, local boards and municipalities. Casual students are also admitted to the engineer class. Students in the higher course of engineering are prepared for the B.E. degree examination of the Madras University. Government awards scholarships tenable in the college and there are also certain endowed scholarships. Some of the students of the engineering class who proceed to the Perambur work-shops of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway, the central power station of the Madras Electric Supply Corporation, the Madras harbour works, or the Madras water-supply and drainage works, receive a refund of half the premium charged, if their subsequent work gives satisfaction. Four stipends are awarded annually to persons to be trained as teachers in technical or industrial schools. On his successful completion of a course in either of the two classes a student is granted a diploma, and this diploma gives him a prior claim to certain appointments in the Public Works Department and under local boards.

The Teachers College was established as the Government Normal School in 1856, was converted into a college and affiliated to the University in 1886. The staff consists of a principal, a vice-principal, five lecturers and instructors for manual training, drawing and physical training and a number of assistants. The college is intended primarily for the training of graduate teachers from the Presidency, but if accommodation is available students from Native States are admitted. A secondary training class is attached to the college. The students, who receive stipends from Government ranging from Rs. 12 to Rs. 20 per mensem, according to their qualifications, are trained for the L.T. degree examination of the Madras University. Instruction is also given to the students in physical training, drawing and manual training and they may appear for public examinations in these subjects. A model school of the secondary standard is attached to the college and has an independent staff of teachers. There is also a kindergarten department presided over by a European lady. The college has a large library and an educational museum. Connected with the college are a teachers' association, of which all the students are members, a reading room and a recreation club and a hostel. The college accommodation is extensive and it is provided with a well equipped laboratory for physical and natural science.

The Training College, Rajahmundry, which was abolished in 1911, was re-opened in 1917 with a view to providing for the training of graduate teachers in Telugu districts. The staff consists of a principal, a junior professor of education, three lecturers and instructors in drawing and physical and manual training. The college prepares students for the L T. degree examination but has not been affiliated to the University. Attached to the college are a model school of the secondary standard with an independent staff of teachers and a secondary training section.

In the year 1856 Sir Henry Lawrence, K.C.B., offered a donation of Rs. 5,000 and a subscription of Rs. 1,000 a year, so long as he might be in India, for the establishment at some hill station in this Presidency of an institution on the lines of the Lawrence Asylums of Sonawar and at Mount Abu, for the benefit of children of soldiers of the British army who were serving or had served in Madras. The Lawrence Asylum was accordingly established in 1858 at Ootacamund with the aid of the foundation money and of subscriptions raised in the army and in England. It was amalgamated with the Madras Military Male Orphan Asylum in 1871 on the completion of new buildings at Lovedale near Ootacamund. Though the Asylum does not belong to Government, it is largely controlled by Government who have sanctioned a code of rules relating to its management and constitution and furnish it with two fixed annual grants-in-aid amounting to Rs. 54,000. The institution consists of branches for boys and for girls, the maximum strength of the branches being 300 and 165. It is intended for European and Eurasian children, especially the orphan children of military officers and soldiers. The management of the Asylum is vested in a committee, of which the General Officer Commanding Madras district is ex-officio chairman and the principal is ordinarily the secretary. The staff consists of a principal, a headmaster in the branch for boys, a headmistress in the branch for girls and several assistant teachers in each branch. Instruction in literary subjects is given to boys as far as the standard of the European schools high school examination, but only such pupils as would clearly benefit by a high school education are allowed to go beyond the middle school. Instruction is also given in technical subjects such as shorthand, typewriting and telegraphy, and special classes are held for pupils preparing for the medical and railway examinations. Religious instruction of a non-sectarian character is given, but visits from clergymen of the various denominations are permitted. Scholarships are awarded to pupils of promise to enable them to complete a course in an arts or a technical college or for industrial training in some well-known firm or institution. Stipends are also given to girls to enable them to be trained as teachers.

No person can be appointed in this Presidency to a Government post carrying a salary of Rs. 35 per mensem in the mufassal or Rs. 40 per mensem in Madras City or more, unless he has passed with success through the secondary stage of education. Government accept as evidence of this standard a pass in the matriculation examination of any Indian University, in a school final examination, in the European schools high school examination, or in certain examinations held in Great Britain, or a Madras secondary school leaving certificate showing knowlege in English, elementary mathematics and vernacular composition and translation and in at least one of the other subjects selected by the candidate. Persons in the public service have to pass certain special tests before they can hold some of the higher appointments; these tests include translation, accounts, civil judicial, criminal judicial, revenue and jail tests.

For the conduct of examinations held by Government, the office of Commissioner for the uncovenanted Civil Service examinations, or, as the office is now called, Commissioner for Government Examinations was instituted in 1860. It was entrusted at first to the Director of Public Instruction subsequently to a member of the Board of Revenue, and finally in 1880 to the Director of Public Instruction. Examiners are appointed by the Commissioner and are paid out of the fees realised from the candidates. Most of the examinations prescribed for entry into or promotion in the various departments of the public service are conducted by the commissioner. The examinations are held at a large number of centres in the Presidency, and in some cases in the Native States.

The junior officers of the various Government departments are required to pass tests in such subjects as languages, law, and departmental rules, and high proficiency in the vernaculars is encouraged by the granting of rewards after examination. To conduct these examinations, the Board of Examiners has been constituted and the president selects examiners from the board. The present board consists of a president who is usually a member of the Board of Revenue, certain ex-officio members, and a varying number of special members appointed by Government from time to time. The Accountant-General, Inspector-General of Police, certain Conservators of Forests, the Chief Presidency Magistrate, the Professor of Medical Jurisprudence in the Medical College, the Registrar of the High Court and the Translators to Government are ex-officio members of the board. The Officers who are examined by the board include members of the Indian Civil Service, Police Officers, Forest officers, Cantonment Magistrates, Officers of the Provincial Service, officers of the Agricultural, Veterinary and Fishery departments, European and Anglo-Indian officers of the Educational department, and European and Anglo-Indian officers of other Civil departments in the Presidency, Military officers, including commissioned medical officers who are District Medical and Sanitary officers are examined only in the vernacular languages. Ladies related to European officers in the employment of Government, the railways, the Imperial Bank of India and certain firms are eligible for examination in the vernacular languages and for the rewards granted for proficiency. The examinations are usually held twice a year (in January and July, at Madras but may, in some cases, be held simultaneously at others centres. The tests for officers of the Salt Abkari and Customs departments are also conducted by this board through examiners appointed from the department.

The pleadership examination was instituted in 1879 for the purpose of ascertaining the qualifications of persons desirous of becoming pleaders in courts subordinate to High Court, with reference to the rules framed by the High Court under section 6 of the Legal Practitioners' Act XVII of 1879. The board consists of a Judge of the High Court, the Advocate-General the Government Pleader, the Principal of the Law College, a Barrister and a High Court Vakil, with the Deputy Registrar of the High Court, Appellate Side, as member and secretary. The examination is held once a year at Madras. The High Court from time to time prescribes the subjects of examination and determines the general qualifications and standard of proficiency for the first-grade certificate. Examiners are appointed by Government to conduct each examination on the recommendation of the examination board.

AGRICULTURE.

Their Excellencies the Governor and Lady Willingdon visited the Agricultural College in June 1922 and His Excellency laid the foundation stone of the new Teaching College. In December His Excellency formally opened the Paddy Breeding sub-station at Aduturai in the Tanjore district. Five officers on probation in the Madras Agricultural Service were confirmed during the year and two were recruited to the service on probation. The sanctioned cadre of Upper Subordinates in the Agricultural section of the non-gazetted service was increased from 72 to 86. The post of Temporary Inspector of Agricultural Offices was made permanent, but that of the Government Agricultural Bacteriologist was held in abeyance and the subordinate staff of the Bacteriological section, except one assistant who was transferred to the Chemistry section, was discharged. Owing to lack of funds little progress was made with buildings and laying out of farms during the year. In April 1922 the Agricultural College was affiliated to the University of Madras and the replacement of the old Diploma course by a course for the degree of B. Sc. Ag. was completed. The certificate course was continued during the year, but fewer students attended it. An Agricultural Middle School for 40 boys was opened at Taliparamba. A similar school was opened at Anakapalle.

Varietal tests continued to be carried out not only on the Agricultural Stations but in co-operation with cane growers. One of the most promising canes in the Circars. J. 247, yielded 9,184 lb. of jaggery an acre at the Anakapalle Station. Coimbatore canes raised at the Sugarcane Breeding Station showed a marked superiority over the indigenous canes in Northern India. It was finally proved that fish guano as a manure for sugarcane is superior to a mixture of sugarcane and wild indigo. Experiments also showed fish guano to be a more economical manure than castor. The paddy season at Coimbatore was poor, but work on the raising and testing of improved strains of paddy was continued—52 strains being under test and 260 being grown for the first time. At Aduturai an improved strain of the red sirumani variety which is grown locally, gave an increased yield of 16 per cent. An improved white sirumani variety yielded an increase of 10 per cent. Seeds for both varieties were in much demand by ryots. Experiments showed that soil of poor fertility when treated with bonemeal together with green manure gave a marked increase in yield. The soil survey of the principal rice areas was continued during the year. Experimental work on cotton at Coimbatore was hampered by the spotted boll-worm and stem-weevil which attacked the whole crop. The question of bud and boll shedding continued to receive attention during the year. Experimental work was also carried out at Hagari, Nandyal and Kovilpatti. At Nandyal the season was unfavourable and experiments were to some extent vitiated by the attacks of a bacterial disease. Steps are now being taken to acquire a piece of land at Coimbatore for raising and studying the various dry grain crops. During the year a small crop was raised on a plot of land at the sugarcane station. Pollination studies were begun as a preliminary to cross-breeding work. The varietal and single plant selection work on groundnuts was continued at the Research Station at Nadavirapattu. Work was continued in the Cocoanut Station on the West Coast. At Pilicode the experiment of putting out three months old seedlings in October was tried in order to avoid the water logging effect of the monsoon on the seedlings. The experiment was in part successful but the seedlings were unable to resist the attacks of termites. At Nileshwar which is free from this pest the later planting was a complete success. Systematic manurial experiments were begun during the year to test the value of different manures and methods of cultivation on the trees at Kasaragod. A Study of the date of harvest of nuts in relation to the yield of oil and copra showed that the April-May harvest yields the largest number of nuts which are also the biggest in size while more oil is found in nuts of the December-January harvest. The Pomological Station opened at Coonoor in 1920 has now been fully planted with various kinds of fruits. Strawberries were successfully grown as an intercrop with fruit trees. During the year there was a large demand for small fruits for jam making and for plants, and the money realized by the sale of these, covered 59 per cent of the total expenditure on the orchards. Mauritius plantains were grown at the Palur Agricultural Station to aid in the extermination of Korai (Cyperus rotundus, a troublesome weed) and gave a profit of over Rs. 320 an acre. The pepper crop which promised to be a bumper one, was to some extent spoiled by a severe attack of the flea beetle. Steps are being taken to devise a practical remedy for this pest. The season was unfavourable to the potato crop, but 29 varieties were tested during the year. The utility of fish guano as a manure for potato was proved. A top dressing of nitrate of soda at the rate of 1 cwt. an acre also gives a good return for the money expended. Experiments are being made with green manure crops of various kinds. The superiority of cross-bred cows over other varieties as milk-givers was clearly established and it is hoped to build up a nucleus of cross-bred stock for distribution to district farms and Madras and ultimately for sale to the public. Foot and mouth disease broke out at the Ongole Cattle Farm at Chintaladevi. Fifty-four head of cattle were successfully inoculated against rinderpest.

In addition to a very large number of analyses carried out in connection with researches at the laboratory 709 samples were analysed for members of the public and a sum of Rs. 1,612 was collected as fees. Further investigation of calcium cyanamide as a fertiliser showed that there is no risk of toxic action from its use provided that it is evenly distributed and throughly incorporated in the soil. Experiments for discovering the best method of storing farmyard manure were begun in the middle of the year. Research was conducted into the causes of beri-beri. The results, which are as yet incomplete, seem to point to the fact that the incidence of this disease is connected with the method of treatment which rice receives before its use as food. A new cotton disease, apparently akin to that known in America as "Black arm," was under examination and the causes of the premature fall of cotton bolls were further investigated. A large number of plants were identified and reported on for various correspondents. A considerable amount of entomological work was done and a large number of insects were identified. Research work was done on the diseases of sugarcane and paddy. Investigations into the anatomy of Hevea rubber were also carried out.

The Pest Act was applied to five taluks each in Salem and Trichinopoly districts, to the whole of the Madura district and to all Coimbatore district except Kollegal taluk. The time for removal of the plant from the ground was, however, extended to 1st September, and although this measure gave satisfaction to the ryots at the time, it largely nullified the object of the Act since an insufficient dead season was provided. Propaganda was carried out by means of posters, lantern lectures, demonstrations and lectures, at Jamabandi camps. Operations under the Act for eradicating palm disease in the Northern Circars were continued. The provisions of the Act were also put in force in December 1922 at Mangalore where a large number of cocoanut trees had been attacked by a caterpillar pest known as Nephantis Serinopa. Two Agricultural Demonstrators were deputed to assist the ryots of South Malabar in dealing with an outbreak of Mahali disease which attacks arecanuts. A number of spraying demonstrations were given during the year in different parts of the Presidency. In order to bring home to the ryots in a systematic way methods of agriculture which experiments have proved to be better than those usually adopted, demonstration plots were established during the year on ryot's own lands and were cultivated under improved methods. A profit and loss account was maintained for each plot so that the ryot might himself see the benefit which accrues to him from the use of improved methods of Agriculture. These demonstration plots proved popular and satisfactory results were obtained from them. In the Berhampur and Aska taluks of Ganjam in the North Arcot district and elsewhere the area under improved varieties of sugarcane increased considerably during the year. Sugarcane was grown for the first time in Tiruvallur, Arkonam, Chinglepet and Saidapet. A campaign to introduce the Sindewahi furnace for making jaggery was conducted during the year in Chittoor district and elsewhere. In Bellary district 183,366 lbs., of H. 25 cotton seeds were distributed to the ryots—129,033 lbs. being sold and 4,333 lbs. distributed free. The yields from these seeds varied from 3 to 5 maunds an acre as compared with the average yield of 2½ maunds from the local cotton. In Kurnool 83,523 lb. of N. 14 Seed were distributed—71,528 lb. being sold and 11,995 lb. given free. Cotton seed was also supplied from the farms at Kovilpatti Avanashi, Karumattampatti and Perumanallur. Over 68 tons of selected strains of paddy seed were distributed during the year from seed available at Agricultural stations and seed farms. Demonstrations of economic planting were given in various places. Propaganda was undertaken for encouraging the cultivation of cocoanuts in South Kanara and proved very successful. The advantage of using a Sindewahi furnace for boiling green turmeric was demonstrated to the ryots of Guntur where 5,000 acres of land are under this crop. An organized attempt was also made during the year to introduce better methods of cultivation—more especially the use of iron ploughs. Five hundred and eightyfour iron ploughs were sold by the Agricultural Department as a result of these efforts.

Some twenty-five small agricultural exhibitions were held at important fairs and festivals. Improved implements and strains of seeds were shown and ploughing demonstrations were given at each exhibition. The Tiruppur cattle show was opened by the Hon'ble Sir Charles Todhunter on the 31st May and various demonstrations were given at it by the Agricultural Department. The part taken by the ryots in the Agricultural section of the show was, however, disappointing.

The Agricultural Engineer was engaged in work on experiments and improvements to various agricultural implements. Tractors were found unsuitable for deep ploughing. The cost of ploughing with an Austin tractor amounted to Rs. 9-14-0 an acre.

The entire work relating to agricultural statistics and the statistics of retail prices of the principal food-grains and salt was transferred from the Board of Revenue to the Agricultural Department on 1st June 1922. Various improvements were made in these returns with a view to making them more concise and intelligible. With the exception of season and crop reports and the fortnightly returns of retail prices all important reports and returns were published in the Fort St. George Gazette. Summaries were also supplied for publication in the Press.

Expenditure during the year amounted to Rs. 14,82,243 as compared with Rs. 13,86,005 last year: receipts fell from Rs. 3,64,494 to Rupees 3,21,815, the net increase in expenditure being Rs. 1,37,917. The increase in expenditure was due to work on the new agricultural station at Guntur, on the paddy breeding station at Aduturai and on the cotton breeding station at Coimbatore. The fall under receipts was mainly caused by the abolition of two agricultural stations at Bantanahal and Sirvel.

The department was staffed by a Chief Superintendent, 1 Divisional Superintendent, 4 Deputy Superintendents, 18 Veterinary Inspectors and 172 Veterinary Assistants. A dispensary was opened at Tiruppur during the year and a hospital at Ootacamund: both have made a good start. The work done during the year at most of the institutions showed an increase over that of last year. The number of castrations performed at Veterinary institutions during the year was 2,648 as compared with 2,617 last year—the majority being performed as usual in Ganjam district. Every district in the Presidency is now provided with at least 2 touring Veterinary Assistants but some of them are in urgent need of an additional touring staff. The number of inoculations performed by the touring Assistants during the year was 29,946 as compared with 70,815 in 1921-22. This large decrease is mainly due to the small incidence of rinderpest during the year. 19,535 cases of contagious diseases and 25,593 cases of non-contagious diseases were treated as against 18,119 contagious and 24,718 non-contagious cases last year. The number of castrations performed by the touring Assistants fell from 6,809 to 5,641. As a measure of retrenchment, the number of days which the Assistants spent on tour each month was reduced from 20 to 15 from February 1922. The mortality from contagious diseases amongst cattle was 28,178 in the year against 34,258 last year, the most remarkable decrease being in the number of deaths from rinderpest which were only 4,279 compared with 10,121 last year. There was, however, a considerable increase in the reported mortality from Black Quarter, the deaths numbering 4,343 against 3,407 in 1921-22. There were 4,185 convictions under the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act in the Presidency excluding Madras City. The total expenditure of the department excluding the Madras Veterinary College rose from Rs 3,27,165 to Rs. 4,60,400. The chief cause of the increase was the provincialization of all Veterinary institutions previously managed by local bodies. The total number of students in the Madras Veterinary College on 31st March 1923 was 88. The results of the annual examinations were satisfactory. The total number of the in-patients and out patients treated in the College Hospital during the year was 2,690. Expenditure on the College and Hospital amounted to Rs. 98,597.

FISHERIES.

In several respects the year proved a record one, all the more important revenue sections showing satisfactory returns. A change was made in the method of calculating the net profits which accrued from the various semi-commercial undertakings which are under the control of the department. In past years, with the sanction of Government, a proportion usually 50 per cent of the salaries of the permanent staff was omitted from the debit accounts of all such undertakings, on the ground that a large proportion of the time of the staff was devoted to experiment and industrial research. In the present year the profits have been calculated after deducting all expenditure.

Both the output and sales of canned fish at Chaliyam showed an increase. Sardines were abundant in numbers but small in size and deficient in oil, and therefore not very suitable for canning purposes. Mackerel and prawns were unusually scarce. Output was nevertheless increased from 70,510 tins in 1921-22 to 79,783 which is about the limit of production with the existing machinery. Sales also increased from 31,243 to 48,285, but were not so great as they might have been could the provision dealers in the Presidency have been induced to sell the articles. Hopes are now entertained of establishing an export trade in canned fish with Australia whence enquiries have been received. After paying all labour, supervision and other charges the cannery made a net profit of Rs. 1,994. Fish-curing suffered owing to the great scarcity of mackerel and large fish. The total quantity of fish purchased for curing at Tanur was 249,293 lbs. Moist curing of fish with korakapuli was continued with success, seer slices and sardines being treated as well as mackerel. The total output of guano was 84,720 lbs, which is equal to a proportion of 18 per cent of the weight of raw fish treated (4,17,053 lbs.) The guano was mostly supplied to the Madras Agricultural Department and to various co-operative societies at Rs. 95 a ton f. o. r. Tanur. The proportion of oil for the most part varied from 2·2 to 7·7 per cent and this poor yield greatly restricted the preparation of superior oil, the outturn of which was only 815 gallons. About 1,350 gallons of second grade, i.e. pressed oil, was also manufactured. Ten thousand three hundred lbs. of fine fish meal was prepared during the year and in spite of many difficulties which were encountered in the course of its manufacture the price was reduced to As. 2 a lb.—12½ per cent discount being allowed on large orders. The total weight of the fish brought into the eleven public fish-curing yards during the year was 355,913 maunds as against 389,674 maunds last year and the weight when cured amounted to 208,201 maunds as against 220,701 maunds. The decrease in quantity was chiefly due to the small catches of mackerel. Many more of the curing sheds were reconstructed with cemented floors and masonry salting troughs. There was a large increase in the number of the private factories at work owing to the great abundance of sardines; but while the output of guano increased, the amount of oil manufactured was small. The various operations at Tanur resulted in a profit of Rs. 5,782 after paying all expenses. The oyster season was exceptionally good, 184,350 oysters being supplied during the year. Unfortunately the cost of collection and treatment was much higher than usual in consequence of the destruction of the main bed of oysters at Pulicat by a shell contractor. As a result of this oysters had to be collected from Ennur and, as sewage contamination is possible there, measures had to be taken, at some cost, to sterilise them. Sales resulted in a loss of Rs. 491. In the Pearl and Chank fisheries a net profit of Rs. 38,286 was realized as against a loss of Rs. 18,771 in 1921-22. Much difficulty was experienced in getting divers for the chank fishery at Tinnevelly and finally 124 Kilakarai divers had to be brought to assist in the work. Owing to adverse weather conditions little work was done in connection with the beche-de-mer fisheries and only 855 lbs. were cured. Young pearl oysters were reported in November to be abundant on the beds off Tuticorin, and an inspection showed that 28 out of 54 banks bore large numbers of young pearl oysters which should be ready to fish in 1926 or 1927. The number of people who visited the Aquarium decreased from 125,161 to 102,349 during the year, but, owing to an increase in the rates of admission, the receipts from all sources increased from Rs. 9,111 to Rs. 9,461. Expenditure amounted to Rs. 7,486 as compared with Rs. 4,795 in 1921-22. The work of investigating the habits and life-history of the oil-sardine was continued during the year and a report on the subject was submitted to Government. A similar enquiry in connection with the Indian mackarel was much hindered by the scarcity of that fish during the year.

The total receipts from tank rentals, etc., during the year amounted to Rs. 1,14,416 and the total expenditure to Rs. 93,965—the net profit being Rs. 20,451. No additions were made to the number of tanks under the department's control owing to the necessity for retrenchment, but the stocking of these tanks which were already in charge of the department was done more efficiently and on a larger scale than in any previous year. The three fish farms at Sunkesula, Ippur and Perambur and the larvicidal farm at Praema all worked satisfactorily and the new farm at Vellore Fort Moat was partly stocked although it was not quite finished. The farms at Chingleput and Mopad were still under construction at the end of the year. The system of leasing fisheries to the co-operative society of the fishermen of Hampapuram continued to work satisfactorily.

The Fisheries Training Institute at Calicut continued to do good work during the year. Forty pupils were under training. Seventeen students appeared for the final examination and 12 passed. At the end of the year the number of elementary schools in charge of the department was 26 against 27 last year. The number of pupils receiving education increased from 1,538 to 171, of whom 471 were girls. There is a perceptible decrease in intemperance among the younger men. Three new co-operative credit societies were registered—the total number at the end of the year being 63 with a membership of 3,827 compared with 3,581 last year.

The receipts of the department increased from Rs. 1·99 lakhs last year to Rs. 3·11 lakhs while expenditure fell from Rs. 3·17 lakhs to Rs. 3·15 lakhs.

FORESTS.

During the year to a large extent the policy of the Forest department was one of "marking time." This was partly due to the necessity for economy and partly because a forward policy in the development and exploitation of the valuable timber forests could not be initiated until the arrival of the recently appointed Chief Forest Engineer. In furtherance of the policy of enlisting public opinions in support of measures of local forest conservancy two committees were appointed for the districts of Kurnool and Chittoor consisting of the local Forest officers, the Members of Legislative Council and other influential gentlemen. The system of placing Class V forests under the management of panchayats has been further extended by the agency of a special staff created for this purpose. The year's work in sylviculture was marked by special attention to a policy of clear felling succeeded by the creation of plantations of seedlings in valuable deciduous forests were complete regeneration cannot be secured by merely aiding Nature's processes. Experimental work was carried out by a Forest Research Officer for eleven months of the year and useful information, chiefly on the evergreen species, was obtained. With regard to the Chentsus, the policy laid down by Government was that efforts to reform the younger generation by means of education should be continued, that regular and suitable employment should be provided, that due respect for law order should be maintained in order to control the criminal propensities of the Chentsus and to afford adequate protection to the servants of Government employed among them. Measures calculated to give effect to this policy were initiated. It was further decided that all expenditure in connection with the Chentsus should be met from the Forest budget. It is interesting to note that the construction of a well in one Chentsu hamlet has freed the inhabitants from the attacks of the guinea worm.

During the year under review there was a net increase of 202 square miles in the area of reserved forests which at the end of the year amounted to 19,064 square miles, while the area of reserved lands, owing to the operation of forest settlement, decreased from 442 to 192 square miles.

Working plans for an area of 80 square miles and a working scheme for the Coringa mangrove forests in the Lower Godavari division were sanctioned. To meet the demands of the villagers for agricultural implements and small timber, tentative schemes were prepared and sanctioned for certain areas in Kollegal and North and South Coimbatore. Two hundred and four miles of roads were constructed at a cost of Rs. 1,37,605 and 1,242 miles were repaired at a cost of Rs 95,504. One of the two roads in the Javadi Hills was completed and only a small quantity of work is necessary to complete the other. Progress in the construction of the Mount Stuart Ghat road was again poor owing to trouble with contractors and to the malarious nature of the locality. The total expenditure on buildings amounted to Rs. 1·62 lakhs against Rs. 2·52 lakhs in the previous year. A sum of Rs. 17,006 was spent during the year on the reconstruction and restoration of buildings at Nilambur which were damaged during the Mappilla rebellion. In the Chenat Nayar exploitation division the total amount spent on new construction and on repairs was Rs. 15,861. Miscellaneous buildings such as inspection bungalows, range offices, ranger's quarters and subordinates' lines were constructed in various divisions. A sum of Rs. 12,644 was spent on the construction and repair of tanks and wells and on the improvement of water-supply in forests. Some work in the direction of improving grazing grounds and providing watering facilities for cattle was done during the year. In the third circle the people were encouraged to construct and improve watering places with the result that a new pool was constructed by private agency and an old pool was repaired at a cost of Rs. 700.

Though there was an increase in the number of forest offences of all kinds, this is to be attributed to an increase in the vigilance of the protective staff, rather than to any increase in lawlessness. While the nummber of cases taken to court was actually less than last year, the number of cases conpounded was larger. Of the 30,878 cases disposed of during the year, 7,491 cases were taken to court 20,790 cases were compounded and 2,597 cases were withdrawn. Of the cases disposed of by magistrates, 6,149, ended in conviction and 1,342 in acquittal, the percentage of failure being nearly 18 per cent. Cases compounded after they were taken on a magistrate's file were shown as acquittals. The increase in the number of offences was greatest under the head of unauthorised felling. The amount of compounding fees realised during the year was Rs. 2,72,080. The average fee in each case was Rs. 13—5—7 as against Rs. 13—7—4 in the previous year, and for each person Rs. 6—8—6 as against Rs.6—2—1.

The system of early-burning, to which reference was made above, was considerably extended. The results are reported to be satisfactory.

A distinct advance was made during the year in sylvicultural work by the extension of systematic operations for the establishment of young crops of valuable species. Experience has shown that valuable deciduous forests natural regeneration, however much it is assisted, is not to be relied upon to produce a sufficiency of young stock to take the place of the mature timber removed in the course of selection fellings. Clear-felling followed by sowing or planting, and the efficient tending of the young crop so obtained, is the system now adopted in the teak forests of Mount Stuart (South Coimbatore), Wynaad and Mudumalai (Nilgiris). The total amount spent on planting operations during the year was Rs. 76,090. In the previous year Rs. 56,049 were spent on the same branch of work. Cultural operations were carried out over an area of 10,475 acres at a cost of Rs. 20,620 and regular plantations were raised over an extent of 560 acres at a cost of Rs. 20,439.

The output of timber during the year under review was 131,225 tons against 108,400 tons in the previous year. 29,375 tons were extracted by departmental agency and 95,200 tons by purchasers as against 26,825 and 81,675 tons, respectively, in the previous year. Messrs. Parry & Co. were the managing agents of the Russellkonda Saw Mill. Work was not in full swing till the month of July, owing to the necessity for testing the machines under working conditions and training local labour. From sal logs measuring 126,571 cubic feet, 41,318 cubic feet of first-class sawn timber were obtained in addition to second-class timber and firewood. The total cost of production was Rs. 81,811 and the value of the timber sold and of the closing stock was Rs. 1,08,571. There is a steady demand for the timber which buyers describe as the best sawn sal on the markets to which it has penetrated. The outturn of this mill was however low and attention is being paid to remedying this by the more careful selection of the timber to be supplied to it. From various forests 21,038 tons of fuel were removed departmentally and 304,583 tons by purchasers. Prices of fuel in the large towns showed a tendency to decrease except in Tanjore and Madura where they remained stationary. The prices in Anantapur and Trichinopoly were Rs. 17-15-0 and Rs. 18 per ton, respectively, as against Rs. 22-4-0 and Rs. 23 in the previous year. The total value of bamboos removed from the forests by all agencies during the year was Rs. 4·08 lakhs as against Rs. 8·21 lakhs in the previous year. It is anticipated that, owing to the almost universal flowering of the big bamboo (Bambusa arundinacea), the revenue from this source will decrease materially in future. This bamboo appears to require some 12 to 15 years to grow into mature clumps. Four hundred and sixty-eight tons of sandalwood were sold for Rs. 5,54,858 at Satyamangalam (222 tons), and at Tiruppattur and Vellore (246 tons). The average price realised was Rs. 1,182 per ton, an increase of Rs. 22 per ton on the previous year's price. About 21 per cent of the total area of forests in the Presidency were closed to grazing, either for the whole year (16·4 per cent) or for a part of the year (4·8 per cent). The areas closed were approximately the same as in the previous year. For grazing in the open area of 16,108 square miles permits were issued for 2,037,062 animals while 74,177 animals were allowed free grazing, the incidence being one cow unit to 4·08 acres as compared with 5·75 acres in the previous year. This increase is due to an increase of 327,894 in the number of animals licensed to graze. This latter increase was due in part to the revision of grazing schemes and in part to the other causes, among which the decline of the non-co operation movement may probably be included. The revenue from grazing and fodder grass was Rs. 9,21,092. The revenue from the same source in 1921-22 was Rs. 7,89,731. A new grazing scheme is under trial in the Sriharikota range, Nellore district. Great difficulty has been experienced in the past in capturing the semi wild cattle roaming in the Sriharikota forests and various attempts have been made to solve the problem but without success. Under the scheme to which reference has been made, a census is taken of all cattle frequenting the forests and villagers pay a lump sum calculated at 8 annas per cow unit per annum. The advantages of the system in a forest where the limitation of cattle is not essential are that prosecution for forest offences and the impounding of cattle are unnecessary with the result that a cause of friction between the villagers and the Forest Department is eliminated. The estimated value of forest produce removed by free grantees and right-holders amounted to Rs. 62,207 as against Rs. 56,208 in the previous year.

The number of elephants in charge of the department at the beginning of the year was 187 valued at Rs. 3,96,600, including four baggage elephants working in Upper Godavari and Kurnool West Divisions. Thirty-two elephants were captured, 3 were born in captivity, 10 died, 49 were sold for Rs. 1,17,625 and the stud at the end of the year numbered 113 valued at Rs. 3,5?,?50. Capturing operations were conducted and resulted in 32 captures, viz., 9 in Nilgiris, 14 in Wynaad, 2 in Nilambur and 7 in South Coimbatore. Of the South Coimbatore captures, six were caught in the Tekkadi leased forests and under the terms of the agreement with the Kollengode Raja, four were sold to him for half their value, one elephant being retained by the department on payment of half its value. The remaining one died. The total value of the elephants captured is at least Rs. 50,000. The stock of buffaloes and bullocks at the beginning of the year numbered 267, of which 63 died or were sold. Twenty-one animals were purchased and two were confiscated in a forest case in South Kurnool and added to the stud. The stock at the end of the year numbered 227 and its book value was Rs. 18,577.

A special panchayat staff was at work in 11 districts in the Presidency. Out of 966 square miles of class V forests in these districts, 586 square miles (60 per cent of the total) were placed under panchayat management. Thirty-eight new panchayat for the management of 68 square miles of class V forests were formed during the year by the special panchayat staff. A liberal policy was adopted in fixing the assessments and the people in general showed themselves to be anxious to undertake the management of class V forests Some considerable financial saving was effected by the substitution of panchayat for departmental management. There were several instances of the purchase of coupes by co-operative societies. One society, whose members were Adi-Dravidas, constructed a cart track into the felling area. The panchayat management of the class II forests in the Tiruvannamalai range under the forest village system continued to work very satisfactorily. One Forest Officer, indeed, on visiting a village, where, before the introduction of this system, he had been invariably met with grievances and complaints, was received with tom-toms, music, and eulogies of the Forest Department.

Twenty-nine students passed out of the college in 1923, of whom fourteen were from Madras. Ten students were granted Honours certificates (an unprecedentedly large number), fourteen obtained Higher standard certificates and five Lower standard certificates. There were no failures.

The total gross revenue during the year amounted to Rs. 52·73 lakhs against Rs. 48·57 lakhs in the previous year. The expenditure debited to the Forest Department (including a loss of Rs 20,472 by exchange transactions in England) was Rs. 47·89 lakhs as against Rs. 51·59 lakhs in the previous year. The result was a surplus of Rs. 4·84 lakhs as compared with a deficit of Rs. 3·72 lakhs in the previous year. The Forest College worked at a loss of Rs. 1·05 lakhs. General direction cost Rs. 2·08 lakhs and the special panchayat staff, Rs. ·18 lakh.

FACTORIES.

The Department of Factories continued to be under the control of the Commissioner of Labour There were 769 factories on the list of registered factories at the end of the year, the number at the end of the previous year being 545. This increase in registration is largely due to the extensive provisions of the amended Factories Act. Of the 769 factories, 548 are perennial and 221 are seasonal factories. Twenty perennial and 196 seasonal factories are connected with the cotton industry. Twentyfour factories were closed against work and 745 were in commission during the year. The average number of operatives employed in these 745 factories was 110,193, the total number employed in 1921 in all factories being 102,841. The actual number is probably much higher as mill owners in the majority of cases omit to include contract coolies. The increase was due to the increase in the number of registered factories. Of the 110,193 operatives, 5,483 were employed in Government and Local Fund factories. The number of work people employed in cotton spinning and weaving mills was 28,268, and 3,155 were employed in jute spinning and weaving mills. The total numbers of women, boys, and girls employed in 1922 were 20,355, 4,775 and 2,549, respectively. That these numbers are larger than in 1921 is almost solely due to the increase in the number of registered factories. Under the amending Act the minimum and maximum ages for children have been raised from 9 and 14 to 12 and 15 years, respectively. One of the 745 factories that were working during the year, 359 were inspected once, 346 twice and 25 thrice. The number of inspections was 1,126 as against 836 in the previous year. In addition to inspections, 344 visits were made to unregistered factories and ten factories coming under the provisions of the Act were discovered. Fifty-nine visits were made to factories by night. Twenty-four surprise visits (Sunday) were made by the Inspector of Factories (Northern Circle), resulting in three convictions being obtained, and in application being made for prosecution in seven cases. The health of the operatives was generally good In addition to factories where medical aid was already provided, 14 factories opened dispensaries, one provided first aid appliances and an ambulance hand-cart in addition and in another first aid appliances were provided. The sanitation of factories was generally satisfactory, but prosecutions were instituted in two cases and convictions obtained. On the whole, rates of wages varied very little from those of 1921. There were 17 strikes during the year, of which 9 occurred in Madras City. They each lasted from 2 hours to 30 days and about half of the employees in the factories affected came out. In eight cases the strikes collapsed, in four cases the workmen were dismissed, in one increase of wages was promised and four were compromised. The causes of the strikes were different in each case, some of them were unreasonable. In one case where the owner was installing electric motors to replace steam, the work pepole thought that profits would go up, so they demanded increased wages before the substitution was complete. There were six fires during the year, but no loss of life or injury to any person occurred. The number of accidents that occurred during the year was 681 as against 991 during 1921. The average per 100 operatives employed also dropped from ·97 to ·80. Of the 18 fatal and 6 serious accidents, 8 of the former and 5 of the latter were caused by machinery driven by mechanical power. The major portion of the accidents occurred in railway workshops. This was probably due to the fact that every accident, however slight, is seen by the Company's doctor, who in many cases as a matter of precaution certifies that 48 hours off duty is necessary although the accident is trivial Again in railway workshops there is more machinery for persons employed than in other factories. Welfare work was started by some firms, and in the Buckingham and Carnatic Mills, Madras, a Welfare committee consisting of 20 representatives of the work people and four European officers representing the departmental heads with two among the labour representatives as Secretaries was formed. This committee which meets once a fortnight has proved of great value in maintaining a good understanding between the management and their employees. Workmen's stores have also been opened in these and other factories.

INDUSTRIES.

The most important event of the year in connection with industrial policy in the Presidency wasthe passing of the State Aid to Industries Act. Provision of Rs. 8 lakhs for grant of loans under this Act was made in the Budget for 1923-24. There were two meetings of the Board of Industries during the year, Two important committees were appointed during the year, namely, the Committee on Technical and Industrial Education and the Leather Industry Committee. The first submitted its report shortly before the close of the year. The Department of Industries participated in industrial exhibitions held at Tiruppur, Cuddalore and other places in the south of India, exhibiting soap, ink, glue, finished leather from the Government Leather Trades Institute, Madras, slays with double and quadruple shuttle box, and other weaving appliances as well as a hand-boring set. The number of inquiries on industrial and commercial questions that were received in the Bureau of Industrial and Commercial Information continued to be very large. Many of these referred to the sources of supply and the markets for the various articles and commodities. A considerable number of references from the Director-General of Commercial Intelligence, Calcutta, were received. A number of analyses of minerals and materials were carried out for private parties. The difficulties which dyers experienced during and since the war in obtaining their requirements of dyes seem entirely to have disappeared. Efforts were made to obtain up-to-date information with regard to the channels of the trade in "palampores," ornamental cotton prints, which are manufactured at Masulipatam. The result of the boring operations, with regard to coal, conducted in the Beddadnole area have not, so far, proved encouraging. Through information supplied by the department, a West Coast firm executed a large order for the supply of fish oil on a contract made with the Controller of Contracts, Simla. The Meenakshi Paper Mills received further Government orders. The interest of a London firm of standing in the Kistna crochet lace industry, which was suffering from the severe competition of cheap machine-made lace, was secured. Representations on question of freight charges were made to various railway administrations on behalf of firms with complete or partial success in each case. The experiments in crushing phosphatic nodules did not warrant the establishment of a departmental factory and it was decided to throw open a few blocks of the nodule area to private enterprise. Sir Frederick Nicholson is engaged in studying the toy industry in the United Kingdom with a view to advice as to the lines on which the industry could be developed in Madras. A report on the indigenous bangle industry was submitted to Government Investigations were made into the available supplies of eeta (a bamboo-like reed) and other kinds of reeds suitable for the manufacture of matches. During the year under review the Industrial Chemist continued to work in the laboratories of the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore. Investigations in regard to the utilisations of limes and tamarind as sources of citric and tartaric acids, respectively, were completed. As a result of conclusions based on an enquiry into the practicability of exploiting the alkaline deposits (pseudu of the Kistna and Godavari districts, Government were advised that the process would be commercially unremunerative. Enquiries into the processes of coir production also were continued. The investigations into the possibility of manufacturing malted foods were transferred to this department from the Department of Agriculture. Miscellaneous enquiries on many and varied questions were also answered. There was a reduction in the out-turn and turnover of the Kerala Soap Institute, due mainly to a marked falling off in the demand for vegetol owing to the introduction of spurious imitations at prices with which the factory could not compete. The profit and loss statements showed a loss of Rs. 23,830—12—6 on the year's working. It is hoped that when commercial manufacture has been organised in the new factory, it will be possible both to increase the output and recover the valuable by-product, glycerine. The ink factory showed a loss of Rs. 825—12—11 on the year's working which is attributable mainly to interruption of work consequent on the transfer of the factory from Coonoor to Madras. Researches were carried out in the Minor Industries laboratory in connection with the manufacture of saponin from indigenous materials, the estimation of pectin and sugar in fruits, etc., and in the manufacture of indelible and copying inks. The construction of the jam-factory buildings at the Government Fruit Preserving Institute was completed, and jam-making operations were started. The Glue Factory worked at a loss of Rs. 14 458-10-5 for the first 15 months' working. This is explained by the difficulty experienced in finding a market for an output sufficiently large to make the factory pay. Experiments on bone glue were concluded. Nine weaving parties toured the country introducing new implements and methods, while one party was employed in Madras under the direct supervision of the Textile Expert in the construction, manipulation and demonstration of new appliances. All sericultural operations including the control of the industry and the actual supervision of the mulberry growing and silk farms were transferred to the Department of Industries. Sericultural operations have been initiated in four localities. The number of loans granted for the purpose of installing pumping machinery during the year was 9 as against 5 in the previous year. Thirty-nine installations were undertaken by the department and 236 were plants maintained by them at the owner's cost. Pumping sets were also supplied. The total depth bored during the year was 20,640 feet as against 20,858 in 1921-22 Blasting operations by means of torpedo sets were also carried out. Two surveyors were employed on the task of mapping underground water supplies. About 199 miles of levels were taken and 362 boring were connected with mean sea level.

One holder of a State technical scholarship entered the University of Birmingham to pursue his studies. The scholarships of four others were extended on the recommendation of the High Commissioner for India for another year in order to enable them to complete their studies to the best advantage. Eight new scholarships tenable at the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore, were awarded during the year. The number of scholarships tenable at the Victoria Jubilee Technical Institute, Bombay, was increased from three to six. Sixty new scholarships tenable for a period of five years were as usual awarded to pupils learning a trade in any of the recognized industrial schools. The Madura Industrial Institute continued its activities and the continuance of the Madras Trades School for another year was sanctioned. The number of students increased from 145 to 217. The branch of the Trades School attached to the Railway workshops at Perambur continued to do good work and 120 apprentices employed in the works received instruction in this school. The number of industrial schools assisted by the Government during the year was 42 as against 38 in the previous year and the number of pupils under training was 1,928 as against 1,798 An amount of Rs. 62,665-10-0 was disbursed to these institutions in the form of grants in-aid. The finances of many of these institutions continue to suffer severely from unfavourable exchange rates. The number of pupils on the rolls of the School of Arts and Crafts at the end of the year was 305 of whom 15 were females. The average attendance was 191 and the average number on the rolls 259. Thirty scholarships varying in value from Rs. 5 to Rs. 15 per month were sanctioned, the greatest number being in wood work The volume of work produced declined owing to the reduction in the budget allotment under the heads of wages and materials. Out of 152 students who appeared for the Government Technical examinations, 88, or 58 per cent, passed. The percentage of success in these examinations has decreased in the last three years. Fourteen of the students who left the school in 1922-23, obtained employment.

The receipts and charges of the year decreased from Rs. 286644-2-8 to Rs. 2 82,522-1-10 and from Rs. 11,49,593-14-2 to Rs. 10,02,666 12-6, respectively, and the net cost from Rs. 8,62,949-11.6 to Rs. 7,20,144-10-8. The decrease in expenditure is due partly to the reduced cost of the re-organized district staff and partly to the exercise of strict economy.

CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES.

At the end of the year there were 22 Assistant Registrars in charge of independent sections. In addition to these there was a Co-operative Assistant to the Agency Commissioner in charge of the Agency division. Thirteen gentlemen were appointed Honorary Assistant Registrars in addition to the 61 Honorary Assistant Registrars on the list on 30th June 1922. Thirty-seven local supervising unions and one district federation of unions were registered during the year. These district federations of unions exercise, in addition to their federal functions, supervision over those primary societies within their areas which are not affiliated to any union. The total number of primary societies affiliated to supervising unions on 30th June 1923 was 6,514 with 374,840 members as against 5,494 societies with 328,377 members on 30th June 1922. The formation of supervising unions and the affiliation of primary societies thereto is keeping pace with the formation of primary societies. Two propagandist unions were in existence during the year, one at Madras and the other at Masulipatam. There has been a decrease in both joint sale and joint trading while transactions under joint purchase increased by Rs. 0·15 lakh. As yet no satisfactory system of joint sale has been instituted. Trading unions did not on the whole work well. The year opened with 7,889 societies of all descriptions and closed with a total of 8,448, in spite of the fact that the work of weeding out bad societies was continued. The number of societies cancelled during the year was 69 as compared with 69 and 36 in the two previous years. A great deal of time and attention was devoted to the reconstitution of societies which were working badly and to the stimulation of activity in societies which were becoming dormant. The available facilities for organization being constant this resulted in less attention being given to the formation of new societies and the work of consolidating existing societies was accompanied by some conservatism in registration. Another cause of this conservatism was that while official supervision was fully occupied, efficient non-official supervision has not yet had time to expand to its full extent. At the end of the year there was an average of 65 members to a society, one more than the average for the last day of the previous year. During the year the total working capital of all societies increased from Rs. 601·11 lakhs to Rs. 711·59 lakhs and the total paid-up share capital from Rs. 79·86 lakhs to Rs. 95·42 lakhs. Deposits received from individuals rose from Rs. 206·14 lakhs to Rs. 258.71 lakhs. Excluding the sum representing investiments by one co-operative bank in another, the total capital employed in the movement at the end of the year was Rs. 359 lakhs. Of this amount Rs. 258·71 lakhs were derived from deposits from individuals, chiefly non-members. The share capital invested by individuals accounted for Rs. 76·31 lakhs, reserve funds of the societies for Rs 26.04 lakhs and Government loan for Rs. 2·90 lakhs. The fact that such a large proportion of the money came from outside the societies shows the confidence of the general public in the soundness of the movement. During the year building societies were formed and financed by loans from the Government. Efforts were made to organise certain local industries on co-operative lines but little result was achieved. After some inquiry and discussion the suggestion to organise the Ellore carpet weavers on such lines had to be abandoned. The social and economic condition of these weavers, their habits and indebtedness to the master weavers and merchants, their illiteracy and indifference to co-operation makes it an impossible problem for the present. The finances available for the co-operation movement were greatly augmented by the receipt of a large sum of deposits from District Board and Municipal funds, by contractors' deposits, and by provident funds of Local Board employees. This influx of money largely contributed to a considerable surplus in the Madras Central Urban Bank and the Christian Central Co-operative Bank. Out of 1,777 applications for the registration of societies considered during the year, 339 were rejected. This large number of rejections is, in a large measure, due to the fact that a number of poor men's societies which were placed on probation before formal registration were shown as rejected. The cost of working of the Co-operative Societies Act during the year was Rs. 6,19,254. This represents 0·87 of the working capital of the societies as against 0·98 in the previous year. The number of agricultural credit societies increased during the year by 894 to 7,10?, of which all but 24 are on the unlimited liability basis. The total number of members of agricultural societies of all classes increased during the year from 333,342 to 386,264. There has been a substantial increase under the head of Adi-Dravidas and Adi-Andhras during the year which is itself sufficient proof that the movement has progressed well amongst the depressed classes. During the year the total working capital of all agricultural credit societies increased from Rs. 2,22,92,429 to Rs. 2,65,39,957 and the paid-up share capital from Rs. 23,11,104 to Rs. 28,74,188. Deposits made by individuals rose from Rs. 14,67,288 to Rs. 15,53,087. Loans from financing banks increased from Rs. 1,78,05,524 to Rs. 2,04,91,263. There was a substantial increase in share capital in almost all districts. The total divisible profit earned by the societies during the year amounted to Rs. 4,06,067 as compared with Rs. 3,37,657 in the previuos year. There is an increase all round in the overdues as compared with the previous year except arrear interest, where there is a slight fall. Though the great bulk of outstandings are amply secured, the credit of the movement and its power to attract deposits depend to a great extent on the promptitude with which repayments are made and the steady rise in the proportion of overdue amounts through the last 4 years cannot be regarded with satisfaction. Among the causes which contribute to this state of affairs are the practice of some ryots of taking short-term loans with the intention of delaying payment; their making a bad season an excuse for delaying repayment even when repayment is practicable; delay in obtaining execution of decrees through Civil Courts; the time fixed for repayment of loans given to societies being inconvenient; the lingering reluctance of the ryot inherited from generation of ancestors to pay until pressure is brought to bear. The remedy is, of course, supervision, but the unions have not as yet reached the state of active efficiency in which they can replace the officials who must now, and can only to a limited extent, provide the driving power necessary to maintain collection work at a high standard. There is a decrease in the percentage of loans for the purchase of cattle and for the purchase and improvement of land. There is a marked increase in the proportion of loans for cultivation expenses and a slight increase in the proportion of loans for the purchase of raw materials for industries. There were seventy-seven societies constituted for purchase, and purchase and sale, at the end of the year, two more than at the beginning. Out of these societies, 32 societies worked at a divisible profit of Rs. 12,793 and 45 societies incurred a loss of Rs. 17,609. There were no agricultural societies for production. There were 4 societies for production and sale at the end of the year, of which three worked at a net divisible profit of Rs. 2,088 and one at a loss of Rs. 8,220. Joint purchase and sale to an extent of Rs. 1,76,450 and Rs. 38,785, respectively, were effected by agricultural credit societies. The number of nonagricultural credit societies at the beginning of the year was 694 and at the end of the year, 805 societies. Thus there was a net increase of 111 such societies during the year. One hundred and fifteen new societies were registered during the year as against 89 in the previous year and the cancellation of eight societies was ordered during the year. There were also a few transfers of existing societies to and from this class. Of the 805 societies, 632 are on the limited liability basis and 173 on the unlimited liability basis. The number of members in these societies rose from 103,948 to 120,588 and the paid-up share capital from Rs. 22,49,746 to Rs. 27,63,114. The deposits from individuals rose from Rs. 41,58,325 to Rs. 51,01,668 and the working capital from Rs. 78,60,238 to Rs. 98,08,990. As will be seen from the above, there has been substantial increase all round. The net divisible profit for the year was Rs. 3,84,692 as against Rs. 2,76,565 in the previous year. The loss to be recouped in this class of societies is Rs. 7,060 as compared with Rs. 14,814 for the previous year. The book profit in these societies amounted to Rs. 4,18,808. The percentage of arrears under arrear interest has been considerably reduced and there was a slight improvement over last year under collection of current interest and principal. The increase in deposits by individuals in the older societies was Rs. 9,11,178 as compared with Rs. 8,03,707 for the previous year and the increase in share capital in them was Rs. 4,54,928

as compared with Rs. 3,66,824 for the previous year. This shows that older societies are growing in a healthy fashion. Several of the urban banks which are included in this section have grown to a considerable size and during the year there have been discussions on the desirability of organising more such banks in one place and limiting the size of each. At the beginning of the year there were 186 societies for the purchase, and purchase and sale or for the production, and production and sale of commodities. Thirteen societies were registered and the cancellation of twenty were ordered during the year, Two societies were transferred from this class. Thus there were 127 societies at the end of the year. The number of co-operative stores fell from 91 to 85. The value of stock sold fell from Rs. 16,25,467 to Rs. 14,82,729 and the value of stock bought fell from Rs. 15.41,870 to Rs. 13,08,122. The working capital also fell from Rs. 6,1'.453 to Rs. 5,55.826, The net divisible profit rose from Rs. 42,676 to Rs 46,726 and the net loss incurred by certain societies amounted to Rs. 20.458 as compared with Rs. 31,910 for the previous year. At the end of the year there were 34 societies belonging to classes other than those to which reference has already been made. Eighteen of these were building societies and nine were labour societies; one of these latter, newly started during the year under review, was started with the object of obtaining contracts from the Forest department for felling coupes and includes cartmen and two outsiders to assist in the management. Labour unions were started in Tanjore having for their objects the supply of metal and gravel to district board and municipal roads. Three printing presses continue to run satisfactorily. The wages earned by the Madras Salt Loader's Society for labour done on contract amounted to Rs. 21,062. The Saidapet Milk Supply Society supplied milk to its members to the extent of Rs. 722. At the end of the year there were 904 societies composed wholly or mainly of Adi-Dravidas or Adi-Andhras; of these 457 were organized by, and are in charge of the Labour Department. The total number of Adi-Dravidas or Adi-Andhra members of societies of all classes increased from 42,891 to 52,856 during the year. Three new societies for municipal scavengers and sweepers were registered during the year. The total number of such societies at the end of the year was 32. Besides these, there are 34 other societies for municipal employees which admit scavengers and sweepers as members.

There were 209 supervising unions at the beginning of the year, and 247 at its close, excluding the two propagandist unions. The amount contributed by societies for their own supervision is steadily increasing. There was an increase in the number of suits filed, free recourse being had in some districts to the recently established Village Panchayat Courts. There was another large increase in arbitration references due to the continuance of systematic overhauling of bad societies. In spite of the amendments to the Co-operative Societies Act providing for the recovery of the assets of liquidated societies and of the cost of liquidation proceedings as if they were arrears of land revenue, the rate at which liquidation proceedings were carried through was still found to be slow. A Provincial Co-operative Congress was held in Madras in December 1822 and there were six district conferences, at two of which the Honourable the Minister for Development was present. The attitude of the public continues to be very cordial.

SECTION IV.

THE CITY OF MADRAS.

THE Englishman on board the steamer, passing along the coast of India when he comes into lat. 13° 5' 0" N., long. 80° 16' 0" E., will find himself before the historic city of Madras. The area included within the municipal boundary limits is some twenty-seven square miles; the extreme length of the City from north to south is about nine miles, the greatest breadth at any one point about four miles. The City presents in the foreground a magnificent line of noble edifices on a level sandy shore made pleasing to the eye by green clumps of trees at intervals. The placid blue sea breaks in surf along the line, and the whole scene is dominated by the flag which floats in the tropical air from the flagstaff of Fort St. George. In the distant background are seen some low Hills the buildings on which may be visible even to the naked eye on a clear day. The general pleasing aspect of the city from the sea has been the same during the three centuries nearly since the old Fort of Cogan and Day was built. "It is, without exception, the prettiest place I ever saw," wrote Mrs. Kindersley, a young and adventurous lady, who travelled alone to India to meet her husband in 1765.

The early history of Madras, and the founding of Fort St. George possess much interest. In South India, the first factory established by the English was the one at Masulipatam, the seaport of the Golconda Kingdom, but the first fortified settlement of the English was at Armagon. Francis Day, the Chief of Armagon, finding the place unsuited for trade, went southwards in search of a new settlement. He received overtures from Damarla Venkatadri, the Naik of Poonamallee, to establish an English settlement at Madras; and it is also stated that the Naik desired that the town should be named after his father, Chinapa Naick. When the Agent at Masulipatam fell in with Day's proposal to form a new settlement, Day selected a site in Madraspatam and obtained from the Naick in 1639 a grant of the site and a cowle to build a fort on it. This grant was confirmed by Sri Ranga Rayulu of Chandragiri, the representative of the waning power of Vijianagar. Francis Day and his Chief, Andrew Cogan, without even waiting for the Company's sanction, dismantled the fort at Armagon and erected a fort on the site and called it Fort St. George. Of this fort nothing now remained but the name and the site.

When Francis Day came to this place on his mission to find a site for a new settlement, he found the territory around it cut in three big pieces by the two rivers the Cooum and the Cochrane canal, which then were called the Triplicane River and the North or Elambore River. The Triplicane River ran through the villages of Chetput, Nungumbaukam and Triplicane. The North River flowed parallel to and about a mile distant from the coast. At the site of the present General Hospital, it turned to the East, and, when near the sea, turned southwards again for about three quarters of a mile and met the Triplicane River at its outlet. At the first bend near the General Hospital it was connected with the Triplicane River by a canal, on the North bank of which is the present Penitentiary. There was besides a small stream whose course was along Popham's Broadway, across the present Esplanade to near the second bend of the North River. Day selected the strip of land between the sea and the North River, with the Cooum on the south and the village of Madraspatam very close to it on the north. On this strip there existed it is believed, a village known as Chinaikupam. Even before Day's settlement there existed two villages called Chinnaikupam (or Chennapatam) and Madraspatam (or Madras). Chinaikupa m must have been a small hamlet of fishermen mostly. On the site of this hamlet Cogan and Day's Fort St. George was built, the name Chennapatam (the urban form of Chinaikupam) being given to the native town which grew around it in deference to the wishes of the local Naick. The name Madraspatam persisted in use. As the village which went by that name continued to exist, the native population showed a preference to the name Chennapatam, while the English preferred the name Madraspatam (or Madras), for the combined towns of Chennapatam and Madraspatam.

Cogan and Day's Fort was nearly square with a bastion at each angle and measured on the outside 108 yards from North to South and 100 yards from East to West. The construction was begun on March 1, 1640, and completed in 1653. A promise of exemption from taxes for 30 years attracted nearly 400 weaver families from the neighbourhood and many Portuguese from San Thome—an earlier European settlement—some three miles from Fort St. George. The garrison consisted of 58 Europeans and 35 natives.

In 1653 the Agent, Aaron Baker, began to build outworks, which were brought nearly to a state of completion in 1656. This became the outer Fort, the basis of the modern Fort St. George. For a long time the inner Fort was called Fort St. George, the area within the walls of the outer Fort, where the European population owned houses and lived, being called the Christian or White Town. Just to the north of it and separated from its northern wall by a wide street, called the Bazaar or Market, lay the Black Town where the Indian population lived. Like the Christian Town it was quadrangular and was bounded on the north by the present eastern portion of the China Bazaar, on the south by the inner north wall of the modern Fort St. George, on the east by the sea and on the west by a line parallel to the shore extending from the south end of Popham's Broadway to a point near the sally post on the north-west glacis where it struck the course of the North River. The perimeter of this old Black Town was 3,000 yards. There were seven main streets running north to south and two main streets running east to west. The Hindus had a temple and the Moors a mosque. To the west of the town flowed the stream from Popham's Broadway, which has now degenerated into a drainage channel. On the other side of the channel were some fields and gardens and beyond them lay Peddanaikenpetta. The channel was crossed by a small bridge. To the north of the old George Town was Muthialpet. Being the "out town" of the Company's Fort the Black Town was inhabited by the Company's Indian servants, whose protection as well as the better defence of the Fort required the erection of a rampart around the Black Town. An earthen rampart was begun by Agent Ivie about 1644. Governor Yale, against the wishes of his Council, erected a turf bulwark, which fell down during the rains and the cost of which he had to pay. Permanent fortifications, in brick and chunam, were however begun in 1700 and finished in 1707. The total length of this wall was 1,600 yards, and it was 17 ft. thick. During the French occupation of Madras (1746—49), the southern half of this town and all its walls were demolished for the better defence of the fort. In 1757 the Hindu temple was transferred from the old Black Town to its present site near the Flower Bazaar. The remaining half of the old town was demolished in 1758 on the recommendation of Engineer Call. Thus the old Black Town with its 'Chitti' population, 'Moors' and Company's merchants disappeared into the crowded streets of Peddanaikenpetta and Muthialpet and gave its name to this united town.

The erection of a masonry wall around the new George Town formed always a part of any scheme for the complete defence of the City of Madras. Benjamin Robins was sent here in 1751 with a special commission to execute this work, but it was not till 1764, when Engineer Call pointed out its urgency, that it was begun; and it was finished in 1770. Till about the middle of the last century it was deemed of sufficient consequence for Government to maintain it. In the name of the street lying within the line of the west wall, which bears the name "Wall Tax Road," we have a memorial of this piece of fortification. Under the Preservation of Ancient Monuments Act, the Government have also put up a memorial tablet on the remains of this wall near Royapuram.

The military character of the Company's Government became well established in the first half of the eighteenth century. Cogan and Day's Fort (the old Fort St. George, the 'Fort within Fort' as it was called by the country powers) falling into decay, was demolished, and on the site a square, called the Fort Square, was built in the years 1714—17, which was demolished only in 1825. The improvement of the defences and fortifications of Madras was taken in hand by Engineer John Brohier in 1756 and completed by Chief Engineer Patrick Ross in 1788—quite a generation. Fort St. George is connected with a long roll of distinguished Engineers—Benjamin Robins, John Brohier, Caroline Frederick Scott, John Call, Patrick Ross, George Maule, etc. By the close of the eighteenth century Fort St. George had passed through four phases of development. The first was Cogan and Day's Castle; the second the quadrangular bastioned enclosure of the White Town which converted the original castle into a citadel; the third the development of the walled town into a fortress planned as a half decagon; and the fourth the entire reconstruction of the fort as a half octagon on Vauban's system with ample outwork.

The buildings of historical interest in the present Fort St. George are St. Mary's Church, the Secretariat Office and the Council Room, the Office of the Accountant-General and the Government Treasury, and the Officers' Mess. The oldest structure in the Fort is St. Mary's Church. The foundation of the Church (the English Church as it was then called) was laid on Easter Monday, the 1st of April 1678. The consecration took place in October 1680. The credit of establishing a Church in the Fort for the Company's officers and the oldest Protestant place of worship in India is due entirely to Sir Streynsham Master who raised subscriptions for it. Clive's marriage took place here. Its steeple was built in the last decade of the 17th century. During the siege of Madras (1758-59) it was damaged, and re-built in 1795. Among the articles of interest there are the old registers, an alms-dish presented by Elihu Yale, and Streynsham Master's Bible printed in 1660, which was presented by Mr. C. G. Master of the Civil Service. The sanctuary contains a large altar piece, a copy of Raphael's Painting of the Last Supper. It contains the graves of Governor Nicholas Morse, a great-great-grandson of Oliver Cromwell; of Lord Pigot who defended the Fort against Lally in 1759, and was afterwards arrested and imprisoned by his own Council; of the famous Missionary-diplomat Swartz; of Sir Thomas Munro, the people's Collector of the Ceded Districts and afterwards Governor of Madras, and of many other makers of Madras history. Lord Pigot's was the first intramural burial in this Church.

The new Council Room was built quite recently. The Secretariat buildings contain the old Council Room. The middle portion of the Secretariat building has an interesting history. In the Fort of Cogan and Day there was in the centre a turretted structure known as the Fort House. It was built in 1648 and used as the Agent's residence and consultation or council room. Being very defective and unfit for use it was demolished, and a new one built in 1694-95. Its sides were parallel to the curtains of the inner Fort but somewhat nearer to the eastern face of it. Lockyear, who was in Madras in 1703, says: "The Consultation Room was curiously adorned with firearms in several figures imitating those in the armoury of the Tower of London."—a strange but significant contrast to the present Council Room. It was a three-storied building. The Consultation Room and the Governor's quarters were on the second floor, the Fort Hall which accommodated the 'General Table' was on the first floor and the ground floor was used for offices. This Fort House, it is believed, exists still as the middle portion of the Secretariat building, the wings of which were added only in 1825. The present Accountant-General's Office was the Admiralty House of old days. It served as the Town Residence of the Governor. The Court of Admiralty was held in it. State functions were held there. Clive occupied this house at the time of his marriage. It was for some time appropriated as the Guests' House of the Governor. The history of the Officers' Mess is as follows:—The Sea Gate and the Colonnade of the old Banqueting Hall in the Fort were for long the general resort of merchants trafficking in sea-borne goods. It was an inconvenient place. Therefore Peter Massey Cassim, a free merchant of Madras, came forward in 1787 with a scheme for providing the town with a special building to serve as an exchange. The land occupied by Mr. Hughes' house which lay at the south end of the easternmost line of buildings north of the Sea Gate was acquired and the old house was replaced by a new structure. It had warehouses and offices on the ground floor, and on the first floor the exchange or 'place of public and free, open, and uncontrolled resort for all merchants, dealers, commanders of ships or others having any concern in trade, together with a Brokers' Office, a committee room for the Managers of the Exchange Company and a Public Coffee room. The funds for its construction were raised by lotteries. Mrs. Fay, who visited Madras in 1796, described it as "a noble building, ornamented with whole-length pictures of Lord Cornwallis, Sir Eyre Coote and General Meadows." The Exchange Hall was also used for public meetings, lottery drawings and occasionally for entertainments. Public Auction Rooms were located in it. There was also a Public Subscription Library on the ground floor. The old Madras Bank was located on the ground floor in 1807. The Exchange Tavern occupied for some time a portion of the building. In 18[illegible] St. Andrew's Day was celebrated in the Exchange. The valuable crown jewels of Tippu Sultan were sold by public auction at the Exchange in 1802. On the roof of the Exchange a light-house was erected by the Exchange Committee in 179[illegible]. It was a framed iron structure, carrying a lantern reflector and twelve lamps burning cocoanut oil. The light was 90 feet above the sea level at high water; it could be seen from the decks of ships about 17 miles, and from their mastheads nearly 26 miles. This building is now the Officers' Mess of the regiment quartered in Fort St. George.

The Fort has four gates usually open to the public. The Sea Gate is on the east and leads to the Beach Road. The North Gate is on the north and leads to the China Bazaar Road and High Court, but closed to Traffic. St. George's gate is opened always. The Walajah Gate is on the west; from where the Mount Road begins. The main gate opens on the north-west and leads to the General Hospital, Peddanaickpettah and Poonamallee Road.

The Mount Road, the Poonamallee Road and the Beach Road are the three main highways in Madras. The first two are Military roads. They divide the City into three big areas. When the Fort was the centre of all official activity, the servants of the Company had garden-houses in Peddanaickpettah, especially towards the southern side which was reached by crossing the rivulet in the present Esplanade. The Island was ordinarily their recreation ground, crossing the North River in boats. In 1714-15 a bridge which does not now exist, was constructed from the north bank of the River, where the Governor's Garden House was connected to the Island. Governor Pitt had laid out north to south a 'great walk on the Island.' The statue of Sir Thomas Munro is more or less in the centre of that 'great walk.' The road to Triplicane then was from that bridge over the Island and the Government House Bridge which was then called Triplicane Bridge. In those days the fashionable residential quarters were in Peddanaickpettah. When the military activities of the Madras Government increased, the peace and comforts of country residence could not be had so near the military fortifications. A move to the Choultry plain in the west was open to the European residents. The famous Madras Garden houses began to appear on the Choultry plain (an open expanse which stretched south-west of the Fort from the Triplicane or Government House Bridge as far as Mylapore and the Long Tank). The need for a shorter route to the plain and in consequence for a new bridge over the North River was felt; and in 175[illegible] the Wallaja Bridge was constructed. The Mount Road from that time ran from the Fort. It was reformed in 1795-96. It passes over the Wallaja Bridge to the Island, which still maintains its old reputation as a recreation ground. The Gymkhana grounds and Pavilion are there on the east side of the road and on the other side are the Body Guard lines, St. Andrew's Cemetery, St. Mary's Cemetery, and an open plain used for football by students and the soldiers of the garrison. In the centre is the statue of Sir Thomas Munro. The Island is also the Brigade Parade ground. The road then takes you over the Government House Bridge to the old Choultry plain, but now a most busy centre of trade. The statue of King Edward meets your eye first as soon as you step off the bridge. On your left is Government House. The nucleus of this mansion was a house purchased from Mrs. Madeiros in 1758 for the country residence of Governor Saunders. The Banqueting Hall of Government House was built by the second Lord Clive, John Goldingham being the architect. On your right is Napier Park laid out in 1871. Behind it is Chintadripet. This village was founded in 1735 by George Morton Pitt in order to develop the supply of calicoes and to encourage manufacture in Madras as being the best fitted in point of having shade trees for the artificers to work under. Before you reach the mile-end on the Mount Road there are the spacious sale-rooms of Messrs Oakes and Company, the Clerk Tower and show-rooms of Messrs. P. Orr & Sons, Jewellers and Diamond Merchants. At the mile end is the Maharajah of Vijanagaram's fountain. The place is known to ghariwalas and coachmen as Round Tannah. Misqu th's Music Rooms are there; Walajah Road from Chepauk and Triplicane, Ellis Road from Pudupaukum and Tiruvateswaranpet, Harris' Road from Komaleswaranpet Pudupet, and Egmore, meet at the mile-end. Triplicane was granted to the English about the year 1658. It is a purely Hindu suburb with an ancient Vishnu Temple which, in September 1672, was occupied by the Moslems and in March 1674 by the French. and in September the same year by the Dutch. It barely escaped demolition that year. Chepauk is a very congested portion of the City inhabited mostly, by Muhammadans who were all dependent on the Chepauk Palace. It contains a big mosque built all in granite, an imposing structure in the midst of squalid dwellings of the Muhammadan poor. Tiruvateeswaranpet is to the north-west of Triplicane. It contains a temple of Siva. It was in the early part of the 18th century considered to be outside the Company's bounds. Pudupakum was granted to the English by Nawab Muhammed Sayid in 1742. Amir Mahal, the residence of the Prince of Arcot, is there. Komaleswaranpetta is a neat little suburb where a few respectable Hindu houses in modern style have been built. The bridge over the Cooum at that place called Harris bridge, is only a recent construction. Pudupet, further to the south-west on the Harris Road, contains Indian Christians, Muhammadans and a large Pariah population. The Government Ophthalmic Hospital founded in 1819 at Royapettah is located on the outskirts of this suburb. It has established a reputation as one of the best hospitals in the world. The Madras Reserve Police is quartered here. Egmore which is a little further off, is considered the healthiest place in Madras; at any rate, it is not so congested as other parts of Madras. It was granted to Governor Higginson by Vizier Assad Khan in 1698. The South Indian Railway Station in Egmore has a splendid frontage to the south with two fine porticos. It has been built in the popular Hindu Saracenic style. The Arni House of the Jagirdar of Arni is a fine specimen of domestic architecture by Indian nobles. The Presidency Training School for Mistresses is situated in this suburb. The Victoria Technical Institute, the Government Central Museum the Connemara Public Library and the Government Materni y Hospital are in the Pantheon Road, which separates Egmore from Pudupet. The Museum was founded in 1851 with a collection of geological specimens presented by the Madras Literary Society which was then a scientific body and the duplicates of the articles sent to the Great Exhibition of 1851 in Hyde Park. Its habitation then went by the name of "The Pantheon." Around it has grown the pile of buildings which the visitor to the Museum sees.

The Pantheon was built about the year 1778 by Hall Plumer, a Civil Servant and contractor. It came to be used a few years later as 'Public Rooms' or 'Assembly Rooms.' It was purchased in 1791 by a committee formed to regulate the amusements of the settlement The Committee was designated. "The Madras Assembly." The Dramatic entertainments, balls and dinner parties which took place there were controlled by a master of ceremonies who in 1812 was Mark Roworth. Lord Clive gave a ball and supper at the Pantheon on Monday, February 28th, the birthday anniversary of George the Third An Armenian merchant (Moorat) purchased the building in 1821, from whom the Government took it in 183 . It was allotted as the Collector's Cutcherry, and it is still known to the common people more as the "Collector's Cutcherry" than as the Museum.

The Museum contains an archaeological section of much value. Sculptured marbles from the railings of the Buddhist stupa at Amravati, a fragment of Buddha's bones, a collection of arms and armour from the Fort St. George Arsenal and the Tanjore Palace, and a valuable collection of coins which some years ago suffered a loss by theft. The Connemara Public Library was opened in 1896 and attached to the Museum. The marble statue of Lord Cornwallis, which stood in the Fort since 1800 and had suffered damage owing to exposure to sea air and other causes, was early in this century renovated by the well-known Indian Artist Mhatre and transferred to the interior of the Connemara Library. The semi circular building in the front is a theatre, to seat about 400 persons, provided with a stage adopted for lectures, conferences and charitable entertainments by amateurs The Madras Dramatic Society generally gives its performances in this theatre—a memory of the old Madras Assembly! The Victoria Technical Institute owes its origin to the public demonstrations of loyalty and love to the Queen Mother Victoria South Indian Industrial products may be seen exhibited there. It is under the control of a committee of Europeans and Indians The Government Maternity Hospital was founded in 1844 by public subscription and managed by a committee with State aid. In 1847 the Government assumed charge of it and in 1881 transferred it to its present building. In connection with the acquisitions of Chepauk, Pudupaukum and other villages there is a very amusing letter (12-12-1673) from Sir William Langhorne to Bramina Venkatapattee, the Company's Agent at Golconda, as regards French claims to several villages round Madras. 'Triplicane, you know, has always been in our hands; Yeagamour is in Hussan Cawn's [Cassa Verona] hands an Nimyubacka Chepacka, Podupacka and Coudour, and several other towns also which are very convenient for us to take our recreation in who have no other designs in this country, but to live peaceably and undisturbed in our business."

The imaginary visitor left Mount Road at the mile end. Now, as he resumes his walk, he finds on his left the stately edifices of Messrs, Hawker and Sons, Jewellers and Diamond Merchants, and Messrs. Whiteaway, Laidlaw, & Co. the spacious sale-rooms of Wrenn Bennett & Co. right Japanese and Indian Curio shop and the hospitable mansion of A'Dungelis' Restaurant; On his way he may attend the service of Christ Church and take his carminative dose at W. E. Smith's Kardyl buildings. Then if he takes the road on his left. General Patter's Road, he will in five minutes be at the Madras Club. It is years old eighty, and is now a palace occupied by high European officers, Pycroft's Road, crosses Patter's Road, next to the Club. If he goes straight, there is the red-plastered Wesley College, Royapettah. The Woodlands Temple Gardens, and Gopal Baugh come next. The road passes through Royapettah by the newly-built Royapettah Hospital which was maintained by the Corporation of Madras, up to October 1919 and afterwards handed over to the Government. At the Royapettah Police Station there is a turning on the left which takes the visitor along the side of a few paddy-fields, vestiges of old Madras, to the Luz Church Road crossing. Quitting this road which from here takes the name Brodie's Road. If he goes to the right along the Luz Church Road he sees the palatial residences of Indians. This is the fashionable residential suburb of Indian Vakils, Judges and others. The Luz Church is about the middle of this road. The inscribed stone bears the date 1516; but the inscription does not seem to be authentic. Evidence points to a much later date of its erection between 1547 and 1582. The origin of the name Luz is interesting. Some storm-tossed mariners vowed a church to the Virgin if they were delivered from the fury of the elements, Forthwith, a guiding light flashed out. They steered towards it and came to shore. Pursuing their way for a mile into the interior, they at length reached the spot whence the brilliance shone, only to find the light extinguished. On that spot was erected the Church of Our Lady of light. There is a garden-house or bungalow named Luz House. Close to it in the Luz (suburb), but included in Teynampet is the 'Grove' which was the residence of the Governor Alexander Davidson. It was one of the houses proposed for the Observatory at the time of its establishment. Sudder Gardens, Sullivan's Gardens and the newly-built mansion of the late Justice Sundara Iyer deserve notice. From the Luz Church begins the suburb of Mylapore proper, Brodie's Road goes along the west side of the Mylapore Temple Tank. Mylapore is a town of much antiquity and is mentioned by Ptolemy. The name means 'Peacock City' from the Peacock standard which the old Tamil Kings of places carried. The deity worshipped is Siva as Kapaleswara. The big tank and gardens all around the place moderate the heat in the hot months. The agraharam or the Brahmin quarter of this place has no houses of any architectural value. A number a fine houses there are on the old traditional plan with open quadrangles in the interior. Mylapore still presents the aspect of a village. In 1673 the temple was occupied by the French during the siege of San Thome.

Leaving Mylapore, let him now resume his walk southwards along Brodie's Road. He will get to the suburb of Adyar. The native portion of this suburb is of no consequence. Its importance comes from its being a large fashionable European residential suburb. Some of the oldest garden houses built by the Company's servants are here. The Beachborough, Brodie Castle, Brunton Villa, Mowbray's Garden (the premises of the Adyar Club), Pugh's Gardens, Searle's Gardens, Gambier' Gardens. Outside the Municipal toll gates is Elphinstone Bridge over the Adyar, which leads to the spacious compound of the Theosophical Society, a small colony in itself laid out in a delightfully oriental style, Fowler's Gardens and Elliot's Beach, so called after E. F. Elliot, son of the Right Hon. Hugh Elliot, Governor of Madras.

Returning to the Kardyl building on the Mount Road; opposite to which is the Lawrence Asylum Press (now Branch Government Press) built in Indo Saracenic style, the visitor may now ramble along the Mount Road until he arrives at the statue of General Neill, of Mutiny fame. The road on his right takes him to Spencer's Hotel. Connemara Hotel, the Victoria Hotel on the other side of the river Cooum (this was the residence of the Commander-in-Chief of Madras for some time) and a few bungalows occupied by Europeans. This road is along the riverside and meets the Pantheon Road at Anderson's Bridge. Then on the Mount Road come the magnificent showrooms and premises of Messrs Spencer & Co., the Elphinstone Hotel, the Thousands Lights of the Nawab of Arcot Mackay's Garden (the first garden House built on the Choultry plain) and St. George's Cathedral. The Cathedral was built by Lt.-Col. T. F. De Havilland in 1816, Ionic in style the columns being handsomely finished with the polished plaster-work that resembles marble. The Mount Road here passes through Teynampet.

A turning to the left takes you into Cathedral Road which at the Theological College (Sullivan's Gardens) becomes Mowbray's Road. It is one of the most beautiful highways of Madras being avenued for the greater part of its length. It separated Teynampet from Mylapore and Luz. The Adyar Club (Mowbray's Gardens) marks its termination. If at the Cathedral he had turned off into Nungambaukam High Road on the right within a furlong he would pass the Trunk Road from Bangalore. There are a number of European residences on either side. A small path on the left through rice fields gets him into the Village of Nungambaukam, a suburb of Madras to the south-wes of Egmore. It is miscalled suburb as it still is a rural hamlet showing no signed urban influence beyond the Municipal lamp posts and dustbins. The village was granted to the English in 17 8 and had a field redoubt of which there is no trace now. The turning to the east at the end of this road, along the College Road, the Observatory and the Old College takes you to Anderson's bridge. The Observatory was constructed in 1792 under the supervision of Michael Topping. The private observatory of William Petrie afforded the nucleus of the Observatory equipments. Michael Topping was the first Astronomer and was succeeded by John Goldingham, F.R.S., who was a mathematician, engineer, architect, editor, and astronomer combined. He had worked before this as assistant to William Petrie in his private observatory. Petrie was one of the ablest civil servants of the Company. His range of knowledge was wide and extensive—Astronomy, Chemistry, Mathematics, Banking, Finance, Engineering. To a knowledge of these he combined a keen insight into administrative and literary ability. This Observatory was the first established by Europeans in the East. The establishment of the Solar Physics Observatory at Kodaikanal has reduced the work of this institution to meridian observations for determining the time and the maintenance of the time service, which is effected by the daily transmission to the Central Telegraph Office at Madras, and thence automatically throughout India, of a signal making the moment at which standard time is 4 P. M. Observations are also made for the issue of storm warnings. The College for Junior Civil Servants was located in the Old College buildings. The spacious hall in it was long used for dramatic and other entertainments. It is now the office of the Director of Public Instruction. The Madras Literary Society and Auxiliary of the Royal Asiatic Society occupies a portion of the building for its big library containing about 45,0 0 volumes.

The other important buildings in this suburb are the Mansion, Doveton House, Mackay's Garden, Pycroft's Garden and Tulloch's Garden. The last two are portions of Dr. Anderson's famous Botanic Garden which covered an area of about 111 acres. His name still survives in Anderson's Bridge and Road.

At the junction of Mount Road and Cathedral Road are the Agri-Horicultural Gardens of Madras. An Annual Flower show in February is held there. Newington House is the training college for the minor Zamindars under the control of the Court of Wards. At the fourth mile-end was the cenotaph of Lord Cornwallis which has been transferred opposite to the Post Office, North Beach. The memorial was surrounded by an avenue oval drive and was the daily objective of Madras Society until the South Beach Road was laid out. Sir Samuel Auchmuty was received at the cenotaph by the officers of the general staff when he returned from the conquest of Java.

Quitting the Municipal limits, along the same road, the Training College for Teachers which is situated at Saidapet, is only a few minutes' drive. Adjoining it is a red-bricked building which was once the Madras Agricultural College and Government Experimental Farm. These have now been transferred to Coimbatore and established on a wider basis. The Marmalong Bridge, which spans the Adyar, next to the Agricultural College buildings, was rebuilt by a rich Armenian merchant Petrus Uscan, at his own expense, in 1726. He has left a fund for its maintenance also. The Governor's country-residence at Guindy was built in the time of the second Lord Clive, and is only about a mile from the bridge on the other side of the Adyar. The King Institute of Preventive Medicine is the only other building deserving notice here. The Guindy Races have been in existence for more than a century now.

Without any more stoppages St. Thomas' Mount, the terminus ad quem of this long road, may now be reached.

The erection of Cornwallis Cenotaph so far away from the Fort and the sea-shore needs an explanation. When the Military exigencies of the Government required the clearing of a large area around the Fort, the Indian residents of the cleared ground moved into the streets of the adjoining pettahs, but the European population migrated to the Choultry plain which was easily accessible from the Fort and was on the way to St. Thomas Mount, the health resort of the settlement from its earliest days. The roads from Bangalore and Chingleput meet very near there. These advantages made the Choultry plain a favourite place for the building of country residences. A feature of social life in the East, particularly of Europeans, has been the spending of holidays in country residences away from the busy haunts of people. The climate of Madras required it. The Choultry plain became the favourite place in the first half of the 18th century. In the beginning garden houses were built in the neighbourhood of Chepauk and Triplicane. It was one of these houses that was purchased for the Governor's country residence in 1758 and which is now the Government House at Madras. In 1758 George Mackay set the example of building on the Choultry plain. About the year 1 74 applications for grants of building sites were numerous. Iune Munros estimated in 1780 that there were 50 to 600 garden houses on the Choultry plain. It is believed that Philip Stovey, who was then Civil Architect, had much to do with the beautifying of Madras by designing handsome mansions. By the beginning of the 18th century the Choultry plain, which was traversed through its entire length by a beautiful highway, become one of the most fashionable residential areas about Madras. The Cenotaph was therefore erected on the plain.

Some idea of the famous Madras garden houses may be formed from the following extracts:—

"For Sale. House on the East side of the Road leading to St. Thomas' Mount, situated between the New Church and the Cenotaph and little more than 3 miles from the Wallajah Gate of the Fort; first floor 8 feet high and second floor 20 feet; (extent) 9 to 10 cawnies. The greatest part of the ground on which the house is built is a spot on which a village was raised [sic] between 20 and 30 years ago and it was then planted with trees (Mango and Cocoanut). The house fronts and is open to the East and West and open to the South. Bamboo hedge [around the compound.]

"For Sale. House occupied by George, Garrow built by Dr. Anderson two wells and an extensive tank—choicest fruit trees—Enclosed with a brick wall—between 15 and 29 cawnies—worth Rs. 20,000, furnished."

About the style of the buildings, Mrs. Kindersley says: "The houses are neat and pretty many of them large; in all the good houses the apartments are upstairs and all on one floor; the rooms are large and lofty. Most of the houses are built with a verandah, [verandahs] which is a terrace on a level with the rooms in the ground, and sometimes in the back part of the house supported by pillars below and roof above supported likewise by pillars, with rails round to lean on. The verandahs give a handsome appearance to the houses on the outside, and are of great use, keeping out the sun by day, and in the evenings are cool and pleasant to sit in. But what gives the greatest to the houses is a material peculiar to the place; it is a cement or plaster called chunam made of the shells of a very large species of oysters found on this coast These shells, when burnt, pounded and mixed with water, form the strongest cement imaginable; if it is to be used as a plaster, they mix it with white of eggs, milk and some other ingredients; when dry, it is as hard, and very near as beautiful as marble. The rooms, staircases, etc, are covered with it, the heat of the climate admits of an open, airy style of building which is pleasing to the eye; a roof supported with pillars is more elegant than a wall with windows and doors, besides the rooms being unencumbered with chimneys makes it more easy to lay them out in uniformity." "The houses of the English gentlemen are lofty and well proportioned and from their construction are so extremely cool that I can scarcely believe myself in the Torrid Zone," so wrote Mr. Philip Dormer Stanhope who was in Madras in 1774.

From the main Gate of Fort St George, the Poonamallee Road takes you to the Medical College on the left; on the right is the Memorial Hall, erected in commemoration of the escape of Madras from the horrors of the Indian Mutiny. The Bible Society and the Christian Vernacular Literature Society have their premises there. The Mint Street has its southern end here. The squalid quarters, John Pereira's, which was once a fashionable suburb, has been cleared, and Railway offices are being built on the spot. Next to the Medical College is the General Hospital constructed in 1772 by John Sullivan. The inscription on the front wall that it was built in 1758 evidently refers to the removal of the hospital from the Fort. Facing the General Hospital and turning south to north is the Wall Tax Road. Adam's Park, laid out in memory of the short-lived Governor, Patrick Adam, lies in the eastern corner formed by this road. Opposite to the General Hospital is the Central Station of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway. This splendid building was designed by R F. Chisholm, Consulting Architect to the Government. Here the road passes over the bridge which crosses Cochrane's Canal (formerly the North River). To the north of the road and along the western bank of this canal is the People's Park, Madras which owes to Governor Sir Charles Trevelyan.

It contains ornamental grounds with a good zoological collection The Park is bounded on the west by Sydenham's Road and on the north by the Salt Cotaura Goods Station of the M & S M. Ry. The South Indian Athletic Association has its ground and pavilion in the Park. The Moore Market, the new Evening Bazaar, the Victoria Town Hall, and Ripon building occupy the southern portion of the Park and face the road. It is a great relief to turn from the red brick buildings, so much in fashion now, to the Ripon Buildings the new Corporation office) finished in white plaster producing a marble effect. This new office of the Madras Corporation was opened by Lord Hardinge on Nov 26, 1913. The southern side of the road is occupied by Sir Savalai Ramaswami Mudalia 's choultry and the Park Station of the S. I. Railway. The Madras Penitentiary is situated to the south of these and extends as far as the cut connecting the Cooum and Cochrane's Canal. The Penitentiary faces east and opens on a small road connecting the Poonamallee Road and the Island. Going westwards along the Poonamallee Road, you get to Periamet, where, in former days, the Moors collected land custom. The principal inhabitants are Muhammadans dealing in skins and hides. The Naval Hospital Road where the Madras Land Custom House formerly stood is north and south. The Gun Carriage Factory opens into this road. At the end of this road is the Government Veterinary Hospital. The Doveton Protestant College is very near. The portion of the City is Vepery—a residential suburb of Europeans and Anglo-Indians. It was granted to the English in 1642 by Nawab Mahommad Said. Vepery was the scene of an engagement between the French and the English in February 1759. The S. P. C K. has established a printing press here. This Society began its educational work about the year 1717 Petrus Uscan of Marmalong Bridge fame had built a chapel at his own cost in Vepery, which the Company handed over to the Danish Mission to put down the influence of Catholics in Madras. On the site of this chapel St. Matthias' Church has been built. The S. P. G. maintains a school in Vepery.

The Madras School of Arts, established about the middle of the last century, is on the south side of Poonamallee Road; to the west of it is the Scotch Kirk. It was built by the famous Engineer DeHavilland in 1821. The Church is of much architectural importance. Opposite to the Kirk and on the northern side of the road are the headquarters of the Madras Volunteer Guards. Randall's Road is on the west of this building. The Young Women's Christian Association is in Poonamallee Road. The Madras Electric Tramway Company has its power station and shed on the Poonamallee Road. For the greater part of the last century Poonamallee Road was one of the favourite residential quarters of Europeans in Madras. The more fashionable Indians are now moving to this road.

Passing the Church Missionary Society's Headquarters, you come to the crossing of the road from Harris Bridge, which leads to Pursewalkum. This Suburb was granted to Governor Higginson in 1698. It had a field redoubt of which there is no trace now.

A little further off on the Poonamallee Road is "Ramamandiram" the residence of Rajah Sir Ramaswami Mudaliar's family. Landon's Garden and Dare's Garden are on this road, which here passes through Kilpauk, another European residential suburb. Then the road goes out of the Municipal limits on to the military station of Poonamallee.

Lying between the Beach on the east and Cochrane's Canal on the west and bounding the military limits of the Fort on the north and west is the most densely populated and busy suburb of Madras called Georgetown. This name was given to it in 1906 to commemorate the visit to Madras of H. M. George V as Prince of Wales. Before that it was called Black Town, a name given to the Indian quarter of Fort St. George in the early days of the settlement. Then it was the appellation of the out-town, which was practically the creation of the Company's Government here. When this out-town was pulled down in the middle of the 18th century, the name Black Town survived. It was applied to Peddanaickpettah alone at first, Muthialpettah being then called Mahratta town. So called from the fact that when in 1740 the Mahrattas threatened to attack Madras a field of fire 800 ft. wide on the north and west side of old Black Town was cleared. The ground so cleared was called Mahratta ground. Two pettahs were separated by gardens and fields and the rivulet which had its course along the Broadway; when this physical separation disappeared owing to the reclamation of those lands and the formation of new streets, the two pettahs became one, and the united town came to be called Black Town. Popham's Broadway, Davidson's Street, Stringer's Street, Umpherson's Street mark the spot which Stephen Popham reclaimed. The China Bazaar now begins at Parry's corner and goes westward crossing the Mint Street to the Wall Tax Road. When the China Bazaar came into existence is not known but it existed so early as 1782. The formation of Popham's Broadway and the opening of shops of better class brought it into closer connection with them giving it a more respectable character. Peddanaickpetta means the town or suburb of Peddanaick. The head of the police in old Madras was called Peddanaick. The office was hereditary, the holder of which was sometimes called the Poligar of Madras. In the early years of this settlement, this pettah was the fashionable suburb. The Governor's Garden house was at the southern end of it, on the site of which the present General Hospital has been erected. The Company's washing garden was situated in the north of this town. It was also called Comerpetta from the colony of potters in the west of it near the canal. In 1774 there were 1[illegible]9 streets and 6,042 houses. The main street is Mint street, which runs through the whole length of the town. The southern portion of the street is occupied by Chettis. Linga Chetti's castemen. Marwaries and Guzaratis live in the middle portion of it, which is hence know as Sowcarpet. The northern portion is occupied by various other castes. At the end of the street is the Government Printing Press in the building once occupied by the Madras Mint. The "Seven Well," which supplied water to the Garrison and the Europeans in the Fort, is there. Govindappa Naick Street belongs to Komity Chetties. The wealth of Madras may be said to be in these two streets. The Godown Street and Bunder street are occupied by piece-goods merchants—mostly Muhammadans—and petty cloth merchants. Pachaiyappa's College faces the Esplanade; a handsome structure on Grecian model. It is a first grade College training students for the Arts degrees of the Madras University. The institution is the outcome of the charity of Pachaiyappa, a merchant and 'dubash' of the Company's days. The Hall was built in about 1850. Stringer's street Davidson street and parallel streets are occupied by various merchants and Setts dealing in all sorts of goods. Popham's Broadway is an important busy street. The street was laid out by Stephen Popham about the year 1782. It runs south to north from the Esplanade to the Black Town wall. Before Popham reclaimed this area it was a marshy ground with slopes on either side, the monsoon and drainage water forming a channel along the whole course of the Broadway. After Popham reclaimed this ground raising up its level with mud from the Hog hill, houses were built and street formed. There were big houses on either side of the Broadway but the channel was in existence until 1782 when Popham covered it in. Before 1782 the Broadway must have looked like a Venetian street only with this difference that the water in the Broadway channel would have been black sewage water! The [illegible] Square which runs along this crowded part of the town is to the west of the road. Kotwalchavadi, the biggest market for Madras, is a few yards from here. Stephen Popham was a solicitor. Mrs. Fay describes him as "one of the most eccentric of beings." He is a perpetual projector, a race whose exertions have frequently benefited society, but seldom, I believe, been productive of much advantage to themselves or their families. He is at present laying plans for building what is called "The George Town" to a great extent and confidently expects to realise an immense fortune." At the [illegible] end of the Broadway on the eastern side was Signor Nicolao Manucci's garden. He was a Venetian physician who practised in Madras about 1686 after having seen service under the Mogul Emperors. His Storio Do Mogor contains a record of his experiences in India. The Y. M. C. A. building fronts the Esplanade. It is a superb structure built entirely of the beautiful sandstone brought from a quarry [illegible] miles north of Madras. The Armenian Street contains the Roman Catholic Cathedral which was erected by the Capuchins in 1775, and the Armenian Church. Many commercial firms have their offices in this street. The two Chetti Streets, which are now being occupied by hardware merchants, lawyers and students, go up to the old north wall of Black Town. The enterprising Nattukotta Chetties have their quarters in Coral Merchant Street midway between the two streets towards the north end. This is surmised to be the site of an old pettah, Pagadalapettah or Coral Town. The Company of old traded in corals. The Christian College with its hostels, Principal's House, Halls and Association Rooms occupy all the southern portion of these streets. Between Armenian Street and Thambu Chetti Street rise the grand building of the late Agra Bank (now owned by the Chartered Bank of India, China and Australia). Facing the College on the Esplanade is the statue of Dr. William Miller, C.I.E., the popular Missionary Educationist of Southern India.

On the Esplanade Maidan rise the grand pile of buildings of the High Court with the Madras Lighthouse erected on the central cupola; the old Lighthouse built of granite, a high column, chaste in design and execution, erected in 1844; the newly built Law College. The High Court was completed in 1892 and is a specimen of the Hindu-Saracenic style of architecture. On the south side of the Rev. Dr. Miller facing the Christian College. The Christian College, a large and successful missionary institution, was founded in 1837 by The Rev. John Anderson. North is situated the suburb of Royapuram. A large community of Roman Catholic Boatmen have long been living here. The shipping trade of the port of Madras has had to suffer not a little in the past by the opposition of this community. These Christians have built a Church out of their funds. The Madras Railway had its terminus in Royapuram some years ago. During the siege of Madras by the French in 1758-59 the enemy had erected works in Muthialpettah, one at Parry's corner and the other south of it; and the place was practically occupied by them. In 177[illegible] there were in Muthialpettah 16 streets and 3,206 houses according to Topham's computation.

The Madras Beach is divided by the Fort Saint George fortifications and military zone into two big divisions. The North Beach is the busiest portion of the city. The Madras Harbour and its works and the premises of Oil Companies cover even the sands. Clive's Battery was previously to the north of the Harbour. Facing the sea on the road are the General Post Office, the Bank of Madras, the Bentinck Buildings of the Indian Bank, the Sea Custom Office, the National Bank, the Binny House and a number of commercial firms. South of this range of big buildings come the High Court, and the Lighthouse and the old Lighthouse column, then the Fort with the steeple of St. Mary's Church and the flagstaff; passing the Fort you get to the old Band stand which was the favourite resort in the evenings before the South Beach Road was formed. On this site there existed in Pitt's time a fisherman's hamlet. Napier Bridge, reconstructed quite recently, spans the Cooum at its mouth. Except during the rainy season a bar of sand forms itself there and closes the mouth of the river, whose current is not strong enough to force its way through the bar in to the sea. To prevent the stench from the surely Cooum becoming a nuisance during the hot season, the bar is opened artificially and seawater is let in by the tidal action. The Marina on the South Beach is a creation of the Governor, Sir M. E. Grant Duff. He himself described it as "one of the most beautiful promenades in the world." It runs along the sea front up to the suburb of San Thome. The Octagonal Marine Villa, the Senate House designed by Chisholm, and Queen Victoria's Statue by its side, the Chepauk Palace of the Nawab of Arcot (now used as the office of the Board of Revenue) which was constructed about 176[illegible], the College of Engineering, the Public Works Offices, the Presidency College designed by R. F. Chisholm, the Ice House, built about 1840 to store natural ice which came from America, the Capper House, the old Masonic Temple (now the office of the Inspector General of Police) and the San Thome Cathedral are on the sea front on the South Beach Road and give to the city grandeur and architectural richness.

The Senate House, Chepauk Palace, the Presidency College are all situated in the Chepauk Park, which is divided into two halves by the Buckingham Canal running north and south the whole length of Madras. The other and western portion is occupied by the Madras Cricket Club Ground and Pavilion, the Victory Hostel for students erected by public subscriptions and managed by a Committee and the Victoria Hospital for caste and gosha women, which was built by the Raja of Venkatagiri and public subscriptions and opened in 18[illegible].

San Thome was founded by the Portguese about 1522. Roman Catholic Christians have long associated this town with the Apostle St. Thomas. Tradition asserts that he was buried in San Thome and his tomb is still shown. Leaving this as a debatable matter not pertinent to the founding of the town and its growth, an examination of the records of the 16th and 17th centuries and the contemporary accounts of European travellers point to 1522 as the probable date of its founding. A church was at first built with a small monastery attached to it. It is the oldest European structure in India. Gradually a town grew up around it. In 1[illegible] Rama Rayalu of Vijianagar came here in great hopes of plunder; not finding it—as he had expected—he left the place in peace. It rose to importance between 1537 and 1582. The trade and popularity of the place increased. More churches were built. It enjoyed a large trade. Master Caesar Frederick described it in 1567 as "the fairest in all that part of the Indies." Balbi, a Venetian dealer in gems, who visited the place in 1582, refers to its fortifications. Then began its decline. In 1616 the inhabitants were found to be killing one another without any regard for human or divine laws or any shame, so that even the Moors and Gentiles abominated their wickedness The occasion was what they call Points of Honour De Rezende's account (1635) refers to the city being "continually harassed by the Hollanders" with the result that it was reduced both in population and commerce. When the English established their settlement at Madras the Portuguese readily accepted the English invitation to settle in their place. Its power had waned so much that in 1662 when it was threatened by the Dutch and besieged by Golconda, it yielded to the Moslem power, who held it for 11 years. Dominic Navarrette, a Spanish priest who in 1662 came to San Thome, Madras, says: "We went to see the city of St. Thomas; the Moors would not let us in. From the gate we saw some good buildings the walls were very high. A gentleman that was with us lamented that loss very much. The English are not so strong at Madraspatnam yet they hold it and are likely so to do. What signifies walls and bulwarks where there is no Government." How pathetic and true this remark! In 1672 the Moslems were ousted by the French who occupied it till August, 1674. The two years of French occupation was a period of a prolonged and continuous blockade by the Dutch and Moslems. The Dutch and the English fearing French designs to regain San Thome suggested to the Moslem the destruction of the whole town. But the Moslem Governor of the town would not entertain any proposal to destroy "so fine a town." Its fortifications, however, were partly demolished in 1675. The King of Golconda leased the place to Cassa Verona. But the Portuguese in August 1688 resettled it and took on lease from the Mogul. In 1697 its fortifications were pulled down by Muhammadans. An earthen rampart was built by them in 1702. The town was granted to the English by Muhammad Ali and English colours were hoisted there on 2nd October, 1749. Benjamin Robins planned a redoubt at San Thome in the house now called Leith Castle. The redoubt is now a ruined building with massive walls of brick. The old St. Thomas Cathedral has been recently replaced by a new structure. Owing to its convenient distance from Fort St George, San Thome offered to the enemies of the English and deserters a safe retreat before the town came into English possession.

It is now more than 273 years since the English formed a settlement in Fort St. George Their possession was only interrupted for about three years (Sep. 10, 1746 to Aug. 13, 1749) when the French occupied it. From 1782 up till 1914 it had not been attacked from outside enemies, though there were times of anxiety during Tippu's wars, the Mahratta wars, Pindari incursions and the great Indian Mutiny. Before that, the Fort was frequently threatened. The proximity of San Thome was the source of trouble with the Portuguese in the earlier years. Between the years 1655 and 1657 Fort St. George suffered from Muhammadan incursions and the siege of Madras by Krishnappa Naik. In 1670 Madras was blockaded by a General of Nawab Neckniam Khan. The blockade of Madras by the Dutch during the second siege of San Thome in 1673 ex ended even to Fort St. George. Lingappa, Governor of Poonamallee, stopped all provisions and ordered a strict blockade of the fort in 1678.

Daud Khan was hovering round the place in 1700 and started regular blockade which lasted for four months in 1702. The French attacked and took Madras in 1746 and again besieged the Fort in December 1758, the siege continuing up to the middle of the following February. Tippu at the head of his cavalry approached so near as Chintadripettah and raided the suburbs in 1767. Early in 1769 Haidar Ali came to the Mount with no friendly intentions and Madras was saved from an attack by the peace which was at once concluded by Dupre at St. Thomas Mount. Again in 1771 Haidar raided St. Thome, Triplicane and the Choultry plain. For the last time the Fort was threatened by Haidar's horse in 1782, when St. Thome was plundered These incursions and raids always resulted in making the fort stronger and better fortified.

The climate of Madras has been well described as three months hot and nine months hotter. Thomas Bowrey, who visited Madras 1669, described it as "not at any time, very cold or on the contrary very hot, having the fuull benefit of all sea breezes of wind but in these following months, May and June, although there be for the most part fresh gales, yet it is something sulphurous, which may most of all be alleged to the wind, itself, more than to the heat of the sun." The mean temperature for the whole year is 888, for the cooler months of December and January 76°, and for the hottest months of May and June 90°. The extremes are 64° in January and 105° in June. The annual rainfall based on the figures for 85 years is 49 inches. Like other places on the Bay of Bengal, Madras is liable to severe cyclones. The cyclone of October 1746 damaged the French fleet severely, that of 1782 deprived the town of rice and created a famine. The city cannot boast that it is healthy to native life, though to Europeans it is salubrious enough. European travellers have all praised its healthiness; Captain Roger Middleton described it "as a place healthful, using all kinds of recreation save hounds." Mrs. Kindersly wrote in 1765 "the heat here is excessive but the climate for India is esteemed healthy, and people frequently come here for the recovery of their health from Bengal, for the soil is dry, and the benefit of the sea breeze, which constantly blows from between twelve and one at noon till the same time at night, is a great advantage." Mr. Stanhope in 17[illegible]4 quoted with approval the description of Madras as "the Montpelier of the East. These impressions were formed in the cool garden houses of Madras. Quite a different impression will be formed by a visit to the Indian quarters of the City. The tanks to the west and the rice fields within its limits keep the subsoil water at a high level. About the sanitary condition of the George Town, Mr. Popham wrote in 1872; "There are no regular drains to carry off water or any well or sewer or other provision made to carry off the ordure, etc., of each house. The consequence is that, exclusive of the effect of the monsoon on the streets, each day's consumption in every family render them disagreeable to passengers, and the digestion of the day is thrown on the first rubbish spot where the menial servants can empty it with impunity." Things had not improved in the early years of the last century, for sanitation was not practised by the people nor by the authorities of the day. Presentments of the grand Jury refer to the very defective condition of the drainage of the town. But for the warning given by stenches and effluvia, people would not have attended to the improvement of drains. What Popham said of his time is true even to-day in some of the smaller streets of Madras. The utilisation of the Cooum as a drainage channel is a contributory cause to the bad health of the town. Now that sanitation has been recognised as a science. Madras may soon hope to see an improvement in its public health.

The internal administration of the city is in the hands of the Municipal Corporation, which consists of a President paid from Municipal funds and appointed by Government, and a body of honorary commissioners partly nominated and partly elected by the rate-payers and certain public bodies. The President is assisted in his executive work by an Engineer, a Health Officer and a Revenue Officer. Its working is governed by a legislative enactment. The history of this Municipal Government is full of interest and very much resembles that of any English Municipal Institution with some features of Indian Village Government.

Madras, like any other South Indian village, had its headman or adhikari, its accountant or Kanakapillai and its watchman or Peddanaik. In the early years of the English Settlement, the native adhikari was the governor of the town and administered justice to the Indian inhabitants. The incumbent was sometimes an Indian and sometimes a European. He held his Court at the choultry or Town house. When in 1661 the Agent became governor with judicial powers in consequence of the irregular exercise of powers by the adhikari, the office of adhikari ceased to exist. The Kanakapillai or Town Kanakapillai was his chief assistant and kept the Land Registers and maintained the revenue accounts. The choultry was a court of petty causes, a custom house, and a Registration office for the record of sales of real property and for the licensing of slaves. The Peddanaik was the head watchman with a number of talliaries to assist him. He arrested wrong doers, confined them in gaols pending their trial before the governor and in cases of thefts or robberies he was to compensate the losers. The offices were all hereditary. When the adhikari ceased to exist there remained only two offices, the Town Kanakapillai and the Peddanaik. The Town Kanakapillai's office was suspended in 1693 in deference to the wishes of the Company.

The European adhikari (Agent and Governor) being an Englishman proposed in Aug. 1678 "after the manner in England a way for keeping the town clean by taxing every house at a moderate rate, and to appoint a scavenger to collect said moneys and therewith to hire coolies to carry away the dirt and filth which, as in all other towns in these countries, lies in the streets very offensively." The conservancy rate was ½ to 1 fanam per house; the total assessment was 110½ fanams. Two-thirds of it went to pay the wages of four coolies and one-third to the Town scrivener or Kanakapillai. The Christian town was to pay the cost of its conservancy and the George Town to meet its cost. About the end of the same year a clerk of the market was appointed to prevent frauds and abuses in weights and measures and to preserve good order in the market on a monthly pay of 140 fanams. In this imposition of a tax on the people though the people might have agreed to pay the contribution, the Governor and Council did an act not sanctioned by the Charter or Laws of England. But it passed unquestioned for many years.

The recognition of the city as a body corporate and politic with rights and privileges to administer its own affairs independent of outside control is a growth of the middle ages in Europe. The Dutch had extended this system to their possessions in the East, including India. At the instance, apparently, of Sir Josia Child, who was an admirer and advocate of the colonial policy of the Dutch and directed the policy of the Company at home, a charter was issued by the Company, under the authority given to it by the Royal charters by which the "Town of Fort St. George (commonly called the Christian Town (and city of Madraspatam and all the Territories thereto belonging not exceeding the distance of ten miles from Fort St. George was constituted a corporation . . . by the name and title of Mayor and Aldermen and Burgesses." The Mayor and Aldermen and Burgesses were constituted a body corporate and politic. A very important feature was that the Burgesses were representatives of the several castes and communities in the Town. The Mayor and Aldermen were a Court of record, the Mayor and 3 senior Aldermen being justices of the Peace. The Mayor's Court had jurisdiction over Civil Suits and offences. The Corporation had other duties; building a Town Hall, Schools, common Shoars (sewers) for the ornament and healthfulness of the place, etc. and regulating and paving the streets and lanes in town. The building of a Hospital and the walling of the town would seem to have been included in the scope. The Charter came into force on September 29, 1818. But funds had not been provided to carry out these works until May 1689, when the petty taxes of Paddy tolls, measuring and weighing duties and brokerage, and the Government share were assigned to it. The Corporation slept over this business till 1691, when Governor Yale demanded the restoration of the revenues collected by the Corporation. The Corporation in 1692 wanted the assignment of taxes (for licensing of public houses, etc.) in place of the measurers' duties which had been taken away from it. The paving of streets was begun in 1693. Footways were paved with brick and roadways were of sand. The cost was met by assessment on houses in proportion to the area of pavement in front of each house Up to 1694 scavenger's rates were being collected by a Company's official. In December it was decided to transfer it to the Corporation subject to the condition that the the conservancy of the town was managed by the Corporation In 1695 the Company directed that the town Kanakapillai's duty at 10 fanams on every pagoda of custom collected be granted for ever to the Corporation for beautifying and adorning the town with useful and necessary buildings. It was, however, being collected by the Government and appropriated for other purposes In 1726 the Corporation complained of lack of sufficient funds to carry out their objects; and the Government handed over to it the surplus funds it had under Town Kanakapillai's duties. Among the works which the Corporation carried out were bridges, reclamation of the Island, paving with bricks the roads in the white town, repairing banks, sinking of wells, etc.

The Charter of 1726 excluded heads of castes and communities and so deprived the Corporation of its representative character. There were no Indians or members of the other communities among the Aldermen to decide causes between natives It was designed for the Government of Europeans primarily. The charges of Mayor's Court were met from the collection of weighing and measuring duties and from fines. A contribution to the Charity School was also being paid by the Corporation. In Governor G. M. Pitt's time there were again complaints from the Corporation of insufficiency of income. The policing of the George Town had come for consideration before G. M. Pitt, and he ordered the Rental-General to canton the town into proper districts. In 1735 the number of conservancy carts was increased from 13 to 20. In 1744 the Government resumed all the duties and paid instead 40 pagodas per mensem Under the Charter of 1753, the Mayor's Court could exercise civil jurisdiction over natives only in cases in which they had agreed to abide by its award. The exclusion of the inhabitants from the Charter took away the Municipal character of the Mayor and Aldermen, who constituted merely a judicial tribunal with jurisdiction over some special communities.

The enforcement of the regulations for the conservancy of towns is best done by Police constabulary The organisation and reform of the Police was therefore of primary importance in civic progress. Governor Josias Dupré turned his attention to the subject. He separated the Police from the other affairs of the settlement. The President and Council sat as a Board of Police. Streets were paved under the orders of this Board, the house holders paying the cost of portions adjacent to their properties and the Government the remainder; public lamps were erected in the Fort and the George Town; regulations were framed for the holding of markets; the sale of fish was brought under control a regulation for the hire of servants, etc., was passed; and a Court was established to settle cases in which customs of the natives were in dispute. This Board existed only a little more than twelve months. In the first place, the constitution of this Board was according to the best legal opinion ultra vires and illegal, and repugnant to the Charter; and one Mr. C. Bromley, attorney in Madras, led the opposition to Government's action. There were external dangers from foreign enemies which occupied the attention of the President and Council. To make matters worse the Board came into collision with the Mayor's Court. These causes led to the dissolution of the Board on March 18, 1771. In 1776 the Company's Scavenger issued regulations for the prevention of nuisance in George Town; carts and cows not to be kept in the streets; each house to have a cesspool, fish to be sold in a separate market There were 70 scavenging carts. A native overseer of the market was appointed in 1777; prices of provisions were regulated; and the hire of palanquin boys was fixed; a guard and poligar peons were attached to the Choultry's office to prevent riots, to maintain peace or order in the markets and streets, and to patrol the streets in the nights. Three years later a Superintendent of Police was appointed.

In 1783, the heavy arrears in the collection of scavenger's rate and the inadequate conservancy of George Town were reported to Government. "A number of the inhabitants instead of keeping sinks in their backyards with channels to convey the muddy water thereto, let it pass into the open streets, which not only rendered it very offensive but extremely unwholesome." The rental General and Scavenger to Government despaired of any success in sanitation in these circumstances. The unwillingness to pay taxes and the resistance to this impost by the lawyers and merchants was becoming a standing feature and a scandal. The Supreme Court at Calcutta gave their decision against the Government as regards their right to levy rates. Lord Macartney assembled the inhabitants and obtained their consent to the tax,—the consent being subject to the appointment of a native scavenger There were now 80 carts where 200 would just meet the need. Mr J. Daniell thus described the state of the town in 1785: "It is even become unwholesome to reside in the George Town. The streets in time of rain are deep canals of water, and many of the houses on each side of these canals are sunk beneath the lumps of rubbish and filth collected there, from whose exhalations after rain it is rendered dangerous even to the inhabitants accustomed to it." The contract system of cleaning the streets was introduced in 1786, the contractor agreeing to keep 70 carts, 120 bullocks and 80 buffaloes. Popham's plan for the establishment of a Police for the better government and regulation of the Town was before Council. The residents complained of dearness of provisions, frauds by dealers, the dishonesty of servants, artificers, coolies etc., bad roads, nuisance in the streets, and robberies and thefts. A committee was appointed to consider the matter and decide remedies. The founding of a general market was recommended; the scavenger's rate voluntarily paid by the people was to be continued; but they could make no recommendation as regards Police—the very word "Police" was taboo to the hair-splitting lawyers and to the Company. They recommended the retention of the appointments of cotwall and scavenger and the appointment of a committee of Police.

In August 1786 the Government appointed a "Committee of Regulation" avoiding the word police. The maintenance and repair of roads were placed in charge of a superintendent of company's gardens, a new appointment created in December. In the following year Kotwalchavadi was built and a regulation of prices of provisions, etc., was passed. The law officers in England pronounced against the scavenging rate, which was therefore suspended in December 1790. The Company at the same time applied to the Government for Parliamentary sanction to levy taxes. In 1791 the committee of Regulation was abolished as also the offices of scavenger and Kotwal. At length the long desired power was given by an Act of the 3rd George III. Additional Justices of the Peace could be appointed by the Governor-General. A justices' department was created. The Justices had judicial and administrative functions.

The Statute legalised the collection of assessment on houses and lands in the Presidency Towns for expenditure upon their good order and government. Municipal Government proper in Madras began only in 1794. The Justices in Session had a sort of control over the local Police; they collected the assessment, attended to the making and maintenance of roads, the sanitation of the town. Town cleansing was effected by contract under the control of two officers called 'Surveyors and Collectors' of assessment. The contractor maintained 6 carts for the Fort and 54 carts for the Black Town. In 1797 the inhabitants represented that they would have "no more cleaning and repairs,"—so much was the popular unwillingness to be controlled or interfered with, even though it concerned such a vital matter as sanitation. Though a legal basis was given by this Act, the administration of the Justices in Session was not such smooth sailing one would expect. The Town Poligar or Peddanaik held office under a new cowle from Lord Hobart. A Police Committee was instituted by Lord Hobart to remedy the defect in the Charter of 1753 which prevented the Mayor's Court from interfering with Police Administration. In 1806 the policing of the town was reformed, and a Superintendent of Police was placed at its head. This Officer later on became the Chief Presidency Magistrate. The cost of the Police was a Municipal charge for some years. Now the Police are paid by Government. Sir William Robinson reorganised the whole Police in 1858. The finances of the Justices in Session were never quite equal to the burdens thrown on them and Government had often to contribute to its fund. The market was also under the control of the Police Committee of Lord Hobart. The supply of provisions was done by contract for some time until the complaints of mismanagement of the market by the Police reached Government. It is open to any person to sell provisions provided he satisfies rules laid down by the Sanitary Department of the Municipality. Food supply has been much improved by the establishment of the Moore Market. The making and repair of roads were attended to by the Justices in Session, the Lottery Committee and the Military Department. Street lighting was not receiving much attention from the Justices.

The drainage of the City consisted in the beginning of a few open drains with a sewer constructed later on. That system, modified and improved, continued very long. The underground system gave hopes in the beginning. The city is waiting to see what good it will do. The Seven Wells supplied water to the Fort and the shipping and to a few residents who chose to have the benefit of good water by paying for it. The Red Hills water supply scheme intended to supply water to the whole city was begun only in 1868 and completed in 1872. From 18[illegible]0 onwards a number of legislative enactments have slowly improved the Municipal Government of the City and brought it to the present state. The City of Madras has an area of 27 square miles and any improvement of this extensive city means large expenditure of money which the City is not able to bear. The extent of the town, the sea breeze, the many large open spaces within it and the Marina, the park-like residence of its richer inhabitants the absence of large mills and industries, and the Red Hills water supply, all contribute to minimise the evils due to defective sanitary arrangements. The death-rate averages 40 per thousand per annum. It usually increases during the cold and rainy seasons, and is at its minimum during the dry hot months of April, May and June. The population is liable to periodical visitations of cholera and small-pox. Elephantiasis and leprosy are endemic diseases on the coast-line; the former is generally seen in the form known as "Cochin" or "elephant leg" (Elephantiasis). The land rises slightly as the distance from the sea increases, but in no part of the municipal limits is the elevation more than 24 feet above the sea, while in many thickly-populated neighbourhoods the levels are so low as to suffer serious obstacles to drainage. The new drainage works are expected to do much for the sanitation of the City. The chief outlets for the discharge of excessive rainfall are the Cooum River, the main drain of Georgetown, and two minor channels between the Cooum and San Thome. The heaviest rainfall usually occurs during the north-east monsoon, as much as 18 inches having been known to fall within 24 hours. The locality of the town is liable to prolonged periods of drought as well as to heavy floods.

This short history of Madras would hardly be complete without alluding to the fact that it is the only city in India that has actually been under bombardment during the great War. On the evening of September 22nd 1914, the German Cruiser "Emden" visited Madras and opened fire on the city. Several people were killed and injured and much damage was done to the large Oil installation in the Harbour premises. A commemoration stone has been placed in the High Court wall, in North Beach Road, in the spot where a large shell from one of the "Emden's" guns exploded.

Neighbouring Places of Interest

RED HILLS.

The native name of this locality is Coil Mathavaram. The village lies in a north-westerly direction about 10 miles distant from Madras. The English name is probably derived from the colour of the soil and the undulating appearance of the country, as there are no hills here in the ordinary acceptation of the term. The formation known as laterite, which is almost peculiar to India has generally the appearance of a soil. In its normal form it is a porous argillaceous rock, much impregnated with iron peroxide. It is mottled with various tints of brown, red, and yellow, and a considerable promotion sometimes consists of white clay. It hardens an exposure and makes a useful building stone. Some of it has recently been shown to contain a large percentage of hydrates of alumina, the ores from which aluminium is made. This place furnished laterite for the building of Cogan and Day's Fort St. George. Until about the middle of the 18th century, this stone was being quarried by the Company people under an agreement with the owner of Pullee—" the country where the Iron Stone grows"—a village at the Red Hills. Laterite is not now being used for building in Madras ; it serves as a good material for metalling the roads with. One of the earliest railway schemes in the Presidency is connected with the Red Hills. A light railway was in the early part of the last century constructed from the Red Hills to bring into the City the laterite required for road-making. A large lake was the centre of attraction in former times, and in its vicinity were several of houses belonging to inhabitants of Madras. The aspect of the place has now, however, entirely charged since it has become the fountain-head of the Madras Water Works. The Red Hills Lake has a capacity of 100 million cubic yards; all the water is not available for supply owing to the low situation of the lake. The average annual supply is 415 million cubic feet, which is insufficient for the needs of the City. The Corporation of Madras is contemplating pumping the water to the top of a ridge, 90 feet above sea level near the lake, to be supplied from thence to the City. This has not yet been done, but the supply has been materially improved by elevated filtering beds, opened a few years ago. Before rail roads made it an easy matter to go for change of scene and air to Bangalore, the Nilgiris, or Shevaroys and other outlying salubrious stations, the Red Hills and Ennore had strong attractions for the citizens of Madras. They were glad occasionally to escape from the heat and dust of the City and to enjoy the fresh breezes, boating bathing other amusements available at these two places. A few people even resided permanently there, coming into Madras during the day for business and returning at night. Very close to the lake is Connur, a railway station. The water works channel runs very near this place where there is temple and tank. Drinking water is taken from this tank to Madras by many native residents. Many native week-enders resort to this village, which is provided with choultries.

ENNORE.

This place is about 10 miles from the Fort in a northerly direction and may be reached either by a boat plying over the Buckingham Canal, or by the ordinary carriage road through Tondiarpet and Tiruvattiyur or by the East Coast Railway. Its Tamil name is Kattivakum. It was given to Governor Pitt in 1708 by Dhaud Khan Its chief attraction is a large salt-water lake in which visitors bathe, fish and sail. Even so early as 1746 it was one of the three places outside Madras where the Company's servants had their country residence. It has been the scene of many regattas. The gayest time that Ennore has known was perhaps when Sir Henry Pottinger was Governor of Madras. He had a great liking for the place, and built there a commodious bungalow for his own use, which he generally occupied during the hot season. Madras society then frequently visited the place and the old Ennore Club House was seldom unoccupied by its members, who were always notable for their hospitality. The tide of fashion has since ebbed away from Ennore owing to the accessibility of other stations by railway and the prevalence of Malaria The Ennore mosquitoes are the largest and most vicious on the Coromandel Coast and nets should always be used for sleeping under. The lake contains excellent fish and oysters, and salt of a very superior quality is gathered from numerous pans, situated close to the creeks or inlets from the sea ; the crystals are large and clear. It is shipped in large quantities to Calcutta and other ports. The sand dunes along the coast here have been converted into casuarina plantations by private persons. The formation of backwaters here and at Pulicat is due to the sand laden currents of the sea preventing the discharge into the sea of the water and silt of the sluggish rivers of the Chingleput District. Further north lie Pedhoopauk and Chintamany. The latter place contains the remains of a Hindu temple almost entirely embedded in sand, and at the former are some large plantations of casuarina belonging to private individuals.

PULICAT.

The village is an old Dutch settlement formed about 1609. The Dutch called their fort Geldria. After 1871 and until it was finally ceded to Great Britain in 1825, it was sometimes in the possession of the English and sometimes in that of the Dutch. It was once a sanitarium much frequented by residence of Madras, but the prevalence of Malaria has deprived it of its popularity. Lord William Bentinck once had a house at this place. It is chiefly inhabited by Lubbays and low-caste Hindus. The wealthier inhabitants carry on trade with Singapore and Malacca, and the common people are chiefly fishermen. Scarcely any trace is left of the old Dutch fort, but the ancient burial-ground, preserved from decay by Sir C. Trevelyan when Governor of Madras, contains many well-cut tomb stones, some of them nearly 300 years old. Roman Catholics resort to this place in great numbers on certain of the Church's festivals. The distance from Madras is by canal 25 miles. Visitors at Ennore make excursions to Pulicat by boat, a pleasant journey of five or six hours. The lake which lies between Coromandel and Pulicat, named after the latter place, is a beautiful expanse of water about 37 miles in length and from 3 to 11 miles in breadth.

COROMANDEL.

This retreat is separated from Pulicat by the lake just named and is bounded on the east by the sea. It is pleasant place, and like Ennore, is visited during the hot season. The etymology of the name of this place has been variously explained, but it appears to be a corruption of kar manal (black sand), the black sand so extensively used in former days in public offices and by the people, instead of blotting paper. "Coromandel," as applied to the East Coast, is said to be derived from Cholamundalam, i. e., the region of the Cholas, an ancient dynasty, who at one time inhabited this part of India. This village, called in Persian correspondence Shamsh pulli, was granted in 1768 by Nawab Walajah to one Muhudin Muhammad Abu Bakar for performing the duties of Kasi in Madras, etc. His grandfather was appointed as Mulla in the Mosque in George Town in 1694. There are a few houses here furnished and favourably situated, which may be occupied on payment of a monthly or daily rent. The population here too, consists almost entirely of low-caste Sudras, Pariahs and Lubbays numbering in all above 3,000.

LITTLE MOUNT.

About four miles south of St. George's Cathedral and near the Marmalong bridge is a spur forming what is familiarly known as the Little Mount. Tradition says that in the cave on the Little Mount St. Thomas the Apostle hid himself to escape persecution, and that he cleft the rock with a Rod in his hand and obtained water from the cleft to drink, and that pursued there by his enemies he left his footprint at the foot of the hill and escaped to the Great Mount or St. Thomas' Mount. The church is dedicated to St. Thomas. A festival in connection with it is annually celebrated. A great throng of people composed of the middle and lower classes generally collect to witness the usual church processions, etc., which appear to cause great excitement. Under the arches of the Marmalong bridge may be observed various groups of excursionists, who make this their temporary abode until the close of the festival, which, as a rule, lasts for a period of ten days. There is not, however, anything historical, attaching to the place and beyond the festival above referred to, it is of little or no importance. Many of the company's servants resided in bungalows at the foot of the hill for change of air. People are now resorting to the place gradually in numbers and building other Bungalows for permanent habitation.

GUINDY.

A little further south lies Guindy, which may be reached by a short drive from the Marmalong Bridge. At Guindy is the Governor's country-seat. It is in many respects superior to the Government House at Madras, and owes its modern form to Lord Elphinstone. The park surrounding Government House is very extensive and admirably laid out. A broad and well-formed road runs direct from the main entrance which presents the facade to full view. At Guindy is the Madras Race Course, one of the best in Southern India, and here also is the principal meet of the Madras Hounds.

ST. THOMAS' MOUNT.

Passing over the Marmalong Bridge and turning to the right, a drive of 8 miles along a well-laid out road, beautifully shaded by an avenue of banyan trees will bring the visitor to St. Thomas' Mount, familiarly known as The Mount. Indians call it Paranginmali. This is an isolated cliff of green stone and syenite, about 220 feet above the level of the sea.

The summit of the Mount is crowned by an old Roman Catholic Church, called the "Expectation of the Blessed Virgin." The building, erected in 1547, measures 109 feet by 87 feet and belongs now to the Portuguese Mission in the diocese of Mylapore. Behind the altar of this church is a curiously carved stone cross with a very ancient inscription which Dr Burnell refers back to A. D. 800; it is attributed to Nestorians. Translated into English, this inscription reads—"Who believes in the Messiah and in God above, and in the Holy Ghost is in favour with Him who bore the Cross." In 1687 there was said "to be a tree on the top of the Mount which is called "Arbor triste," that seemeth not to flourish all the day long, but from sun setting to sun rising it is exceedingly full of white blossoms, which withered and fall at mid-day, the very leaves also shut themselves up in the day time." The Mount may be ascended for a general panoramic view of the cantonment and parade-ground of the artillery, which is always quartered here. The ascent is made by a flight of some 200 steps built by the famous Armenian Petrus Uscan at his own cost. There is also flag staff which used to be a land mark for vessels standing in for Madras from the south.

So early as 1651 Agent Greenhill came to St Thomas' Mount for hawking. Streynsham Master with a party came here in 1678 to take the fresh air at St. Thomas' Mount. In 1685 the council purchased a garden house, it being a very commodious and pleasant place for sickly people to recover their healths at and is often made use of for that purpose. In 1758 at the time of the siege of Madras there were about a dozen garden houses at the foot on the road to Madras, one of them belonging to General Stringer Lawrence. The French plundered and destroyed his house and effects for which he was given compensation by the Company. St. Thomas' Mount exercised a great fascination on the European residents of Madras in the middle of the eighteenth century. Eyles Irwin, a young civil servant, wrote a poem in 1774 entitled "St Thomas' Mount," the opening lines of which are:—

"Were thou, Saint Thomas, rearest thy sacred bright,
Successive beauties trick the ravished sight;
There orange-groves diffuse their sweets around,
And flowerets paint the variegated ground;
On every side ten thousand blooms appear,
Like lunar circled in her starry sphere."

Lord Pigot was kept a prisoner at St. Thomas' Mount in the house of Colonel Horne who was in charge of the prisoner. The Mount became the gayest place on the Coast, and on Christmas and New Year's day as well as on Twelfth night the balls given by Messrs. Monckton, Russel and Stone were uncommonly splendid. St. Thomas' Mount was the scene of one of the fiercest struggles of the Franco-British Wars in India; on February 7th, 1759 between Colonel Caillaud on one side and Lally on the other. In 1774 it became the head-quarters of the Madras Artillery.

The Cantonment below the hill contains some very handsome buildings—among them the various barracks for the Artillery, etc. The garrison Church, which is a very handsome ecclesiastical building, dedicated to St Thomas, is said to be a copy of the historical church of St Clement Danes, Strand, London. It was built by Government in the years 1825-26, at a cost of Rs 42,711, and was consecrated on October 31 1830. It will accommodate 500 worshippers. The church contains many well executed and interesting memorials of Royal Artillery officers, the most noteworthy being the famous monument to the memory of Colonel Noble, the work of the eminent sculptor Chantrey. Over the altar there is a large painting representing the appearance of Our LORD to St. Thomas; this was painted in 1891 by Lieut Colonel J. B. Richardson, R. A., and presented by him to the church. In the chancel of the church there is some excellent carving in wood, the work of the Rev James Sharp, a former chaplain of St. Thomas' Mount. In the churchyard there is a handsome cenotaph to the memory of General Sydenham, a distinguished Artillery officer. The mess house of the Royal Artillery is, perhaps one of the most handsome of the many excellent officers' mess houses in India.

An excellent Soldiers' Institute is located at St. Thomas' Mount, and is much used by the troops in the garrison. The Institute was built from funds collected by the Rev Canon A. H. B. Britten, M.A. to whose energy the great Soldiers' Institute at Secunderabad is entirely due. The Institute comprises a large concert hall, a billiard room, a library, reading, recreation and game rooms, a bar, supper rooms, rooms for the Superintendent, and a lavatory with hot and cold baths. Detached from the main building is a Soldiers' Chapel or Devotional Room and still further away, a commodious house for the accommodation of the ladies who will be responsible for the internal economy of the Institute. About four acres of land are laid out for the out door recreation of the men. Experience has proved how much the soldiers appreciate these Institutes, which are free and open without question to any man wearing the King's uniform. There are also a well-built Wesleyan and two Roman Catholic chapels.

POONAMALLEE.

This old sanitarium for British troops, is situated about 18 miles south-west of Madras. It can be reached in about two hours' drive along a well macadamised road or by rail via Avadi. The station is by its good drainage and general salubrity well suited for a convalescent depot. The small permanent European population of the place are chiefly pensioners. There is a Cantonment Magistrate's and a District Munsif's Court here. A large and handsome hospital has been erected at the station.

This town was the capital of a local chief, styled Naick, who was subordinate to the fugitive Vijayanagar King at Chandragiri. It was a Naick of this place who made overtures to Francis Day for the settlement of the English in his territory and granted the present site of Fort St. George with certain privileges to build a fort and to carry on trade. Subsequently a cowle was granted by the Rajah of Chandragiri which made Madras independent of the Naick of this place. The Naick at that time belonged to the Damarla family which is now represented by the Rajah of Kalastri. His successors were not friendly to the English and frequently harassed the Settlement by stopping provisions, etc., going to it. The Brahmin Naik of this place in Streynsham Master's time was Podela Lingappa, who rose to be the Nawab (or Governor) of the Carnatic. The place was threatened by Sivaji in 1678 and plundered by the Mahrattas in 1688. The Poonamallee District was granted to the British by the Nawab in 1780. The place became a military station in September 1777. To the east of the present Cantonment is the old Fort now occupied by warehouses, hospital, etc.

MAHABALIPURAM.

The city of the great Bali known familiarly to the English as the Seven Pagodas is situated on the coast about 35 miles south of Madras and about 5 miles north of Sadras. It is one of the most interesting, and to archæologists, it is one of the most important spots in Southern India. The antiquities of the place may be divided into three groups—(1) the 5 rathas to the south of the village, belonging probably to the latest Buddhist period; (2) the cave temples, monolithic figures, carvings, and sculptures west of the villages, probably of the fifth or sixth century A.D., (these contain some marvellous relievous, ranking with those of Ellora and Elephanta); (3) the more modern temples of Vishnu and Siva the latter being washed by the sea. To these last two, with five other pagodas buried (according to tradition) under the sea, the place owes its English name. Quite a host of writers have described and discussed the date of these structures; Major M. W. Carr, C. S. Crole, Sir Walter Elliot, Robert Sewell, James Ferguson and others. Still no final word has yet been said. Students of Indian art and religion have found expression in these ancient monuments, which have therefore to be studied by the natives of the country and their meaning, as they have felt it, explained. The new school of Dr. Ananda Coomaraswami have not told the world what they have to say. The ancient monuments and scriptures of India have yet to reveal their secrets of India's past. A number of coins of all ages have been found in the neighbourhood among others Roman, Chinese and Persian. In the neighbourhood there is a Brahmin village, and an excellent new rest-house affording accommodation for six persons, eggs, fowls, sea-fish and milk are always to be got. A visit to this place will, well repay those who take an interest in mythological and antiquarian subjects. The journey can be made in a few hours with ease and comfort by the Buckingham Canal. There is a good metalled road from Chingleput Railway Station (Refreshment Rooms) to Sadras Bridge (18 miles) where boats are taken. Application should be made before-hand to Varatha Rajulu Chetty, although boats can often be got without previous notice. The journey is also often made from Madras by the Buckingham Canal; apply for boats to the Wharf Superintendent, the Basin, Madras.

SADRAS.

Sadras, which can also be reached by the same canal, is an old Dutch settlement formed in the year 1647. Sadras is sixteen miles by road from Chingleput and is situated on the Coast and must have been, during its occupation by the Dutch, an imposing place and flourishing town, but now it consists merely of a few houses and a native village of no importance. It was long famous for the fine muslins produced by its looms, but now there are very few weavers, and the skill which produced the once famous fabrics is gone. The town was ceded to the British along with the other Dutch possessions in 1825. The fort is in a state of ruin but enough of the fortifications remain to show the great strength of the masonry and the plan of the place. The monuments of the dead which it contains are an interesting subject of study. The former official residence of the Governor is now converted into a travellers' bungalow. It is rather a curious bamboo-roof building consisting of hall with rooms on either side and out-offices in close proximity, the whole forming a square of considerable dimensions. A short way off from this place stands the Governor's garden-house, a quaint but splendid edifice with towers, elevated terraces and curious arches. It is in a dilapidated state, and portions of it have fallen to the ground. There are still traces of a well laid out garden and splendid tanks and other objects of interest about the place.

COVELONG.

Covelong, about 20 miles south of Madras, was originally a Dutch settlement and a place of some strategical importance Covelong possesses a Roman Catholic Church, almshouse and orphanage founded and supported by a grant from the DeMonte family, formerly rich merchants in Madras. The salt-pans to the west of the village are large and there is some export trade in this article. There is also the SCHOMTIR Experimental pans, Manufacturing excellent Table Salt approved by Govt. for public consumption and is being sold cheap as the ordinary Common Salt. Excellent oysters are found here. The inhabitants are chiefly fishermen and salt-manufacturers. The ruins at present in existence belong to the fort called Saadat Baddar, built by Nawab Anwar-ud-din Khan. The fort was seized by stratagem by the French in 1750 and invested by Clive in 1652 when it surrendered without firing a shot.

CHINGLEPUT

Is 36 miles south west of Madras and at the junction of the Chingleput-Arkonam line with the South Indian Railway main line. The District Court is located here. The District Medical and Sanitary Officer, the Sub-Collector, a District Munsif, a Tahsildar have their head-quarters in this place. It has a Municipality. It contains besides the Reformatory School of the Presidency established in 1881 where juvenile offenders are received and trained for some useful life. The Chingleput Fort is supposed to have been built in the 16th century by one Timmaraja. The lake flanked one side of it and swamps surrounded it on the other sides. This advantage and the strategic position it occupied rendered the place useful and important in the Carnatic Wars. The hills around the town, the lake and the several lesser sheets of water make it a very picturesque spot, especially after the rains. The health of the town is good.

CONJEEVERAM.

Kanchi or Kanchipuram—one of the seven ancient sacred cities of India, is on the branch line of the South Indian Railway from Chingleput to Arkonam about 45 miles south-west of Madras. In ancient Tamil literature, Kanchi is described as a flourishing extensive City. The pilgrim. Tsiang, who visited it in the seventh century, said that the people of Kanchi were superior to many others in bravery, piety, love of justice and respect for learning. In his day Brahmans, Buddhists and Jains were equally numerous and influential. It came into Chola possession in the 11th century and remained with them till 1310 when Muhammadans took it. The Hindu King of Vijayanagar annexed it when they were in power. It then passed to Muhammadans in 1146; to Mahrathas in 1677, to Muhammadans again who held it till 1752 when Clive took the place. The town was destroyed by the Mahrathas in 1688 and plundered by them in 1740. In the wars of the Carnatic it was one of the strategic points and played an important part. The town was constituted a municipality in 1866. It gets its supply of water from the subterranean springs of the Nedavati river from where water is pumped into the town. The supply is abundant. The town is hot. Superior saris of silk such as Indian ladies wear, are made here. There is a large colony of weavers at Pillaipalayam, a portion of Conjeeveram. The town is crowded with temples and shrines. There is an old Jain temple of much architectural interest about two miles from the town. The Siva temple dedicated to Ekambaraswami is in Big or Siva Kanchi and the Vishnu temple dedicated to Varadarajaswami is in Little or Vishnu Kanchi. Pallava Chola, Vijayanagar Kings have all built temples and made this historic town famous for sacred architecture. The annual festival in the month of May draws people from all parts of India to this place, for whose lodging and boarding during that season chattrams and choultries have been built by Hindu Rajahs. Archæologists and Epigraphists find plenty of material in this place.

PERUMBAKKAM

Is a village about 14 miles north-west of Conjeeveram. It was here that Colonel Baillie's force was annihilated by Haidar Ali in 1780. This defeat has been depicted in a fresco in the Darya Daulat, Haidar's garden-house in Seringapatam.

KARUNGULI

Is a village in the Madurantakam taluk. It is a railway station on the South Indian Railway line. It was once the head-quarters of the district and an important strategic point in the Carnatic Wars. Wandiwash, Uttaramerur, Chingleput and this place formed a sort of quadripartite on the line of attack between Madras and Pondicherry. The circumference of the Fort of Karunguli is 1,500 yards. The Fort contains the remains of the granaries of the Muhammadan Government.

PALLAVARAM

Is a town 8 miles south of St. Thomas' Mount. It used to be called the Presidency Cantonment, native troops being kept there for garrisoning and protecting the Presidency town. The place is healthy, though hot, and water is good and abundant. It is a place of residence for European pensioners and a depot for native infantry. There were once many tanneries which have been closed by the cessation of American demand in consequence of the adoption of chrome tanning. The hills near Pallavaram contain the best specimens of Sir Thomas Hollands' Charnockite series of Archæan gneissic and plutonic rocks. In 1732 George Morton Pitt erected a sea-gate colonnade in Fort St. George. It was an avenue of four rows of pillars made of thirty-two columns of Pallavaram gneiss. These columns may still be seen in the new council chamber in the Fort. Pallavaram rocks were also utilised in the construction of the Madras Harbour.

SRIPERUMBUDUR

Is on the western trunk road 25 miles from Madras. It is the birth-place of Sri Ramanuja, the founder of the Visishtadvaita, school of philosophy and contains a temple dedicated to him executed in the beautiful style of the early Vijayanagar architecture with excellent sculpture. It is a place of pilgrimage for Vaishnavite Hindus throughout India.

TIRUVALLUR

Is the head-quarters of the taluk of the same name and is 3 miles from the Tiruvallur Railway Station on the Madras Railway line. The town contains a temple dedicated to Siva and three to Vishnu. Siva's temple is an older building in the usual Dravidian style. The chief Vishnu temple of Sri Viraraghavaswami attracts large crowds of people on New Moon days. A bath in the temple tank and throwing of molasses into it and visit to the temple are done by devotees on that day. The place is important as the head-quarters of Ahobalem Mutt of the Vadagalai section of Sri Vaishnavites. The place was plundered in 1740 by the Mahrattas.

SAIDAPET

Is 5 miles from Fort St. George and is the district head-quarters of Chingleput. It is practically a suburb of Madras, and, being within easy reach of Madras by the South Indian Railway line, it has been the residence of many officials, etc., working in Madras. The Teachers' College is located here. The Agricultural College and Model Experimental Farm located here was recently transferred to Coimbatore. The building is situated on the bank of the Adyar which is crossed by the Marmalong Bridge. Weaving and dyeing are its chief industries.

SEMBIUM

Is very near the Perambur Railway station on the Madras Railway line. The Railway Workshops are here. It is almost a suburb of Madras, and being a healthy locality with good water, it is growing in population. There are many Anglo-Indians here, mostly those connected with the Perambur Works.

TIRUKALIKUNRAM

Otherwise known as Pakshitirtham—is on the road from Chingleput to Sadras. It is an important place of pilgrimage. There is a Siva temple on a small hill, about 500 feet above sea level, and a tank at the foot. Two kites come here every day in the mouth and are fed by a pandaram. They are supposed to be coming here every day from Benares. A bath in the tank and three circumambulations of the hill are supposed to cure many ills, physical and spiritual. It is in popular opinion a sanitarium for consumptives.

TIRUVOTTIYUR

Is a sacred town five miles north of Madras. It was granted to the English by Daud Khan in 1708, but it was not until 1717 when it was seized by Governor Collet that the English had secured possession of it. A weaver settlement close to it on the road from Madras was established by Collet and bears his name Kalattpetta (Colletpetta). Tiruvottiyur contains an ancient Siva temple. It was one of the places visited by the Great Sri Sankaracharya. Every Friday the place is thronged by visitors from Madras. Valuable inscriptions in Grantha characters may be seen both inside and outside the temple. The place is malarial.

UTTARAMERUR

Is in the Madurantakam taluk and is a town of some interest. It is believed that there was a very ancient town on this site; remains of the foundations of buildings are occasionally exhumed to this day.

WALLAJABAD.

(Called also Dandu Sivaram) is very near to Conjeeveram. The place is named after Nawab Wallajah who took that title in 1776. It was made a Military cantonment in 1786, on account of its natural advantages from a military point of view. The unhealthiness of the place compelled the abandonment of it as a cantonment; but it still gives its name to the 83rd Regiment of the Indian Army, formerly the 23rd Madras Light Infantry, which bears on its colours "Seringapatnam" and "Nagpur." There is some trade in oil, grain and other agricultural products.

F. H. Gravely, D.Sc., Superintendent.

This Museum is intended chiefly to illustrate the natural history, natural resources and manufactures of Southern India, and the manners, customs and antiquities of its inhabitants. The exhibits are arranged in two separate buildings, viz, the Old Building and the New Building (added in 1896), with the Connemara Public Library situated between them. The Old Building contains the Natural History and Archæological sections, in the first of which will be found collections of Mammals, Birds, Reptiles, Fish, Shells, Insects, Crustacea, Corals, etc. There are also Botanic, Economic and Geological sections, the last including an extensive series of South Indian minerals. In the Archæological department, in addition to Hindu and Jain antiquities, will be found a large and interesting collection of sculptures from the Buddhist stupa at Amaravati, which are more closely allied to specimens of ancient Greek art than to anything Dravidian. An attempt has been made to reconstruct a portion of the great rail which originally encircled the stupa. There is a valuable collection of coins which can be inspected by specialists on application to the Superintendent. The New Building contains the Art, Industrial and Ethnological sections, comprising artistic manufactures from various localities, arms from Tanjore Armoury and Madras Arsenal, and a large series of exhibits to illustrate the customs of prehistoric man in South India and of his descendants at the present day. Here will be found a very fine and extensive collection of South Indian bronzes, mostly from treasure trove finds, some of which reach a very high level of artistic excellence.

The Museum is open free to the public daily, Fridays excepted, from 7 A.M. to 5 P.M.

N.B.—On the first Saturday of every month, after 12 noon, male visitors are excluded and the Museum is placed in charge of female attendants to enable Gosha Ladies to inspect the collections.

The Connemara Public Library.

To which considerable additions are made from time to time, contains an extensive series of works relating to South India and a fair supply of current periodical literature. Persons over seventeen years of age may consult books, etc., in the Reading Room daily (Fridays excepted) from 7 A.M. to 5-30 P.M. from October 1st to March 31st, and from 7 A.M. to 6 P.M. during the rest of the year. The Madras University Library is at present temporarily housed in the Connemara Library.

6. Every motor vehicle intended to be used as a motor-cab shall be taken to the office of the Commissioner of Police for inspection and shall be liable to examination at such times as the Commissioner of Police may prescribe and the owner's permit may be suspended or cancelled by him if the vehicle does not comply with the requirements of these rules or of the Madras Motor Vechicle Rules, 1916, or where the owner thereof has committed any breach of these rules.

This register shall be open to inspection at any time by the Commissioner of Police or by any person duly authorized by him. Any failure to maintain this register or produce it when called for by lawful authority shall be deemed to be a breach of this rule.
